VILLAGE ANNEXES ARMY NIKE BASE

Editor's Column

STUART R. PADDOCK

"How are you?" is a greeting, not a question . . . or is it? "Does it mean the inquirer is interested in my indigestion?" This was discussed at a coffee hour last week.

The decision: it depends on who's asking the question.

Personally, we feel that the persons who greet us thusly are sincere and are really interested in our well being. They seem to be pleased when we answer, "Just fine."

Our legislators are often called upon to play hosts to school pupils who are participating in the yearly trip to the state capitol.

Next week our local representatives and senators will have the opportunity to spread out the red carpet for a group of Cook county newspaper editors who are going to Springfield to find out if they are earning their salary.

We will tell you next week what we discovered.

The second day of our visit to Springfield will be devoted to Highway Traffic Safety seminar for editors.

According to the program we will listen to safety talks by Gov. Kerner, Secretary Carpentier and others interested in safe driving.

The state and the Chicago Motor club are asking the editors to sell safe driving to readers.

We discovered this week at a church picnic that a June sun can sunburn a much or more than do rays on a Florida beach.

We have on our desk a booklet issued by the Marine corps that should be placed in every school library. It gives information about our country's flag and the respect that should be given to it.

Arlington Elks lodge is holding a public salute to the flag Sunday at 2 p.m. in Recreation Park. The attendance of adults will be evidence to young people of the respect their elders hold for the country in which those teenagers of today may be called upon to give their lives if a hot war develops.

We hope the attendance will be more than a token recognition.

If the state senate approves the redistricting of the constituency served by Marguerite Stitt Church as outlined by the Republicans, we will all be happy.

Republicans and many Democrats of northern Cook county hope she will represent us in Congress for many more years.

When we suggested to a former Arlington Heights resident now residing in Connecticut, that he would be wise to renew his subscription before Congress passes the increased mailing charge for newspapers, he replied, "I will gladly pay the increase, whatever it is. The paper is worth it."

Expansion Is Now Possible

Arlington Heights' population was increased by 1,000 Monday when village trustees voted to annex the 133- acre Army Nike base.

The base, located south of Central rd. and east of Wilke rd., is manned by an estimated 1,000 soldiers of the 45th Artillery Brigade Air Defense.

More important than the population jump, however, is the village's new ability to begin orderly expansion to the south, trustees pointed out.

"The village has been attempting to expand in a southerly direction for many months, but has been hampered by a lack of land contiguity," Village President John G. Woods explained.

HE NOTED that the master plan envisions expansion to the south as far as the Northwest tollway.

Refusal of developers of the Arlington Heights Gardens subdivision to annex their properties had temporarily stymied southerly expansion, Woods said. The proposed 400-home subdivision abuts the east edge of the Nike base.

In unanimously approving the annexation, trustees voiced appreciation to U. S. Rep. Marguerite Stitt Church (R, 13th) for her "diligent work" in ushering the village's annexation petition through Washington, D. C.

Village Manager L. A. Hanson told the Herald that credit is also due Lt. Col. Clifford S. Ott, executive officer of U. S. Army Engineers Chicago district, for his aid in coordinating the petition in the midwest.

Ott lives at 602 S. Highland in Arlington Heights.

HANSON SAID the petition for annexation was presented to the U. S. government Mar. 28. After several inspections by officials in Washington and Colorado, it was cleared by Attorney General Robert Kennedy and the Department of Logistics and received in Arlington Heights May 12.

Annexation of the base will net the village about $7,000 annually in Motor Fuel Tax funds and gas and telephone franchise increases, Hanson observed. Increased population qualifies the village for the added benefits, he said.

The annexation should be especially significant to a 14-member committee appointed May 18 to study the possibilities of annexing land to the village. The committee is headed by Melvin L. Kurtz, 805 S. Mitchell, a former village trustee.

Addition of the Nike base will enable the village to consider annexation of the 95-acre Nottingham subdivision which reaches as far south as Golf rd. The undeveloped tract is now being reviewed by the plan commission.

Flag Day Ceremonies Will Feature Parade

Arlington Heights Elk lodge 2048 will conduct its third annual Flag Day ceremonies Sunday afternoon, it was announced this week by Robert J. Sabin, exalted ruler.

In outlining plans for the observance, Sabin called for a community-wide renewal of allegiance to the flag.

"When we pledge allegiance to our flag, we acknowledge that ours is 'one nation, under God,' recognizing that we are endowed with freedom by our Creator," he said.

"We also recognize the stars and stripes as the symbol of true love of our fellowmen. It is only through that love that the world will enjoy peace."

A PARADE will begin at 2 p.m. at South junior high school and proceed through the village to Recreation park, where Brigadier General Kermit L. Davis, new commander of the 45th Artillery Brigade, will give an address.

The lodge has invited village presidents, mayors and officials of Arlington Heights, Mt. Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Barrington, Wheeling and Hoffman Estates to take part in the program.

Civic and fraternal groups in the area have received invitations to provide marching units, bands, color guards and floats in the parade.

James J. Kelly, Flag Day committee chairman, said parade participants will include the Great Lakes Naval training center band, 45th Artillery Brigade color guard, Palatine village band, Arlington Heights fire department, Little Leaguers, Boy and Girl Scouts and Marines and Seabees.

The parade will leave South school on South st., proceed to Dunton and then north to Euclid. It will continue east on Euclid to Douglas and then south to Recreation park.

ACCORDING TO Sabin, more than 1,950 Elks lodges in all parts of the country will pay tribute to the flag on the 184th anniversary of its adoption by the Continental Congress.

He said the Elks have been observing Flag Day since 1908.

Sidewalks Latest Block To Oakton St. Plans OK

Sidewalks now appear to be the stumbling block to approval of improvement plans for Oakton st.

In discussing the controversial project Monday, Arlington Heights trustees reasoned two more public meetings were advisable: one for opponents of sidewalks to express their views and one for consultation with the board of local improvements.

THE MATTER was presented to trustees on Monday's agenda in a resolution from the improvement board. The resolution rcommended trustees pass an ordinance giving the board authority to start the $269,000 project.

The BOLI wants to widen Oakton from Yale ave. to State rd. to 30 feet, two inches and install sidewalks on both sides of the street. Residents of the Oakton area are resigned to the street widening, but question the need for sidewalks.

Speaking out against the expenditure of $31,000 for sidewalks was Robert D. Chodera, 1216 Marion rd.

He expressed satisfaction with Village President John G. Woods' suggestion that the two meetings be held in the near future. Woods said he would huddle with trustees to decide dates for the meetings.

TRUSTEE William Sauer heartily supported Woods' idea for more meetings, mentioning the necessity for "citizens to be fully heard without interference."

Harold Klingner, BOLI chairman, thought for a moment Sauer was implying his board had interferred with testimony of objectors to sidewalks.

The misunderstanding was quickly resolved, however, and it was agreed the meetings were a good thing.

Petersen Hired

Village Appoints New Prosecuting Attorney

Arlington Heights trustees voted unanimously Monday to concur in a recommendation that Warren G. Petersen, 118 S. Prindle, be hired as the village's prosecuting attorney.

The recommendation was made by Village President John G. Woods at a meeting of the village board.

PETERSEN, an attorney associated with the firm of Van Duzer, Gershon and Jordan in Chicago, was sworn into office Tuesday by Village Clerk Alberta Foerster. He began his new duties Wednesday.

Woods explained his recommendation was based on Petersen's availability, legal ability, temperament, and genuine interest in the affairs of the village.

The 37-year-old attorney is a former president and now chairman of the board of directors of the Greenview Estates Civic association and a member of the 14-man committee recently appointed to study land annexation possibilities.

A supporter of Woods' Caucus party in the 1961 village election, Petersen has been a practicing trial attorney for 10 years and is admitted to practice before all Illinois courts and the U. S. District court for northern Illinois.

HE AND HIS WIFE, Helen, moved to Arlington Heights in 1955. They have three children, Jan Ann, 6, Linda Lee, 4, and Jack Warren, 10 months. He is holder of a BA degree from the University of Chicago and LLB degree from Northwestern university.

Bicycle Thefts Hit Record Peak

Bicycles are currently being stolen in Arlington Heights at a record rate, it was reported this week by L. W. Calderwood, police chief.

In his monthly report, Calderwood said 38 bicycles have been "borrowed" to date this year as compared to 24 through May, 1960. These figures show a 36 per cent increase in thefts, he noted.

THE REPORT listed 19 bicycles snatched in May, 1961, and 14 in May, 1960. Bicycle thefts are considered larcenies by police.

In most cases, stolen bikes turn up dumped in vacant lots or public places, police observe. They say many bikes cannot be returned to their owners because of lack of identification.

"The best way to make sure a bike will be returned if it's stolen and recovered, is to have a village license on it," Juvenile Officer Maury English explained.

LICENSES COST 50 cents for two years and are available at the village clerk's office, 107 W. Davis st. Last month the police department sold 15 unclaimed bicycles at auction, adding $100 to the pension fund.

Summer Reading Program Offered

Arlington Heights Memorial library is offering a summer reading program for children to provide relaxation from physical activities during the summer, it was announced this week.

"Because the importance of being able to read with skill and understanding is being stressed today, the library has planned the reading clubs to help children retain the reading ability acquired during the school year," explained Edith Lindsey, children's librarian.

MANY NEW books on a great variety of subjects are constantly being added to the library, she said. Whether children are interested in a hobby, space, a building project, boating, travel, people, animals, gardening, hunting big game, exploration of the sea, or events of the past, a book on the subject is available.

All children of the community from those entering first grade to those entering eighth grade are invited to participate in the reading program. Those who satisfactorily complete the reading of 10 books will be invited to attend a party at the end of the summer.

Registration for the reading clubs will begin June 19 both at the main library, 112 N. Belmont, and at the branch library at Pioneer Park. The closing date will be August 12.

The program at Memorial library will be under the direction of Miss Julie Zimmerman, and at Pioneer park the clubs will be directed by Miss Kathie Haynesworth.

"IF A CHILD does not have a library card, he may obtain one by getting an application card at the library and having one of his parents sign it," Miss Lindsey said. Upon presentation of the application, a library card will be issued. There is no charge for children who live inside the village limits.

A charge of $5 per family is made for those living outside the village of Arlington Heights.

New Karsten's Now on Force

The son of a 22-year veteran of the Arlington Heights police department has been hired as a patrolman, Police Chief L. W. Calderwood announced this week.

He is Donne Karstens, 22, son of Elmer C. Karstens, 440 S. Evergreen. The elder Karstens is former police lieutenant with 22 years service to his credit.

The new patrolman, a 1957 graduate of Arlington High school, was discharged from the Navy in March. He began his police duties last Friday.

SPECIAL SELLING OF TABLES AND CHAIRS

pamper your budget with these (and many more) exceptional values in all kinds of tables and chairs. We have round tables, surfboard tables, flip-top tables, conversation tables, and a drop-leaf table that extends to 110" and closes to 9". In short you'll find one of the largest selections of tables and chairs in the midwest (currently you can choose from nearly 30 tables and almost 50 chairs.) We've got them from $99 a set (table and 4 chairs) to over $600. And there are real values like some $75 imported Dux dining chairs for only $39.95 (set of 4 for $149). Whatever your needs, whatever your budget, now is the time for savings.

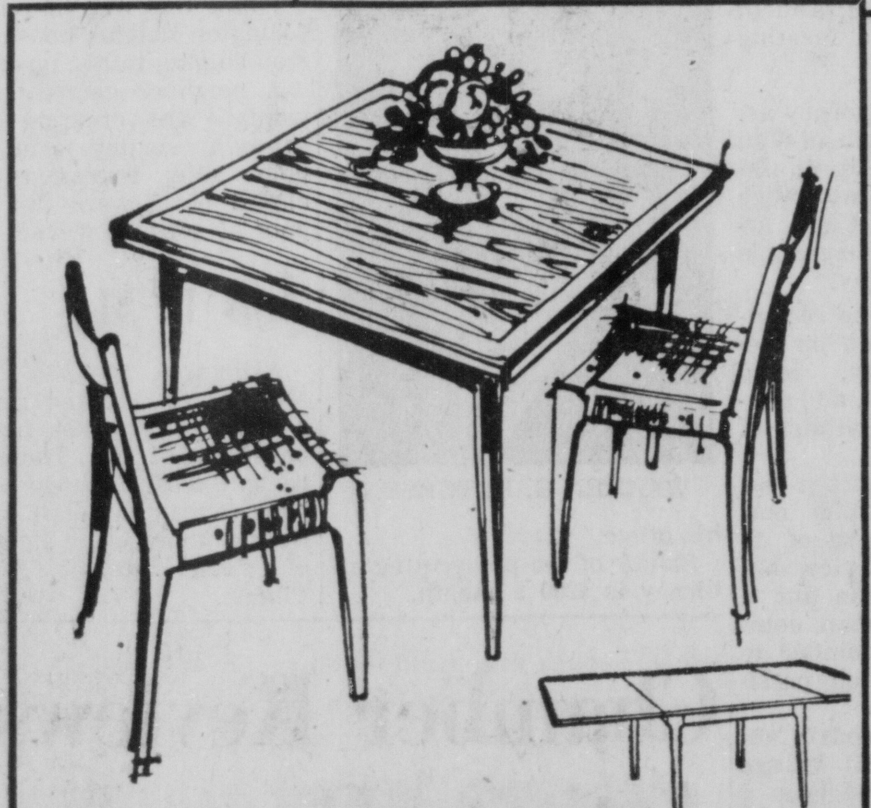
right. A contemporary harvest table (22"x70"; 42"x70" when open) and 6 chairs from a classic group by Paul McCobb. Made of solid hard-rock maple with a simulated oil walnut, black, or cherry finish. Place the table against the wall where it's out of the way — then simply raise one leaf and you can serve a family of five. With both leaves up you'll seat 10; and the comfortable chairs fit under the leaves when not in use. Other tables, chairs, and storage pieces available in this group. The table and 6 chairs $199.



left. one of the special values available from our extensive collection of imports. A 39"x39" table, perfect for family room games or for a living-dining area when you don't want a full dining room set, it extends to 76" to seat 6 or 8. It has refectory-type self-stored leaves which pull out from each side without disturbing what's already on the table when you want more space. Available in teak or walnut.

The imported chairs have craft-cord seats (upholstered seat chairs also available). Table and 4 chairs $249.

And if you have a problem area, or are not certain which type of table is best for you, our designers are at your service, at no charge, of course.

Bicycle Thefts Hit Record Peak

Bicycles are currently being stolen in Arlington Heights at a record rate, it was reported this week by L. W. Calderwood, police chief.

In his monthly report, Calderwood said 38 bicycles have been "borrowed" to date this year as compared to 24 through May, 1960. These figures show a 36 per cent increase in thefts, he noted.

THE REPORT listed 19 bicycles snatched in May, 1961, and 14 in May, 1960. Bicycle thefts are considered larcenies by police.

In most cases, stolen bikes turn up dumped in vacant lots or public places, police observe. They say many bikes cannot be returned to their owners because of lack of identification.

"The best way to make sure a bike will be returned if it's stolen and recovered, is to have a village license on it," Juvenile Officer Maury English explained.

LICENSES COST 50 cents for two years and are available at the village clerk's office, 107 W. Davis st. Last month the police department sold 15 unclaimed bicycles at auction, adding $100 to the pension fund.

Card Party Ducats To Help Housewife

Ticket sales for a benefit card party to raise funds for an Arlington Heights housewife stricken by cancer were reported "doing well" this week by the party's sponsors.

Mrs. Edward J. MacDonald, 1326 W. Campbell, said tickets are still available and will be sold at the door of Pioneer park field house the night of the party, Friday.

PROCEEDS OF the party will be contributed to the John Kmiecik family, 1 N. Yale st. The family of four has undergone heavy financial loss because of the medical expenses for Mrs. Jean Kmiecik, who was afflicted with cancer in 1958.

"The Kmieciks' hospital insurance is exhausted and Mr. Kmiecik cannot work regularly," explained Mrs. A. C. Jeffrey, 1311 W. Campbell, another sponsor of the party.

She invited all interested residents to attend the 8:30 p.m. event. Ticket information may be obtained by phoning CL 3-3086 or CL 5-2217.

Trustees Approve Rte. 53–Almost

Arlington Heights trustees concluded Monday that they approved—with one exception—of the most recent location proposed for route 53 by the Illinois Division of Highways.

The exception, as explained by Village President John G. Woods, is taken with a suggestion that Wilke rd. be used as an access road and the highway placed "as far as is architecturally sound" to the east.

Woods said trustees would like the route to correspond with Wilke rd. as it exists today, with the 105 feet between Wilke and property to the west being used for the access road.

The first location was suggested May 25 at a hearing in Palatine. It was described as a "compromise" location, being designed to please residents of Palatine's Winston Park subdivision and Arlington Heights officials.

Woods noted Wilke rd. is a "logical" boundary between the two villages.

"This is not an issue of Winston Park versus vacant land to the east," Woods opined. "It is an issue of sound engineering."

The board of trustees approved a resolution concurring with Woods' ideas. A decision on the location of route 53 is expected to be rendered by the highway division about June 25.

What Is Immunization?

Tots' Fearful Cries Greet Annual Vaccination Shots

"No, Mommie, I don't want to vaccinated," is a tearful cry that is going to be heard many times in doctors' offices and public health clinics between now and September.

That this event in the child's life is more one of fear than of pain is apparent by the relieved silence that follows the "shot." Even teenagers and adults share this apprehension but they carefully manage to conceal it.

THE WORDS "vaccination" and "immunization" have come to mean the same thing in the language because of an historical act of the great Louis Pasteur.

In 1796 Edward Jenner, an English physician, first gave vaccination to the world. Jenner scientifically proved that by innoculating the skin of humans with vaccinia, or cowpox virus, smallpox could be prevented. Vaccinia comes from the Latin word vacca, meaning cow. Vaccination meant the innoculation of vaccinia virus into a human to prevent smallpox.

Eighty years later, when Jenner's disease prevention principle led to Pasteur's epochal achievement, the immunization of animals against anthrax, and man and dog against rabies, Pasteur said, "I have given to the word vaccination an extension which I hope science will consecrate as an homage to the merit and immense services rendered by Jenner."

WHAT IS imunization and just how does it function in the body?

Dr. Colette Rasmussen from the medical staff of the Cook County Department of Public Health explains it this way:

"In the process of immunization or vaccination we introduce into the body weakened or killed bacteria, viruses or toxins that are suspended in harmless solutions. In the vaccine for typhoid it is the typhoid bacteria; for polio, the polio viruses; for tetanus it is the toxin rather than the organism. Carefully limited amounts are given at a time in order not to produce a reaction, and by repetition to increase the body's disease resisting capacity.

"The body's response to the injections is the manufacture of antibodies or 'resistors,' tiny molecular substances that arise out of the tissues and appear in the blood and lymph streams. Their job is to oppose and control the invading bacteria, viruses or toxins. With the second shot, and sometimes third, required in the initial vaccination series additional antibodies are manufactured at a quicker rate and the number multiplies into the millions. By then the number of antibodies have reached the maximum considered necessary to resist a future accidental invasion of a contagious disease organism, and immunity has been won."

IS THE PROCEDURE for immunization successful with everyone?

"No," Dr. Rasmussen continues, "the immunity developed as a result of actually having had the disease is called 'natural' immunity, and for some communicable diseases such as smallpox, diphtheria, and whooping cough this immunity remains permanent for most people. But here again there are occasional exceptions to the general rule. These diseases do occur again in some individuals.

"Vaccination gives an 'artificial' immunity, as effective usually as 'natural' immunity, but it is for only a limited time. Over a period of years the antibodies produced by vaccination decrease in number. To arrest this decrease and a subsequent drop in the degree of the individual's immunity and protection we give a single booster shot to stimulate antibody production again to the safe maximum level."

THE HEALTH department recommends a booster shot for every type of vaccination, except smallpox, within a year following initial vaccination.

Following the first booster a second booster should be secured in three to four years for the diphtheria-tetanus-whooping cough combination in children under five. Then a booster of the diphtheria-tetanus combination every three to four years up to 10 years of age.

After the initial vaccination a typhoid booster should be secured every one to two years, and on exposure; a tetanus booster every three to five years; a polio booster every year. No booster for smallpox but a revaccination every three years.

Dr. John B. Hall, Director of the Cook County Department of Public Health, urges parents to maintain the security of immunization for their children during the growing years. Teen-agers and adults, too, he says, should continue this security, particularly against polio and tetanus.

Individuals who participate in sports, gardening, farming and those who work with machinery and tools, and everyone who drives an auto are subject to the tetanus or "lockjaw" infection that gets its start in accidental cuts and wounds.

IF YOU TRAVEL or vacation in regions where the sanitation of water supplies and swimming places is questionable you should protect yourself with typhoid vaccination and boosters.

Dr. Hall says with some emphasis, "Immunization against the communicable diseases is not only a personal desirability, it is also a community responsibility. We are as safe from the threat of contagious disease outbreaks as the total immunization level of our community. The current outbreak of typhoid in Chicago points out that serious contagious disease is an ever present possibility. Immunization and sanitation are the modern measures for security against the great contagious diseases. We should never relax and [illegible]

The best method of obtaining immunization is through the services of a family physician in the course of the regular medical supervision that he can provide for the whole family.

Because immunization is so vital for the welfare of growing children and for the protection of the community the Cook County Department of Public Health maintains monthly immunization clinics for children who could not otherwise get this protection. Those applying for this free service are screened for financial eligibility.

THE NURSING director of the health department's clinics, Mrs. Thelma Cline, urges parents to obtain necessary immunization shots for their children now.

Mrs. Cline advises, "Don't wait until summer when doctors' offices and clinics are crowded. Besides, it takes a little time for the vaccines to become fully effective and the polio season will be here before schools close. Children congregate in play activities in the warm weather and they should be fully protected against the communicable diseases and against the risk of tetanus from cuts and bruises."

Mount Prospect Journalist New Editor of Magazine

Clarence O. Schlaver, 400 S. I-Oka, Mount Prospect, a veteran newspaper and magazine man, has been selected as the executive editor of The Quill, monthly publication of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society with national headquarters at 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago.

Choice of the new editor, in implementing the society's McKinsey plan adopted at the national convention in New York last fall, was announced by Warren K. Agee, executive officer.

Schlaver was graduated in 1927 from the University of Wisconsin school of Journalism and worked successively as telegraph, sports, news and city editor of the Kewanee (Ill.) Star-Courier from 1927 to 1943, when he was selected by the late Lloyd Lewis to join the staff of the Chicago Daily News. Since 1950 he has been with Office Appliances, one of the nation's largest trade journals, advancing to managing editor. He has edited several convention daily newspapers.

HE HAS been a Sigma Delta Chi since his college days, a member of the Chicago Headline club, a member of Lions International for 25 years during which he was president of two clubs, president of the Great Lakes Travelers club and a charter member of the Toastmasters Club 1500.

Recently Schlaver was elected village president of Mount Prospect following 6½ years service as trustee during which time he was an outspoken adherent to the "public's right to know," opposing secret meetings at the local governmental level.

He is married and has three children: David, 18, pre-law student at the University of Notre Dame; Paul, 16, high school sophomore, and Marcia, 12, seventh grade. Their residence in the suburb is 400 S. I-Oka.

"My intention is to work diligently to make The Quill a representative magazine for journalists in the various crafts, enlisting the talent of the profession while making improvements in layout, typography and content," stated Schlaver, who assumes his new duties July 1 and will first be in charge of the September issue.

Charles C. Clayton of Southern Illinois university, who has been editing the publication, will leave August 15 on a Fulbright grant to do graduate school lecturing in Formosa.

Chaplin Is Alarmed At Building Decline

Are more stringent Cook county building codes driving developers from unincorporated areas into the arms of municipalities?

This was the question asked Monday at a meeting of the Cook county board of commissioners by Commissioner Charles F. Chaplin (R., Northbrook).

Alarmed over the decline of building permits for unincorporated areas in 1961 and a rash of annexation permits, Chaplin asked that the matter be investigated.

CHAPLIN wondered if the county's new subdivision control manual which recently went into effect and the county comprehensive zoning ordinance might not be responsible for the shift in emphasis from building to annexation.

County Board President John J. Duffy, however, replied that "We anticipated this." Duffy said that it was expected that all unincorporated land in the county would be annexed in 20 years or less.

"The reason we passed the zoning ordinance and the subdivision control ordinance was to get our own house in order so these cities and villages wouldn't be annexing gypsy villages."

THE COUNTY board, however, did adopt Chaplin's suggestion that Arthur Salomon, county map department director, compile a list of comparisons of building and annexation permits for a period from 1959 to the present.

Chaplin also asked that Commissioner Jerome Huppert (D., Chicago), chairman of the Zoning committee, join him (Chaplin's chairman of the building committee) in determining the attitude of area building associations toward new county building restrictions.

Chaplin said that building permits have slipped from 1,245 applied for in 1959 to 749 permits in 1961, and that the valuation has fallen from $25,800 to $14,900. He added that 1960 did not afford a fair comparison since building permits were not accepted pending adoption of the county's comprehensive zoning ordinance.

"I THINK IT'S good that we chased out the cheap builders," Chaplin asserted, and cited as an instance a builder who subsequently entered Wheeling to erect the Dunhurst Heights subdivision after he did not meet county building standards.

Chaplin also suggested that villages be made aware of county building specifications. He said one way in which building standards could be elevated and made uniform would be by meeting with suburban officials for an exchange of information.

Friday afternoon, May 26, troop 666 held its fly-up ceremony. Fourth grade girls received their wings from Mrs. Alex Mitchell, co-leader, and their pins from Mrs. A. Estrella, new co-leader for next year.

After the program, punch, cookies, nuts and mints were served to the mothers and the girls.

The whole troop marched in the Memorial day parade wearing their new green uniforms.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Intermediate scouts from troop 176, Mrs. Lyle Johnson, leader, are making final plans for their overnight at Camp Pine June 9. They will be working toward their outdoor cook and campcraft badge while at Camp Pine.

At a court of awards program in May the following girls received their second class badges: Lyn Copeland, Carol Donahue, Belinda Grandprey, Susan Harman, Janis Johnson, Karen Kafer, Carol Lind and Judith Schrader. An investiture ceremony was held for the newest member of the troop, Susan Klemm.

Tree and outdoor cook badges were awarded to Carol Donahue and Judith Lint; cook badges to Carol Donahue and Karen Kafer; garden flower badge to Karen Kafer; housekeeper badge to Carol Donahue.

The scouts then entertained their parents by performing the Highland Schottische which they also danced at the May 20 rally. Mothers of the girls had made Scotch plaid berets for them to wear. Refreshments were served by a committee of Janis Johnson, Susan Klemm and Judith Schrader.

PALATINE

Third grade brownies of troop 25 will end their season's activities with a "lady dress-up" dinner and overnight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Evans. The troop was visited recently by first class boy scouts James Powers and Tom Tobin, who showed the girls how to build a fire.

The boys stressed safety in fire tending to the girls who plan a cook-out for their parents. Mrs. Bernard Hookanson and Mrs. Edward Rielley, leaders of the troop, are thankful for the cooperation received during the year from the parents and troop committee members.

Mrs. Charles Van Boxtaele and Mrs. Bernard Hookanson, north and south neighborhood International rally chairmen, thank all Palatine girl scouts, brownies and leaders for the help in making the South African and Australian booths so attractive. (B9

Chaplin said that building permits have slipped from 1,245 applied for in 1959 to 749 permits in 1961, and that the valuation has fallen from $25,800 to $14,900. He added that 1960 did not afford a fair comparison since building permits were not accepted pending adoption of the county's comprehensive zoning ordinance.

"I THINK IT'S good that we chased out the cheap builders," Chaplin asserted, and cited as an instance a builder who subsequently entered Wheeling to erect the Dunhurst Heights subdivision after he did not meet county building standards.

Chaplin also suggested that villages be made aware of county building specifications. He said one way in which building standards could be elevated and made uniform would be by meeting with suburban officials for an exchange of information.

ROLLING MEADOWS

After the program, punch, cookies, nuts and mints were served to the mothers and the girls.

The whole troop marched in the Memorial day parade wearing their new green uniforms.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Intermediate scouts from troop 176, Mrs. Lyle Johnson, leader, are making final plans for their overnight at Camp Pine June 9. They will be working toward their outdoor cook and campcraft badge while at Camp Pine.

At a court of awards program in May the following girls received their second class badges: Lyn Copeland, Carol Donahue, Belinda Grandprey, Susan Harman, Janis Johnson, Karen Kafer, Carol Lind and Judith Schrader. An investiture ceremony was held for the newest member of the troop, Susan Klemm.

Tree and outdoor cook badges were awarded to Carol Donahue and Judith Lint; cook badges to Carol Donahue and Karen Kafer; garden flower badge to Karen Kafer; housekeeper badge to Carol Donahue.

The scouts then entertained their parents by performing the Highland Schottische which they also danced at the May 20 rally. Mothers of the girls had made Scotch plaid berets for them to wear. Refreshments were served by a committee of Janis Johnson, Susan Klemm and Judith Schrader.

PALATINE

Third grade brownies of troop 25 will end their season's activities with a "lady dress-up" dinner and overnight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Evans. The troop was visited recently by first class boy scouts James Powers and Tom Tobin, who showed the girls how to build a fire.

The boys stressed safety in fire tending to the girls who plan a cook-out for their parents. Mrs. Bernard Hookanson and Mrs. Edward Rielley, leaders of the troop, are thankful for the cooperation received during the year from the parents and troop committee members.

Mrs. Charles Van Boxtaele and Mrs. Bernard Hookanson, north and south neighborhood International rally chairmen, thank all Palatine girl scouts, brownies and leaders for the help in making the South African and Australian booths so attractive. (B9

County May Still Act On Rezoning Request

The county board of commissioners may still take action on a zoning amendment request after a 60-day period despite the wording of the county comprehensive zoning ordinance that such an application is "deemed denied" after this time has lapsed.

This was the opinion of the State's Attorney's office as an outgrowth of a zoning case involving property in Palatine township.

The county board of commissioners had instructed Assistant State's Attorney Richard F. Filler to prepare a legal opinion covering the matter.

Commissioner Charles Chaplin (R., Northbrook) asked at a meeting Monday that copies of the letter be distributed to all commissioners for study before the county board takes the ruling under advisement.

THE BOARD, however, approved the zoning map amendment of Northern Aire Estates, Inc., to build on 10,000 square-foot lots in Palatine township after Filler had rendered a verbal opinion on the question.

The legal interpretation was prompted by the fact that the county commissioners had deferred the matter for approximately three months.

Commissioner Fred Fulle (R., Des Plaines) moved at a meeting May 16 that the board concur in the recommendation of its zoning board of appeals to grant the builder's request.

FILLER, IN his written opinion, said that if such requests were considered denied if not acted upon within the 60-day period, it would be contrary to a principle of law established in Illinois.

He quoted this legal principle as stating, "A legislative body cannot part with its powers by any proceedings, so as not to be able to continue the exercise of such powers. It has no authority even by contract to control and embarrass its legislative powers and duties."

Northern Aire Estates Inc., of Mt. Prospect had asked the amendment in order to build on 10,000 instead of 20,000-square-foot lots on 152 acres located on the east side of Hicks rd. some 66 feet south and east of the intersection of Hicks and Dundee rds.

THE COUNTY board voted in favor of the request over the objections of the village of Palatine. President of the building firm is Mt. Prospect builder Salvator [illegible]ci. (B8

School Trustee System Is 'Archaic,' Declares J. P.

by JOHN REDDY

The system of township school trustees was described this week as "archaic" by Francis E. Kelly, Palatine justice of the peace and veteran township official.

Illinois' three most densely populated counties — Cook, St. Clair, and Madison — still use trustees.

Although Kelly views the system as outmoded, he is a staunch defender of home rule and township government.

"I'll fight tooth and nail against abolition of the supervisor or any other township office," he declared, "but school trustees have nothing whatsoever to do with township government."

ELECTED MEMBERS of county and local school boards now perform duties formerly assigned to township school trustees, whose offices were created with the land grant ordinances of 1785 and 1787.

Those ordinances established a system for subdividing land as the West developed and units containing 36 square miles were marked off as townships.

The acts provided that one section, or 640 acres, be reserved for use in establishing and supporting schools. Kelly points out that trustees then handled money, settled boundary disputes and acted as a board of appeals for the various underlying school districts.

"Illinois chose to keep the trustee system, and they had a function up until the period of school consolidation," Kelly explaned.

BUT NOW school boards, which direct operations of districts encompassing a single township and, in many cases, parts of others, handle problems related to acquisition of land and buildings.

The county board of school trustees has assumed the appellate function once exercised by township trustees.

"When school districts consolidated and encompassed areas larger than their township area the trustees became meaningless," Kelly explained.

"They have no function now except to state who is to be school treasurer. Everything else they do at direction of the school board."

AND THIS generally amounts to little more than signing school district checks, which many treasurers now do with an automatic signature machine.

"I feel the office is obscure," Kelly said. "It is not under the public scrutiny. The fact there is no direct levy makes it impossible for anybody to see what is going on."

Public interest in the trustees was aroused recently with publication of salaries. The officials appeared to have few duties commenserate with their salaries.

Trustees have been reluctant in the past to shed any light on the extent of their duties and responsibilities, not even to inquiring school boards.

KELLY STATED that "most of the pressure to preserve the school trustee system comes from a strong lobby of school treasurers. There is no question of home rule involved or "loss of local control."

Elected boards can choose which township treasurer to use if the district encompasses more than one township, Kelly explained. He pointed out that with several school districts in the township 10 years ago, there was a need for the trustees. With subsequent consolidation, there is "no longer that need." (B8

School Trustee System Is 'Archaic,' Declares J. P.

by JOHN REDDY

The system of township school trustees was described this week as "archaic" by Francis E. Kelly, Palatine justice of the peace and veteran township official.

Although Kelly views the system as outmoded, he is a staunch defender of home rule and township government.

"I'll fight tooth and nail against abolition of the supervisor or any other township office," he declared, "but school trustees have nothing whatsoever to do with township government."

ELECTED MEMBERS of county and local school boards now perform duties formerly assigned to township school trustees, whose offices were created with the land grant ordinances of 1785 and 1787.

Those ordinances established a system for subdividing land as the West developed and units containing 36 square miles were marked off as townships.

The acts provided that one section, or 640 acres, be reserved for use in establishing and supporting schools. Kelly points out that trustees then handled money, settled boundary disputes and acted as a board of appeals for the various underlying school districts.

"Illinois chose to keep the trustee system, and they had a function up until the period of school consolidation," Kelly explaned.

BUT NOW school boards, which direct operations of districts encompassing a single township and, in many cases, parts of others, handle problems related to acquisition of land and buildings.

The county board of school trustees has assumed the appellate function once exercised by township trustees.

"When school districts consolidated and encompassed areas larger than their township area the trustees became meaningless," Kelly explained.

"They have no function now except to state who is to be school treasurer. Everything else they do at direction of the school board."

AND THIS generally amounts to little more than signing school district checks, which many treasurers now do with an automatic signature machine.

"I feel the office is obscure," Kelly said. "It is not under the public scrutiny. The fact there is no direct levy makes it impossible for anybody to see what is going on."

Public interest in the trustees was aroused recently with publication of salaries. The officials appeared to have few duties commenserate with their salaries.

Trustees have been reluctant in the past to shed any light on the extent of their duties and responsibilities, not even to inquiring school boards.

KELLY STATED that "most of the pressure to preserve the school trustee system comes from a strong lobby of school treasurers. There is no question of home rule involved or "loss of local control."

Elected boards can choose which township treasurer to use if the district encompasses more than one township, Kelly explained. He pointed out that with several school districts in the township 10 years ago, there was a need for the trustees. With subsequent consolidation, there is "no longer that need." (B8

New $5 Million Hospital Has Open House Set June 9 to 11

The many joys and happiness of the Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth, clergy, doctors, nurses and residents from a dozen northwest communities will be climaxed Friday.

Albert Cardinal Meyer, Archbishp of Chicago will dedicate Holy Family hospital, which will provide northwest suburbs with much-needed additional hospital facilities.

After many years of planning, the hospital has become a reality.

Holy Family hospital, located at River and Golf rds., Des Plaines, is an incorporated voluntary non-profit hospital equipped with modern, complete facilities for the practice of modern medicine.

It will service an area comprising Des Plaines, Glenview, Cumberland, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Wheeling, Arlington Heights, Park Ridge, Buffalo Grove, and Morton Grove.

With a continuing growth in this area of 125,000 persons, Holy Family hospital is expected to serve one out of every eight northwest suburbanites next year.

Each family, according to statistics, is certain to have a hospital admission once every two or three years. These facts are the reasons which have spurred the Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth to push ahead and build the new medical care facility.

The $5 million five story structure will be open to the general public this Saturday and Sunday, June 10 and 11.

Residents are invited to view the hospital building, which is of modern contemporary design.

The hospital is T-shaped 240 feet long and 153 wide at its deepest point. With a capacity of 204 beds and 60 bassinettes, it will be staffed by more than 500 doctors, nurses, and para medical personnel that will be necessary to launch it into operation.

The Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth who will be an integral part of the staff are members of the Sacred Heart of Jesus Province of the Order which includes seven hospitals currently treating more than 50,000 patients per year.

THE GOVERNING Board of the Holy Family Hospital has said it will strive "to offer to patients the best that the enlightenment of modern medicine affords. The hospital will seek to bring to the sick all that modern medicine has proved of worth, all the advanced surgery of the present day and the finest technique of nursing service. It accepts as gifts from God the discoveries and inventions that can prolong human life, by alleviating human suffering. It lavishes upon a patient something more than mere professional assistance. It surrounds him with the worth of supernatural charity, which our late Pope Pius XI. said is without doubt the first and best of medicines. With the hospital's outsanding facilities available to everyone regardless of race or creed, it will be your community hospital in every sense of the word."

Rose colored brick was used throughout with curtain walls of glass contained within insulated porcelain panels. The entire hospital interior is decorated with the most cheerful of colors.

The first floor of the hospital will house the administration suite, clinical laboratories, X-ray department, gift shop, lounges for doctors and visitors, conference rooms, admitting offices, chaplain's quarters and chapel, operating room suite, orthopedic section, post-operative recovery room, and emergency operating room.

THE CHAPEL is located on the first floor in a wing to the rear of the hospital. The altar and sanctuary are of Italian marble as well as the Shrines of the Blessed Virgin and St. Joseph. Background for the Shrines is sculptured stained glass imported from Chartres, France. A five-foot corpse on a 10-foot crucifix is mounted above the altar. The interior is of Wisconsin Lennon stone.

The second floor will house the maternity section and will include labor and delivery rooms, four nurseries with 60 bassinettes, private and semi-private patients rooms and a recovery room for patients requiring extra supervision.

The third floor will provide the pediatrics section for children including play rooms for patients and day rooms for visiting parents. Adult patient rooms will be located on the south wing of this floor.

The entire fourth floor, the top floor of the first stage of construction, will contain the accommodations for medical surgical bed patients. The hospital is designed to add three more floors as funds become available.

Some of the special construction features provided at the hospital are the latest electronic system for nurse-patient communication; centralized food service facilities employing "Meal Pack"; closed circuit TV for monitoring the pediatrics department and the recovery room; new high standard room illumination, separate parking facilities to serve distinct functions and several elevators, one for visitors, one for patients and one for service, as well as separate elevators for the use of surgical and obstetrical patients.

The Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth operate schools and hospitals throughout the United States. (B8

NORTHWEST AREA CATHOLICS are looking forward to the dedication and open house June 9 to 11 of the new $5 million Holy Family hospital at River and Golf rds., Des Plaines. The new hospital will serve 125,000 residents in northwest suburbs.

League Opposes Sales Tax Hike

At recent unit meetings of the League of Women Voters of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Louis Nye, president, urged members and friends to write their legislators in opposition to the increase — a proposed sales tax.

The League supports a broadening of the base of the Retailers Occupation Tax. Mrs. Nye reminded members that they had joined with other League members in Illinois in support of passage of a new revenue article which would allow the legislature to exempt food and medicine from any sales tax, and which would permit the taxing of franchises, privileges and occupations without specifically enumerating them.

OPPOSITION TO constitutional prohibition of a corporation or individual income tax, support of classification of real and personal property for tax purposes, and uniform assessment practices are included in the program of the League of Women Voters for a new revenue article.

Information concerning League stands on specific bills may be obtained from Mrs. Nye, CL 3-3410.

'Inherit the Wind'

Bob Hawley 'Scores' As Crusading Lawyer

by JIM PHILLIPS

Last Thursday evening at Prospect High school, the Village Theatre "Inherited the Wind," its audience inherited a couple of fine performances as well as some extremely bad overacting, and the director of the play proved that he inherited a few too many people in too short a time.

Actually, Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee's drama (?) of the famous monkey trial which brought Clarence Darrow and William Jennings Bryan to the forefront as Darwinist and Bibleist has its weaknesses to begin with—a cast of extras which is overbearing, a hero with no real characterization, and a "let's bring it in but let's not bring it in" romance set to the tune of a 1925 heat wave in you-name-the-state.

THESE qualities were not meant to be dealt with by a director - at-the-last- minute, which is what Burr E. Lee was, according to the program notes. "Inherit the Wind" is the type of play which must be handled by a director who knows each actor in his group from the liver to the larynx. Mr. Lee, although at times quite deft at handling the courtroom fireworks between "Bryan" and "Darrow," was totally ineffective with the rest of the cast, especially in crowd business (how can a member of the courtroom audience turn to another and create successful conversation when the person she's talking to is creating the same with someone else?).

Timing, which was of the essence in the opening scene, was lost as trios and quartets entered with the preciseness of musical comedy chorus members and not residents of an excited Bible - Prayer Meeting community. Ironically, this preciseness slowed down the first part of the play.

It wasn't until the principals were on stage that things began to pick up. "Red" Pownall was a distinguished "Bryan," even though he had trouble with the difficult, oratorical lines. "Red" can be satisfied that he didn't stray into the hills of ham acting. He did a fine job all the way through "Inherit the Wind's" Thursday evening performance.

If any one person should be congratulated, it's Bob (I like Hansel and Gretel Witches, too!) Hawley, who came on like a veteran as "Darrow." Bob is one talent that Village Theatre can be happy to have on its roster. His voice in the last few minutes of "Wind" lost its Darrow gargle, but this is a minor point considering his excellent phrasing and timing of lines, and his generally well-characterized portrayal.

THE BEST scenes were those involving Pownall and Hawley, and running a close second were the moments devoted to Rachel Brown, the romantic mate of the man on trial,—played capably by Pat O'Dea. Rachel's part (what there was of it) was attractively acted by Carol O'Dea.

As to the rest of the "Inherit the Winders," it's a toss up as to who underacted when they should have overacted, and vice versa. Jim Smith as Meeker, although in a minor part, missed some very important comic lines by just "saying" them. Equally guilty in the reading department was John Grayson, who had the biting, sarcasm of an Eastern critic-journalist down to the nth degree, but because he insisted on lecturing his part, lost much of the "human" drama associated with his character.

The overacting honors (or dishonors, as the case may be) go to Bob Randolph, in the revival-prayer meeting scene—but Bob can't be entirely blamed for this bit, which was the clinker of the evening. The director must come in for a share, largely because a prayer meeting is not like a gestapo get-together. Neither is it a poetic and beautifully-organized a cappella concert with evenly pitched shouts of "Amen" and "Halleluiah" all over the Bible-Blastin' place. The crescendos of the crowd could not take place because Mr. Randolph had started his preaching on a highly-feverish note. And when the climax of the scene came (the tearful plea of Rachel Brown), there was little excitement from the audience point of view.

AS A POSITIVE point, I've got to say that the children involved were good, especially the little boy on the witness stand, whose name I'm embarrassed to say I didn't get.

"Inherit the Wind" was enjoyed by the Thursday nighters, though, and this is what really counts. As Village Theatre's final fling until fall, it was a satisfactory offering. One of the most important next season improvements the organization could make would be the hiring of a permanent director—a man who could be with the actors and actresses all through the year. Whoever it is, he'll have his hands full because of the excellent programs on tap for next season: Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke," Ian Black's "We Must Kill Tony," and the late George S. Kaufman's comedy "The Solid Gold Cadillac." (Bill

Chalk Artist Set For Church Club

N. R. Swartwout, nationally known chalk artist, will be featured at the regular monthly meeting of the Men's club of the First Presbyterian church of Arlington Heights, Monday, June 19, at 6:45 p.m. in fellowship hall.

Swartwout has developed an effective way to illustrate hymns of the church and the truths of the Bible. Through the use of regular chalks, color filtered lights and black light, he produces unimaginable effects. He draws two pictures at once, and by the black light and color filters, one will fade and the other glow brilliantly.

While the picture is being completed in full color, background music of sacred works and appropriate narration complete the presentation. Swartwout has perfected 22 picture stories, and has selected "God's Cathedral" for this meeting.

His appearances include Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, women's clubs and churches of many denominations in more than 20 states. The artist is a Christian layman who resides in Evanston.

This is a hobby which Swartwout perfected in the spring of 1945. After studying and practicing for more than six months, he finally hit upon the idea of using fluorescent chalk and black light. Swartwout makes some of his own chalks because they are not commercially available.

Ridge Park–Sherwood

FROM RIDGE PARK

Billy, son of the William Grohs, 912 N. Chicago, is home recuperating after having a tonsillectomy in Northwest Community hospital a week ago Monday. When Mrs. Burk, his teacher at St. James, heard about his forthcoming operation, she had all 55 of her fourth graders sit down and write Billy a get-well-quick letter. All 55 letters were waiting for him when he returned home.

When the Richard Wagners, 816 N. Patton ners, 816 N. Patton move to will be much closer to their family. Friends and neighbors here are going to miss them, but want to keep their new address handy - 414 N. Elizabeth, Lombard. Dorothy and Ted Goebbert have bought the Wagner's house and will be moving in with their three children very soon. The Goebberts aren't really newcomers to this area as they now live in Rolling Meadows.

The Jim Polites family, 944 N. Salem, attended the christening Sunday of Helen's niece, Pamela Kretekos, in St. John Greek Orthodox church, Des Plaines. Afterward Helen and Jim joined the rest of the family for a dinner at Bino's restuarant in Franklin Park honoring Pamela.

BOBBY STEENS is recuperating from a tonsillectomy that he had in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, last week. His grandmother, Mrs. Raymond Leonard, from Toledo, Ohio, to take care of the home front and left for Ohio Sunday after Bobby had been released from the hospital. Bobby is the son of Nancy and Bob Stevens, 1007 Oakton.

Dr. and Mrs. George Oliver, 705 N. Kennicott, left their children with their grandparents when they boarded the train a week ago Sunday morning for Minneapolis. He was an usher in the wedding of his former schoolmate and good friend Bob Gale.

The welcome mat is out to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bickford who have moved to 1009 N. Race. The Bickfords, who formerly lived in Oak Park, have one child, Nancy, 3.

FRIDAY WAS Jacquie Bless's 10th birthday and to celebrate the occasion, she invited 18 girls to a party in her home. Several of her fourth and fifth grade friends at Ridge were there, as well as two cousins from Chicago and two former next door neighbors, Linda Morrow, who now lives in Palatine, and Kay Susan Diviney, who lives on the south side of town. Jacquie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bless, 615 W. Vine.

The Ridge Park bowlers ended their season with a banquet at Hearthstone restaurant in Palatine Saturday evening. Fifty people were there to see Sylvia's Flowers team take first prize with a trophy going to each member of the team. Evelyn Singleton came off with an award for the most improved bowler and Ann Mockenhaupt got a pin for the highest woman's game. When the last of the prize money was awarded, somebody struck up the band and they finished the evening dancing.

It was a full weekend for the Jerry Mockenhaupts, 818 N. Harvard. John and Doug and his fiance, Connie Barcus, came up from Champaign-Urbana for Lynn's graduation from St. James Sunday. The 135 graduates had a party at the school Friday night to which the parents were invited.

There was a houseful of guests at the Mockenhaupts for dinner Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maxwell and Patty were there, as well as Dick Mockenhaupt, B. J. Mockenhaupt and Rev. Robert Mockenhaupt, who was the celebrant at the graduation benediction.

RELATIVES are still coming to see Mary Alice Wojtkiewicz. A week ago Monday her cousin, Gladys, came out from Park Ridge and an aunt from Chicago made a trip out to see her. Memorial day, her Aunt Marge and Uncle Jack and her grandparents enjoyed a backyard barbecue supper. Mary Alice is the daughter of Joan and George Wojtkiewicz, 920 N. Ridge.

The Richard Woods, 729 N. Fernandez, have her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Napp, with them until the weekend when they will return home to Milwaukee.

Sunday the William Anguses, 915 N. Yale, were proud grandparents when William John III was christened in St. Alban Episcopal church, Norwood Park. David was home on pass from the Nike Air base here and stood up as godfather for his nephew. Father Richard Lehmann officiated. The christening party went back to the junior William Anguses in Niles for a buffet supper after the ceremony.

An outdoor going-away party was held Saturday night at 831 N. Fernandez, home of the Gil Stebbins, in honor of Jeannette and Bob Helfers, who are moving into a new home in Palatine the middle of June. Seventeen couples from Fernandez, Elm and Ridge were there to see the Helfers surprised. Outdoor lights were strung around the backyard and there was music for dancing in the driveway. Around midnight a buffet supper was served.

Mrs. Marie Schmidt arrived home from a 3-week trip to California in time to attend the Helfers' party. Disneyland, Hollywood, and the homes of the stars, Santa Barbara, Farmer's Market and Knott's Berry Farm were among the many places she visited.

PEGGY LIGHTNER came home from St. Joseph's convent in Milwaukee Friday night to stay all summer. Friday was also the night of her brother, John's graduation party at St. James. Grandma Boddeker and a family friend joined them for dinner Suday in honor of John's graduation and the whole family attended the exercises at St. James that evening. Everyone, that is, except 16-month-old Pat who stayed at home with a baby sitter. These are the children of the John J. Lightners, 921 N. Harvard.

The Alex Kazlos, 720 N. Kennicott, took next door neighbors, Claire and Ed Bakowski and their two children, with them Saturday when they went to Fox River Grove where the Signode Steel Strapping company was holding its picnic. The Kazlo's married daughter and her family also joined them for the day.

Eleanor and Bill Frost, 1225 W. Oakton, are back from a weekend in Ft. Dodge, Iowa, where they visited family and friends over the Memorial day weekend.

A farewell dinner party was held Friday night at the Mike Davises, 923 N. Salem, for the Jim Turners who are moving closer to the University of Chicago. The Ralph Ehlers were there, as well as the Al Swansons, Basil Butts, John Strongs, Al Kluesings, Clyde Hardens, Jim Turners, the guests of honor, Ralph and Velma Bossert and host and hostess, Mike and Norma Davis. There was another farewell party for Randy when her bridge group combined their usual evening of bridge with a party for her and presented her with a gift for her new home.

ANN AND Hank Inselberger, 640 N. Salem, are delighted to have her cousin, whom she hasn't seen since she was 6 years old, now living in Arlington Heights. Jackie and Bill recently arrived in the States from Spain where he was stationed with the Air Force. Bill is now at the Nike Base. Saturday the Inselbergers brought four generations together when they had a big family picnic in their back yard.

Friends and neighbors of the Roy Martins, 940 N. Kaspar, extend their sympathy in the recent death of her mother.

The Frank Kiecas, 821 N. Salem, had two reasons to celebrate Sunday. It was Barbara and Frank's wedding anniversary and Karen's 11th birthday, which called for a family dinner party in the back yard.

Dennis Luxion finished his first year of piano lessons with Mrs. Charles Schunk and therefore qualified for the piano recital given in her home Sunday. His parents, the Bill Luxions, 821 N. Princeton, were among those who attended the recital.

A luncheon Saturday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Marquis, 824 N. Patton, celebrated Debbie's third birthday. Linda and Karen Lindstrom, Jill Levings, and Debbie's brother, Donnie, were there to help her celebrate the occasion. When the family came the following day for an outdoor barbecue, the number was increased to 18. It was a double celebration, however, honoring her aunt Betty June's birthday as well as her own.

THE FLAMELESS ELECTRIC KITCHEN

WHEN YOU MODERNIZE YOUR KITCHEN, REMEMBER...

A flameless electric kitchen won't go out of date

The lady above demonstrates the amazing flexibility of a flameless electric kitchen. Because there are no fuel pipes to get in the way, she can have her automatic electric dryer wherever she wants it. There are no vents to install, no pilot to burn. So the entire laundry unit can fit into a small area behind attractive sliding doors.

Of course, the electric range is the heart of every flameless electric kitchen. With it, you can cook your meals without overheating your kitchen (or yourself). The oven is insulated on all six sides, not just five. Hardly any heat escapes. The surface units transfer heat directly into pans and into foods—not into your kitchen.

And because electric ranges burn no fuel, no dirt is created. Your kitchen (and everything in it) stays clean twice as long.

Before you spend a penny on kitchen remodeling, get a professionally-prepared plan based on your specific needs and budget. An experienced kitchen specialist can show you how imaginative planning can save you steps and eliminate unnecessary bending and reaching. He can also help you work out color schemes and lighting effects and help solve storage problems.

FROM RIDGE PARK

Billy, son of the William Grohs, 912 N. Chicago, is home recuperating after having a tonsillectomy in Northwest Community hospital a week ago Monday. When Mrs. Burk, his teacher at St. James, heard about his forthcoming operation, she had all 55 of her fourth graders sit down and write Billy a get-well-quick letter. All 55 letters were waiting for him when he returned home.

When the Richard Wagners, 816 N. Patton

ners, 816 N. Patton move to will be much closer to their family. Friends and neighbors here are going to miss them, but want to keep their new address handy - 414 N. Elizabeth, Lombard. Dorothy and Ted Goebbert have bought the Wagner's house and will be moving in with their three children very soon. The Goebberts aren't really newcomers to this area as they now live in Rolling Meadows.

The Jim Polites family, 944 N. Salem, attended the christening Sunday of Helen's niece, Pamela Kretekos, in St. John Greek Orthodox church, Des Plaines. Afterward Helen and Jim joined the rest of the family for a dinner at Bino's restuarant in Franklin Park honoring Pamela.

BOBBY STEENS is recuperating from a tonsillectomy that he had in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, last week. His grandmother, Mrs. Raymond Leonard, from Toledo, Ohio, to take care of the home front and left for Ohio Sunday after Bobby had been released from the hospital. Bobby is the son of Nancy and Bob Stevens, 1007 Oakton.

Dr. and Mrs. George Oliver, 705 N. Kennicott, left their children with their grandparents when they boarded the train a week ago Sunday morning for Minneapolis. He was an usher in the wedding of his former schoolmate and good friend Bob Gale.

The welcome mat is out to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bickford who have moved to 1009 N. Race. The Bickfords, who formerly lived in Oak Park, have one child, Nancy, 3.

FRIDAY WAS Jacquie Bless's 10th birthday and to celebrate the occasion, she invited 18 girls to a party in her home. Several of her fourth and fifth grade friends at Ridge were there, as well as two cousins from Chicago and two former next door neighbors, Linda Morrow, who now lives in Palatine, and Kay Susan Diviney, who lives on the south side of town. Jacquie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bless, 615 W. Vine.

The Ridge Park bowlers ended their season with a banquet at Hearthstone restaurant in Palatine Saturday evening. Fifty people were there to see Sylvia's Flowers team take first prize with a trophy going to each member of the team. Evelyn Singleton came off with an award for the most improved bowler and Ann Mockenhaupt got a pin for the highest woman's game. When the last of the prize money was awarded, somebody struck up the band and they finished the evening dancing.

It was a full weekend for the Jerry Mockenhaupts, 818 N. Harvard. John and Doug and his fiance, Connie Barcus, came up from Champaign-Urbana for Lynn's graduation from St. James Sunday. The 135 graduates had a party at the school Friday night to which the parents were invited.

There was a houseful of guests at the Mockenhaupts for dinner Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maxwell and Patty were there, as well as Dick Mockenhaupt, B. J. Mockenhaupt and Rev. Robert Mockenhaupt, who was the celebrant at the graduation benediction.

RELATIVES are still coming to see Mary Alice Wojtkiewicz. A week ago Monday her cousin, Gladys, came out from Park Ridge and an aunt from Chicago made a trip out to see her. Memorial day, her Aunt Marge and Uncle Jack and her grandparents enjoyed a backyard barbecue supper. Mary Alice is the daughter of Joan and George Wojtkiewicz, 920 N. Ridge.

The Richard Woods, 729 N. Fernandez, have her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Napp, with them until the weekend when they will return home to Milwaukee.

Sunday the William Anguses, 915 N. Yale, were proud grandparents when William John III was christened in St. Alban Episcopal church, Norwood Park. David was home on pass from the Nike Air base here and stood up as godfather for his nephew. Father Richard Lehmann officiated. The christening party went back to the junior William Anguses in Niles for a buffet supper after the ceremony.

An outdoor going-away party was held Saturday night at 831 N. Fernandez, home of the Gil Stebbins, in honor of Jeannette and Bob Helfers, who are moving into a new home in Palatine the middle of June. Seventeen couples from Fernandez, Elm and Ridge were there to see the Helfers surprised. Outdoor lights were strung around the backyard and there was music for dancing in the driveway. Around midnight a buffet supper was served.

Mrs. Marie Schmidt arrived home from a 3-week trip to California in time to attend the Helfers' party. Disneyland, Hollywood, and the homes of the stars, Santa Barbara, Farmer's Market and Knott's Berry Farm were among the many places she visited.

Friends and neighbors of the Roy Martins, 940 N. Kaspar, extend their sympathy in the recent death of her mother.

The Frank Kiecas, 821 N. Salem, had two reasons to celebrate Sunday. It was Barbara and Frank's wedding anniversary and Karen's 11th birthday, which called for a family dinner party in the back yard.

Dennis Luxion finished his first year of piano lessons with Mrs. Charles Schunk and therefore qualified for the piano recital given in her home Sunday. His parents, the Bill Luxions, 821 N. Princeton, were among those who attended the recital.

A luncheon Saturday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Marquis, 824 N. Patton, celebrated Debbie's third birthday. ### Promote Common Interests

Suburb Conference Eyes Area Needs

Cooperation Is Stressed

by BRUCE LADD

Northwest suburban communities have been plagued in post-World War II years by a myriad of area-wide problems.

The suburbs' rapid population growth has caused village officials to look to one another for aid, thus necessitating inter-community cooperation and understanding.

Providing the impetus for cooperation and a clearing house for understanding is the Northwest Municipal Conference, a regional association of city and village governors.

Since its inception in 1958, the Conference has done more to promote common interests of the eight member municipaities than even the body's founders had predicted.

MEMBERS include the municipalities of Arlington Heights, Barrington, Barrington Hills, Des Paines, Mt. Prospect, Palatine, Park Ridge and Rolling Meadows. Others are now being considered for membership.

Problems of immense proportions have been discussed — and very often solved — through the mechanics of the Conference. Delegates have given prime attention to the problems of water supply, flood control, police and fire protection, refuse disposal, municipal services, taxes and others.

"An intangible asset of the Conference is the opportunity it provides for local officials to get to know each other," points out Harold G. Appleby, Conference secretary-treasurer and village manager of Mt. Prospect.

In explaining the birth of the association, Appleby said community leaders finally came to the realization that more and more problems of an overlapping nature were requiring joint attention.

"Major problems like flood control and zoning were ignoring county lines and municipal boundaries," Appleby noted. "The organizers of the Conference felt it was time for neighboring communities to pull together in attacking these difficulties."

FORMAL organization of the Conference was achieved Dec. 18, 1958. Each municipality supplies two voting members who meet the third week of each month. The meeting place alternates from community to community.

Most outstanding achievement of the Conference was its 1958 presentation to the Illinois Municipal Problems commission and Randolph commission. The well-documented report discussed three important subjects: land control in surrounding unincorporated areas, service authorities and drainage.

The report recommended municipalities be given maximum control over the land adjoining their boundaries, noting the adjacent land "should be developed in a manner compatible with the regulations of the municipality."

An example of the municipality's lack of control over vacant adjacent land is a 400-home subdivision now being developed just south of Arlington Heights. The developer is building homes on 50-foot lots while Arlington Heights' zoning requires 70-foot frontages.

THE PROBLEM, Arlington Heights Village Manager L. A. Hanson says, will come when the village is asked to annex the subdivision. Then it will be too late to uphold village standards.

The Conference report recommended the legislature give specific controls to municipalities covering public improvements, comprehensive zoning, lot sizes, house sizes, architectural design and inspection of buildings and public improvements.

Regarding service authorities, the report suggested the language of state statutes be amended to make greater cooperation between municipalities possible. Abutting boundaries cause problems in police and fire protection, the report stated.

The report also suggested an "area treatment" of drainage and flooding problems be implemented by granting an existing body authority and financing ability to coordinate a cooperative effort.

THE REPORT was praised in Springfield by legislators. The Conference was hailed as "an excellent medium for mutual cooperation, exchange of views and sharing of experiences in municipal government."

The Conference is now successfully conducting a semi-annual pistol shoot competition between member police departments. It also sponsors an annual dinner.

Subjects discussed last year were beautification of the Chicago and North Western railroad right-of-way, group purchasing, Cook county comprehensive zoning ordinance, Weller creek drainage, noise abatement, DAMP wate commission, pending legislation and many others.

Two villages have been negotiating the construction of an incinerator for joint use. A teletype system for police departments has been studied. An annual meeting with state legislators is held.

"The Conference has provided an excellent place for the exchange of ideas and information among its members," observes Rolling Meadows Mayor John J. Woods, president.

HE POINTED to a recent meeting's agenda, citing its variety of topics — code and ordinance revision, voting machines, curfew laws, solicitors' licenses and Sunday store hours.

The creation of the Conference has been lauded by many. Its importance is probably best expressed by Paul Opperman, executive director of the Northeastern Illinois Metropolitan Area Plannig commission, who said:

"No planning activities of any scope can be successful unless they are based upon the support of strong local governments. The Northwest Municipal Conference has this support and will be instrumental in the orderly growth of the area it serves." (B8

Motorists Flee Scene

Abandon Injured in Hit-and-Run Wrecks

Three motorists on separate occasions forced three other cars off the road and disappeared down northwest suburban roads, leaving injured in their wake, state police report.

Leon D. Gotowka, 43, of 7000 Hanover, Hanover Park, was driving down Illinois 19, about a mile and a half west of U.S. 45 on May 31.

Gotowka told police that a second car came along, swerved into his lane, nudging his vehicle, causing him to swerve, go off the road and collide.

POLICE investigated and learned that Gotowka's car had swerved, then proceeded across the road into the oncoming lane, striking a guard rail, then zigzagged across to the other side to strike a second guard rail.

The injured driver was taken to Elmhurst hospital. He was charged driving too fast for conditions. Damage to his car was listed as $300. The other car and its driver were not found.

In a second accident on June 4 at 7:10 p.m., Wayne A. White, 28, of Box 19, Pope blvd., Prairie View, attempted to pass a car on Illinois 68.

This happened about 1½ miles east of U.S. 12. White said he was run off the road by the second car and his vehicle struck a concrete abutment.

BOTH HE and Lucille White 24, of the same address, were injured and taken to the Northwest Community hospital. Damage to the car was listed as $650.

A third motorist, Elaine Friedman, 33, of 7522 N. Keeler, Skokie, was westbound on Willow road, three miles south of Illinois 68 and a mile east of Illinois 21.

It was 1:45 p.m. on June 1. The driver told police she was forced off the roadway by an unknown motorist, lost control of the car on the soft shoulder of the road, crossed the road and struck a guardrail.

The injured driver was taken to Lutheran General hospital. Not injured were two passengers, Fern Abeles, 35, of 7500 Kedvale, Skokie, and Mildred Walter, 7534 Kedvale, Skokie.

TWO CARS, both loaded with teenagers, collided in an accident at 1:25 a.m. June 4 on U. S. 12 at about a half-mile north of Illinois 53.

Sandra Senescu, 19, of 6327 N. Fairfield, was pulling out of a driveway at this point to make a left turn, and according to state police, she failed to yield right of way to a second car, driven by John W. Van Schoyck, 21, of 229 N. Lincoln, Park Ridge.

In the Senescu car, the driver was the only one injured. Passengers in her car included: David Mollkoy, 18, of 808 Lakeside, Chicago; Carolyn Suess, 19, of 2939 Ardmore, Chicago, and John Londos, 18, of 15 E. Erie, Chicago.

The driver in the second car was uninjured, but two of the three passengers were: they are Valerie Wasmund, 20, of 1595 Ashland, Park Ridge, and Frank. Tefman, 418 Meacham, Park Ridge. A third passenger, Holly Le Feyre, 19, of 1865 Sherman, Evanston, was unhurt.

THE INJURED were taken to Northwest Community hospital. Damage to the car was listed at $500. Driver of the first car was charged with failure to yield right of way.

On the same U.S. highway, at the County line road, a mile north of 53, the night before at 8 p.m., Billy J. Taylor, 34 of 419 Oakwood rd., Wauconda, was traveling north, coming out of a private driveway.

A car, driven by Ellen Velat, 50, of 5211 Congress, Chicago, collided with the Taylor car.

Both the second motorist and her passenger, Russell G. Boyd, 62, of the same address were injured and taken to the Northwest Community hospital.

STATE police charged Taylor with failure to yield, since he had not stopped at the curb when pulling out of the driveway, and of driving under the influence of liquor. Damage to each car was listed as $600.

A chase by state police of a speeding car ended in disaster for the speeder, according to Trooper Richard Anderson.

The fleeing car was driven by Gilbert A. Gaffga Jr., 18, of 7336 Balmoral, reported speeding down U.S. 14, a half block west of U.S. 45 at 3:11 a.m. on June 4.

Gaffga's car, going south, had just completed the curve, when he lost control of the car, jumped the curb and struck a fire hydrant. Both he and one passenger, Raymond J. Malczynski, 19, of 7615 Hortense, Chicago, were injured and taken to Lutheran General hospital.

A SECOND passenger, Donald Soucek, 20, of 7645 Norwood, was uninjured. Police listed damage to the fire hydrant as $500 and damage to the car as $300. Gaffga was charged with speeding.

Mrs. Otto Miller, 74, of 1796 Rand rd., Des Plaines, was taken to Lutheran General hospital in a state of shock on June 4 at 4:10 p.m.

Her husband, Otto, 76, was turning left, while traveling north on U.S. 45 at Euclid, a half mile south of Illinois 21, when another car struck it.

The second car was driven by Robert J. Blaski, 30, of 4956 Lee, Skokie. Blaski's car was reported to have left 153 feet of skid marks. He was charged with failure to yield. Damage to each car was listed as $200.

Stanley R. Kraus, 61, of 902 N. Winchester, Chicago, was driving down U. S. 12 at Illinois 53 at 10 a.m. on June 1.

WHEN HE attempted to stop for a red light, he told state police, his car skidded and ran into the traffic signal pole.

Injured, he was taken to the Northwest Community hospital. Damage to his car was $300, and he was charged with damaging state property.

STATE police charged Taylor with failure to yield, since he had not stopped at the curb when pulling out of the driveway, and of driving under the influence of liquor. Damage to each car was listed as $600.

A chase by state police of a speeding car ended in disaster for the speeder, according to Trooper Richard Anderson.

The fleeing car was driven by Gilbert A. Gaffga Jr., 18, of 7336 Balmoral, reported speeding down U.S. 14, a half block west of U.S. 45 at 3:11 a.m. on June 4.

Gaffga's car, going south, had just completed the curve, when he lost control of the car, jumped the curb and struck a fire hydrant. Both he and one passenger, Raymond J. Malczynski, 19, of 7615 Hortense, Chicago, were injured and taken to Lutheran General hospital.

A SECOND passenger, Donald Soucek, 20, of 7645 Norwood, was uninjured. Police listed damage to the fire hydrant as $500 and damage to the car as $300. Gaffga was charged with speeding.

Mrs. Otto Miller, 74, of 1796 Rand rd., Des Plaines, was taken to Lutheran General hospital in a state of shock on June 4 at 4:10 p.m.

Her husband, Otto, 76, was turning left, while traveling north on U.S. 45 at Euclid, a half mile south of Illinois 21, when another car struck it.

The second car was driven by Robert J. Blaski, 30, of 4956 Lee, Skokie. Blaski's car was reported to have left 153 feet of skid marks. He was charged with failure to yield. Damage to each car was listed as $200.

Stanley R. Kraus, 61, of 902 N. Winchester, Chicago, was driving down U. S. 12 at Illinois 53 at 10 a.m. on June 1.

WHEN HE attempted to stop for a red light, he told state police, his car skidded and ran into the traffic signal pole.

Injured, he was taken to the Northwest Community hospital. Damage to his car was $300, and he was charged with damaging state property.

Sen. Graham Steering State Remap Program

by JOHNSON KANADY

Once every ten years in Springfield there falls to one man a task of compromise and accomplishment that requires the sensitive approach of a family physician, and the iron-willed determination of a can't-lose quarterback.

This session the man is Sen. John A. Graham (R-Barrington), who as chairman of the senate elections committee and of its subcommittee on reapportionment, must steer through a plan to remap Illinois congressional districts.

This year the legislators must not only draw new boundaries; they have to cut out one district, and hence one sitting congressman.

Graham, one of the few sitting legislators who does not have Potomac fever (He is in Rep. Marguerite Stitt Church's disrict), was given the tough committee assignment by Republican policy makers headed by Sen. Arthur J. Bidwell (R-River Forest) and Sen. Everett R. Peters (R-St. Joseph) even though he is a first termer in his second legislative session.

REASON HE was picked was his solid Republican record plus his ability to see through Democratic bluffs.

Also playing a role in his selection was his location in the strongly Republican country towns area. He has lived up to expectations. Tireless, he has divided his time between Springfield and Washington to work out agreements, not only with GOP congressmen, but with Democratic congressmen who will almost certainly lose one seat when the final reapportionment plan is adopted.

Sen. Graham does not buy the theory that there is a hopeless stalemate and that all the congressmen will be elected at large in 1962. He is a strong believer in the benefits of compromise, and while he holds a strong hand for the Republican party, he is available and attentive to Democratic arguments.

Further he is meticulous in detail and has avoided the pitfalls which have beset some Democratic plans, such as leaving out two whole counties in one proposed map, and putting O'Hare airport in two different districts in another map.

Sen. Arthur R. Gottschalk (R-Park Forest) successfully engineered two measures having to do with what he calls smut literature" through the senate last week. The bills now go to the house, where Rep. Edwin A. McGowan (R-Harvey) will handle them.

THE MEASURES, by changes in statutes now existing, place the whole program of cutting down on pornographic and obscene literature on more firm constitutional grounds, and drastically increase penalties for violations of the law.

For example, a second offense in the sale of smut would become a felony (now a misdemeanor) under the proposed law, and would make the sellers subject to fines ranging up to $5,000 and prison terms up to three years.

The smut industry has been termed a $5 billion a year racket. Curbing it runs close to dreaded censorship, but the Gottschalk plan seems to skirt this peril and is gaining support in the legislature.

Rep. Terrel E. Clarke (R-Western Springs) has accepted the chairmanship of a special joint house-senate committee to prepare a draft of an amendment the revenue article of the state constitution. Hearings began last week, with Sen. Seymour Fox (D-Chicago) as vice chairman.

PROGRAM FOR the committee, one of the most important groups at work in the general assembly, is to draw together the various plans for revenue revision into one plan that will be acceptable and can get the necessary two thirds vote to put it on the 1962 ballot. It is no easy chore.

Gov. Kerner has been for such an amendment but seems to be weakening insofar as this session is concerned. It remains, nevertheless, a key to the whole problem of state and local finance.

Ravinia Festival Coupon Books Out

Such exciting new features as the premier appearance of conductor Paul Hindemith, and the return of popular favorites such as the New York City Ballet, will give selling ammunition this year to the Chicago and suburban women of the Ravinia Festival women's coupon book committee. They hope to set a record for the sale of Ravinia coupon books this year.

The coupon books, which sell for $16, effect a saving of $5 on 12 coupons which may be used for admission to Ravinia or for the purchase of reserved seats in the pavilion.

MRS. THOMAS J. Boodell of Winnetka is general chairman of Ravinia's women's coupon book committee. Her co-chairmen are Mrs. Arthur M. Long of Evanston and Mrs. Curtiss M. Frank of Lake Forest.

Mrs. Arthur Franzen and Mrs. Charles L. Kimball, co-chairmen of the Arlington Heights-Mt. Prospect committee, have announced that these Arlington Heights-Mt. Prospect women already are busy contacting prospective coupon book purchasers: Mrs. William DeHuszar, Mrs. Rolland Franzen, Mrs. Robert McCullagh, and Mrs. John W. Staples Jr.

VIRGINIA TERRACE

Eric, son of Betty and Carl Bloom, 1345 N. Illinois, was 4 June 2 and celebrated at a Memorial day barbecue party. Present were his brothers, Marty and Lars, sisters, Cheryl and Wendy, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sven Dahlberg, Arlington Heights, and Mr .and Mrs. Elmer Bloom, Roselle.

The birthday celebration was held early, as Wendy was graduated the evening of June 2 from the kindergarten class at St. Peter Lutheran church. Her family, including her maternal grandparents, viewed the ceremonies.

Other Terrace children graduating that evening were Marilyn Donath, Susan Parks and Diane Simmons.

A surprise birthday celebration planned and carried out by her sister, Patricia, was held last Saturday afternoon for Sheila, daughter of Adele and Frank Yore, 1260 N. Illinois. Upon her return from an early morning cookout, Sheila was greeted by Kathy McNamara, Judy Almdale, Cindy Cates, Pamela Koenig, Ruth Broderick and Kerry Lloyd, all of whom proceeded to enjoy a scavenger hunt and games.

With a party for family and friends in the offing, Dennis, son of Florence and Max O'Brien, 1405 N. Race, was content to celebrate his graduation from the eighth grade last Sunday with his parents, sister, Donna, and paternal grandmother, Mrs. Marie O'Brien, Mount Prospect, by dining at the New Villa Venice restaurant, Northbrook, and returning home for graduation cake. They all attended the exercises that evening at St. James Catholic church.

DOUG, son of Lena and Lee Duss, 1322 N. Race, made his first communion last Sunday in Our Savior Lutheran church, Arlington Heights. Present for the occasion were his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Tibbits and Mrs. William Schubert, all of Mason City, Iowa. Their 4-day sojourn here also provided for a good visit, plus a sightseeing tour of Chicago.

Virginia Arnold, 1410 N. Race, until recently president of the Wilson school PTA was duly honored at a dinner at Campbell's Hearthstone restaurant, Palatine. Concluding the occasion was the presentation to Virginia of a remembrance gift and past-president's pin.

Other Terrace guests at the dinner were Joan Donath, Polly Herbert, Cathy Gunnison, Betty Cech, Shirle Husted, Mina Shields and Phyllis Fluhrer.

The "sweet 16" birthday of Marcia, daughter of Kathy and Don Munk, 1230 N. Race, was celebrated May 28 when the family, including her brothers, Richard and Terry, and best fiend, Beverly Kay, Hasbrook, had dinner at the Kenilworth restaurant, Chicago. The occasion was further highlighted by the fact that Marcia herself drove from Arlington Heights to Chicago, a feat not easily accomplished in the city's heavy traffic.

Terry was a graduate last Sunday from the eighth grade at St. James Catholic school.

THE ANNUAL cocktail party held for RCA employees, was attended by Sandy and Dave Yates, 1522 W. Oakton, May 25 in the Gold Room of the Congress hotel, Chicago. They, together with their guests, went on to enjoy dinner out at Jim Saines' restaurant and a tour of the Rush st. night spots.

Because vacation periods couldn't coincide, Homer Adkins, 1247 N. Chicago, was forced to leave his family behind when he recently enjoyed a trip "home" to Charleston, W. Va., to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Adkins. His 10-day sojourn included a side fishing trip with his dad to Elkview, W. Va. They had fabulous luck.

Friends and neighbors of Bunny and Bill Reinhardt, 1414 N. Illinois, and their sons, John and Jamie, wished them luck and happiness in their new home at 106 S. Albert, Mount Prospect.

Ellen, 6, daughter of Marge and Dick Frisbie, 1512 W. Oakton, has returned home from a 2½-week visit with her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Frisbie, Tulsa, Okla. She just had time to tell about her exciting moments before the family saw Ann and Tommy off for a visit of their own.

A post Memorial day visit was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. George Watson, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., as they spent three days here with their daughter and son-in-law, Mary Ann and John Geer, 1515 Clarendon, and grandchildren, Nancy Jo, Barbara and Laura Jean.

FRANCIS, son of Myrtle and George Lilly, 1426 N. Race, was recently bestowed the sacrament of first communion at services conducted in St. James Catholic church by Rev. John Lane. A luncheon was held in honor of the occasion, and present to congratulate Francis were his grandparents, godparents and other close friends of the family.

Another son, George, 9, June 6, celebrated his birthday Sunday by attending an archery tournament with his family. The day was made complete at a supper party with his brothers, Francis and John, sisters, Rosemary, Susan, and Mary Elizabeth, great grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Vokoun, grandmothers, Mrs. Clara Sheber and Mrs. Florence Lilly, and uncle, Ken Sheber, Chicago.

Another Terrace lad interested in archery is Scott, son of Marion and Edward Nielsen, 1252 N. Illinois, and so it was that he, together with his brother, Bradley, and several friends, enjoyed an afternoon of archery shooting in the Nielsen yard May 29, in partial celebration of Scott's ninth birthday. After trying their skills, the boys also shared his birthday cake and ice cream.

June 2 was moving day for Carolyn and Bill Schrader, 1342 N. Race, and their children, Lisa and "Chipper." Their friends and neighbors wish them well in their new home on the east coast, the result of a company transfer.

SANDY AND Bruce Mullins, 1415 N. Illinois, played host to Terrace neighbors, Betty and Joe Badali, at a Memorial day barbecue supper. After the children, Michael, Kevin and Marianne Mullins and John and Vicki Badali were down for the night, the couples played cards.

Sunday afternoon, prior to graduation exercises at St. James Catholic church, Louise, daughter of Marga and John Wilmot, 1240 N. Race, was honored at a buffet dinner party by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Adelaine Wynn, sister, Mrs. Gail McCabe, nephews, Rick and John, niece, Susan, all of the Terrace, and other relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Price, Mr. and Mrs. George Wilmot, the Michael Postilion family and Mrs. Agnes Steib, Chicago.

Marva Kuhl, 1518 Clarendon, entertained the following bridge club members last night: Mary Louise Burkhardt, Jane Coleman, Eileen Brown, Mary Funk, Rita Talaber, Pearl Trummer, and Kathleen Dunne, Ridge Park.

Graduation ceremonies at St. James Catholic church were held last Sunday evening, so a dinner party in honor of Beverly, daughter of Florence and Ed Paul, 1215 N. Race, was held Saturday night for the family and friends. Special wishes were extended by her brother, Edward, sister, Mary Beth, and maternal grandfather, K. Deveikis, Cicero.

Mary Beth, 6, who was confined with a broken arm appreciated being remembered by all of the neighbors with cards and thoughtful gestures. Florence adds that, in spite of their youth, the children displayed an unusual amount of gentleness and understanding of the situation, and are to be complimented.

WANDA and Ed Abel, 1200 N. Chicago, and their daughter, Connie, recently moved back to their home at Wonder Lake. Although they weren't long time Terrace residents, Connie especially will be missed by their neighbors.

An open house was held Sunday afternoon at the home of Marion and Grover Hartig, 1444 N. Race, in honor of their son, Tommy, who graduated from the eighth grade classes of St. James Catholic school. Special guest was his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Kathryne McCray, Chicago, who extended good luck wishes along with his sister, Kathleen, brother, Michael, and other relatives.

The Hartigs have had good reason to be proud of Tommy, as he was recently judged the best essay writer of the eighth grade boys at St. James' and was chosen the winner of the 1961 Essay contest sponsored by the Knights of Columbus-Holy Rosary council, which involved winners from two other schools. A dinner in honor of the occasion was held recently at Brandts restaurant, Palatine, and Tommy was bestowed a trophy and a transistor radio for his efforts. (A

VIRGINIA TERRACE

Eric, son of Betty and Carl Bloom, 1345 N. Illinois, was 4 June 2 and celebrated at a Memorial day barbecue party. Present were his brothers, Marty and Lars, sisters, Cheryl and Wendy, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sven Dahlberg, Arlington Heights, and Mr .and Mrs. Elmer Bloom, Roselle.

The birthday celebration was held early, as Wendy was graduated the evening of June 2 from the kindergarten class at St. Peter Lutheran church. Her family, including her maternal grandparents, viewed the ceremonies.

Other Terrace children graduating that evening were Marilyn Donath, Susan Parks and Diane Simmons.

A surprise birthday celebration planned and carried out by her sister, Patricia, was held last Saturday afternoon for Sheila, daughter of Adele and Frank Yore, 1260 N. Illinois. Upon her return from an early morning cookout, Sheila was greeted by Kathy McNamara, Judy Almdale, Cindy Cates, Pamela Koenig, Ruth Broderick and Kerry Lloyd, all of whom proceeded to enjoy a scavenger hunt and games.

With a party for family and friends in the offing, Dennis, son of Florence and Max O'Brien, 1405 N. Race, was content to celebrate his graduation from the eighth grade last Sunday with his parents, sister, Donna, and paternal grandmother, Mrs. Marie O'Brien, Mount Prospect, by dining at the New Villa Venice restaurant, Northbrook, and returning home for graduation cake. They all attended the exercises that evening at St. James Catholic church.

DOUG, son of Lena and Lee Duss, 1322 N. Race, made his first communion last Sunday in Our Savior Lutheran church, Arlington Heights. Present for the occasion were his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Tibbits and Mrs. William Schubert, all of Mason City, Iowa. Their 4-day sojourn here also provided for a good visit, plus a sightseeing tour of Chicago.

Virginia Arnold, 1410 N. Race, until recently president of the Wilson school PTA was duly honored at a dinner at Campbell's Hearthstone restaurant, Palatine. Concluding the occasion was the presentation to Virginia of a remembrance gift and past-president's pin.

Other Terrace guests at the dinner were Joan Donath, Polly Herbert, Cathy Gunnison, Betty Cech, Shirle Husted, Mina Shields and Phyllis Fluhrer.

The "sweet 16" birthday of Marcia, daughter of Kathy and Don Munk, 1230 N. Race, was celebrated May 28 when the family, including her brothers, Richard and Terry, and best fiend, Beverly Kay, Hasbrook, had dinner at the Kenilworth restaurant, Chicago. The occasion was further highlighted by the fact that Marcia herself drove from Arlington Heights to Chicago, a feat not easily accomplished in the city's heavy traffic.

Terry was a graduate last Sunday from the eighth grade at St. James Catholic school.

THE ANNUAL cocktail party held for RCA employees, was attended by Sandy and Dave Yates, 1522 W. Oakton, May 25 in the Gold Room of the Congress hotel, Chicago. They, together with their guests, went on to enjoy dinner out at Jim Saines' restaurant and a tour of the Rush st. night spots.

Because vacation periods couldn't coincide, Homer Adkins, 1247 N. Chicago, was forced to leave his family behind when he recently enjoyed a trip "home" to Charleston, W. Va., to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Adkins. His 10-day sojourn included a side fishing trip with his dad to Elkview, W. Va. They had fabulous luck.

Friends and neighbors of Bunny and Bill Reinhardt, 1414 N. Illinois, and their sons, John and Jamie, wished them luck and happiness in their new home at 106 S. Albert, Mount Prospect.

Ellen, 6, daughter of Marge and Dick Frisbie, 1512 W. Oakton, has returned home from a 2½-week visit with her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Frisbie, Tulsa, Okla. She just had time to tell about her exciting moments before the family saw Ann and Tommy off for a visit of their own.

A post Memorial day visit was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. George Watson, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., as they spent three days here with their daughter and son-in-law, Mary Ann and John Geer, 1515 Clarendon, and grandchildren, Nancy Jo, Barbara and Laura Jean.

FRANCIS, son of Myrtle and George Lilly, 1426 N. Race, was recently bestowed the sacrament of first communion at services conducted in St. James Catholic church by Rev. John Lane. A luncheon was held in honor of the occasion, and present to congratulate Francis were his grandparents, godparents and other close friends of the family.

Another son, George, 9, June 6, celebrated his birthday Sunday by attending an archery tournament with his family. The day was made complete at a supper party with his brothers, Francis and John, sisters, Rosemary, Susan, and Mary Elizabeth, great grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Vokoun, grandmothers, Mrs. Clara Sheber and Mrs. Florence Lilly, and uncle, Ken Sheber, Chicago.

Another Terrace lad interested in archery is Scott, son of Marion and Edward Nielsen, 1252 N. Illinois, and so it was that he, together with his brother, Bradley, and several friends, enjoyed an afternoon of archery shooting in the Nielsen yard May 29, in partial celebration of Scott's ninth birthday. After trying their skills, the boys also shared his birthday cake and ice cream.

June 2 was moving day for Carolyn and Bill Schrader, 1342 N. Race, and their children, Lisa and "Chipper." Their friends and neighbors wish them well in their new home on the east coast, the result of a company transfer.

SANDY AND Bruce Mullins, 1415 N. Illinois, played host to Terrace neighbors, Betty and Joe Badali, at a Memorial day barbecue supper. After the children, Michael, Kevin and Marianne Mullins and John and Vicki Badali were down for the night, the couples played cards.

Sunday afternoon, prior to graduation exercises at St. James Catholic church, Louise, daughter of Marga and John Wilmot, 1240 N. Race, was honored at a buffet dinner party by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Adelaine Wynn, sister, Mrs. Gail McCabe, nephews, Rick and John, niece, Susan, all of the Terrace, and other relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Price, Mr. and Mrs. George Wilmot, the Michael Postilion family and Mrs. Agnes Steib, Chicago.

Marva Kuhl, 1518 Clarendon, entertained the following bridge club members last night: Mary Louise Burkhardt, Jane Coleman, Eileen Brown, Mary Funk, Rita Talaber, Pearl Trummer, and Kathleen Dunne, Ridge Park.

Scientists are predicting the possibility of broadcasting messages and pictures to a person's inner consciousness, bypassing the eye, ear and other sensory nerves.

Now, this might seem 'way out' to most folks, but it is already possible to stimulate the brain by electromagnetics without touching the human body. It is just a matter of learning how to control the magnetic field for human reception.

For High Schools

Two Administrative Appointments Made

Two administrative posts for Arlington-Prospect district 214 were filled Monday night when the high school board named two Arlington high teachers for promotion.

Selected as assistant curriculum director was Roderick H. McLennan, present chairman of the Arlington high mathematics department.

The post of director of guidance at Prospect high school will be filled by Clarence A. Feiereisel, present counselor at Arlington high.

THE POST OF assistant curriculum director is new and was recently created by the board. During the 1961-62 school year McLennan will hold the post on a half-time basis at an extra cost of $900.

At the opening of Forest View high school in September, 1962, McLennan will undertake full-time duties.

Feiereisel replaces Arthur C. Serfling, who resigned recently to accept an administrative post in his local school system.

Feiereisel first came to Arlington high school in 1952 as a student teacher. After receiving his bachelor of science degree in education from the University of Illinois, Feiereisel served for two years in the Army. He became a member of the Arlington faculty in September, 1955. He has worked at both the Arlington and Prospect buildings during his service with district 214.

IN 1957-58 Feiereisel took a year leave of absence to gain his master degree in education from the University of Illinois.

McLennan was first employed by district 214 in 1949. For three years he served as sophomore class chairman. As a result of some experimental work in the teaching of plane geometry McLennan was offered a position at New Trier in 1953. In 1954 he returned to Arlington high to accept the position of mathematics department chairman.

In addition to his high school work, McLennan teaches durin the summer at Northwestern University and acts as consultant in math for the State Superintendent's office. He is a member of the board of the Illinois council of Teachers of Mathematics.

McLENNAN IS author of a textbook in plane geometry which is currently being revised for the second edition. He also has written two pamphlets in the field of modern math and solid geometry.

McLennan received his bachelor's degree from Iowa State Teachers college, Cedar Falls, in 1949. He was awarded his master's degree at Northwestern university in 1953.

Sound Fee Is Waived for CC

The Arlington Heights village board voted 5-0 Monday to waive a $25-a-day sound equipment fee to permit the Chamber of Commerce to vocally publicize its July 4 "Boating Bonanza" promotion.

In a letter to the board, Robert Y. Paddock, chamber president, said the organization's financial condition prohibited the payment of the loud speaker fee. In granting the request, the board noted that Sunday use of the speaker would be denied.

Increase in Sewer Size

Only after they were assured further flooding of basements would be avoided did Arlington Heights trustees approve an increase in the size of storm sewer for Dryden pl. Monday.

Enlargement of the sewer's diameter was recommended by Village Manager L. A. Hanson, who observed the size increase would not—to his knowledge—cause more flooding.

But Trustee William Sauer requested a "professional engineering" opinion on the matter. Village Engineer Norman Toberman told Sauer and other board members that the suggested increase represented "no greater possibility of flooding."

The subject was approached when Hanson recommended the Dryden sewer be upped from 24 to 30 inches between Oakton and Frederick, from 27 to 33 inches from Frederick to Euclid, and from 36 to 42 inches under Euclid.

He estimated cost of the increase at $13,000. Installation of the sewers is being financed by the new St. Viator high school, Hanson pointed out. The village will only pay for the cost of increasing the size.

Development of C. H. Taylor's subdivision immediately north of the high school will bring about a demand for more storm sewer outlets, Hanson reasoned.

$12,000 Lot Purchase Approved by Auditors

Wheeling township board of auditors Tuesday night authorized the purchase of a 40 ft. lot adjoining the township building, 1818 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, for $12,000.

The lot is to be used for parking and to facilitate future expansion plans.

Auditor Russell Conklin questioned the need of "that much parking space" and indicated that the board might be better advised to spend the $12,000 and $3,000 necessary to blacktop the lot on the proposed township garage.

TOWNSHIP Supervisor A. C. Peters pointed out that primary objective of the purchase was to allow for future expansion, although there were now many meetings for which present parking facilities are inadequate.

Peters also indicated that the building would be even more in demand by civic organizations in the future. "We would be short sighted not to buy now and plan ahead," he opined.

"The lot purchase will give 40 additional feet, and we won't feel fenced in," Peters continued, pointing out that the property line presently comes to about one foot from the township building.

Owner of the property is Marvin H. Rodewald, who has offered a sales contract but does not want to consummate the deal until after January 19, 1962.

THE BOARD agreed to these terms, expressing satisfaction with the price. "It's $300 a frontage foot," Peters emphasized. "I don't know any other property on Northwest hwy. that we can buy for that price."

THERE WAS NO vote on the proposal, the board merely exercising a resolution passed at the annual town meeting in April.

In other board business the auditors studied plans for a new township garage to be built on Hintz rd., east of Buffalo Grove rd. Bids are to be taken on the proposed construction, which has a $35,000 price ceiling.

Budget for the road and bridge fund for the 1961-62 fiscal year is now available for inspection at the township office. Road superintendent Oscar Everson has asked for an appropriation of $176,400.

Shoplifter Sentenced

A part time employee of Topps Super City in Rolling Meadows pleaded guilty to shoplifting before Police Magistrate Robert Casey Tuesday night.

Robert Eaton, 23, 1117 Hawthorn, Arlington Heights, was fined $25 and put on a year's probation. He was apprehended by a store detective Sunday as he went to his car in the parking lot after work.

Value of items, mostly baby clothes, he had on his person at the time was about $10. He gave police permission to search his apartment, where another $7 worth of items were found.

Since it was a state law that had been broken rather than a city ordinance, James Mackin, city attorney, volunteered to represent Eaton without fee.

Still unsolved is another larceny case which occurred in the shopping center parking area. Charles Smith, 2815 Owl, reported a television repair satchel containing tubes valued at $350 was stolen from his truck.

Train TV Cameras On Phone Offices

Residents of Arlington Heights who pass by Illinois Bell Telephone company's business office at 106 W. Eastman st. are getting a behind-the-scenes look at how the company's operators handle more than 7,000 calls daily.

Monday the company turned on a closed circuit television camera. All this week and next it will be focused on the operators. The public can view the operators at work on television sets located in the business office and at the Red Owl food store, 212 W. Northwest hwy.

"Even though all Arlington Heights telephones are on the dial system, the company needs more than 105 trained operators to handle local, long distance, emergency and special assistance calls," explained Mrs. Frances Bauman, the company's chief operator.

SO RESIDENTS can become familiar with the operators' responsibilities, the company is installing a series of telephones in the office and at the Red Owl. When picked up, the phones tell the story of the operators' work.

Phones will also be situated in the two places for those who wish to make an appointment for a private tour of the company's offices.

"We know many people are curious about what happens in the telephone operating room," Mrs. Bauman said. "We hope to show folks how emergency, long distance, credit card, overseas and other calls are handled."

Operators will be "on camera" for two weeks, beginning Monday.

For High Schools

Two Administrative Appointments Made

Two administrative posts for Arlington-Prospect district 214 were filled Monday night when the high school board named two Arlington high teachers for promotion.

Selected as assistant curriculum director was Roderick H. McLennan, present chairman of the Arlington high mathematics department.

The post of director of guidance at Prospect high school will be filled by Clarence A. Feiereisel, present counselor at Arlington high.

THE POST OF assistant curriculum director is new and was recently created by the board. During the 1961-62 school year McLennan will hold the post on a half-time basis at an extra cost of $900.

At the opening of Forest View high school in September, 1962, McLennan will undertake full-time duties.

Feiereisel replaces Arthur C. Serfling, who resigned recently to accept an administrative post in his local school system.

Feiereisel first came to Arlington high school in 1952 as a student teacher. After receiving his bachelor of science degree in education from the University of Illinois, Feiereisel served for two years in the Army. He became a member of the Arlington faculty in September, 1955. He has worked at both the Arlington and Prospect buildings during his service with district 214.

IN 1957-58 Feiereisel took a year leave of absence to gain his master degree in education from the University of Illinois.

McLennan was first employed by district 214 in 1949. For three years he served as sophomore class chairman. As a result of some experimental work in the teaching of plane geometry McLennan was offered a position at New Trier in 1953. In 1954 he returned to Arlington high to accept the position of mathematics department chairman.

In addition to his high school work, McLennan teaches during the summer at Northwestern University and acts as consultant in math for the State Superintendent's office. He is a member of the board of the Illinois council of Teachers of Mathematics.

McLENNAN IS author of a textbook in plane geometry which is currently being revised for the second edition. He also has written two pamphlets in the field of modern math and solid geometry.

McLennan received his bachelor's degree from Iowa State Teachers college, Cedar Falls, in 1949. He was awarded his master's degree at Northwestern university in 1953.

Sound Fee Is Waived for CC

The Arlington Heights village board voted 5-0 Monday to waive a $25-a-day sound equipment fee to permit the Chamber of Commerce to vocally publicize its July 4 "Boating Bonanza" promotion.

In a letter to the board, Robert Y. Paddock, chamber president, said the organization's financial condition prohibited the payment of the loud speaker fee. In granting the request, the board noted that Sunday use of the speaker would be denied.

Increase in Sewer Size

Only after they were assured further flooding of basements would be avoided did Arlington Heights trustees approve an increase in the size of storm sewer for Dryden pl. Monday.

Enlargement of the sewer's diameter was recommended by Village Manager L. A. Hanson, who observed the size increase would not—to his knowledge—cause more flooding.

But Trustee William Sauer requested a "professional engineering" opinion on the matter. Village Engineer Norman Toberman told Sauer and other board members that the suggested increase represented "no greater possibility of flooding."

The subject was approached when Hanson recommended the Dryden sewer be upped from 24 to 30 inches between Oakton and Frederick, from 27 to 33 inches from Frederick to Euclid, and from 36 to 42 inches under Euclid.

He estimated cost of the increase at $13,000. Installation of the sewers is being financed by the new St. Viator high school, Hanson pointed out. The village will only pay for the cost of increasing the size.

Development of C. H. Taylor's subdivision immediately north of the high school will bring about a demand for more storm sewer outlets, Hanson reasoned.

$12,000 Lot Purchase Approved by Auditors

Wheeling township board of auditors Tuesday night authorized the purchase of a 40 ft. lot adjoining the township building, 1818 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, for $12,000.

The lot is to be used for parking and to facilitate future expansion plans.

Auditor Russell Conklin questioned the need of "that much parking space" and indicated that the board might be better advised to spend the $12,000 and $3,000 necessary to blacktop the lot on the proposed township garage.

TOWNSHIP Supervisor A. C. Peters pointed out that primary objective of the purchase was to allow for future expansion, although there were now many meetings for which present parking facilities are inadequate.

Peters also indicated that the building would be even more in demand by civic organizations in the future. "We would be short sighted not to buy now and plan ahead," he opined.

"The lot purchase will give 40 additional feet, and we won't feel fenced in," Peters continued, pointing out that the property line presently comes to about one foot from the township building.

Owner of the property is Marvin H. Rodewald, who has offered a sales contract but does not want to consummate the deal until after January 19, 1962.

THE BOARD agreed to these terms, expressing satisfaction with the price. "It's $300 a frontage foot," Peters emphasized. "I don't know any other property on Northwest hwy. that we can buy for that price."

THERE WAS NO vote on the proposal, the board merely exercising a resolution passed at the annual town meeting in April.

In other board business the auditors studied plans for a new township garage to be built on Hintz rd., east of Buffalo Grove rd. Bids are to be taken on the proposed construction, which has a $35,000 price ceiling.

Budget for the road and bridge fund for the 1961-62 fiscal year is now available for inspection at the township office. Road superintendent Oscar Everson has asked for an appropriation of $176,400.

Shoplifter Sentenced

A part time employee of Topps Super City in Rolling Meadows pleaded guilty to shoplifting before Police Magistrate Robert Casey Tuesday night.

Robert Eaton, 23, 1117 Hawthorn, Arlington Heights, was fined $25 and put on a year's probation. He was apprehended by a store detective Sunday as he went to his car in the parking lot after work.

Value of items, mostly baby clothes, he had on his person at the time was about $10. He gave police permission to search his apartment, where another $7 worth of items were found.

Since it was a state law that had been broken rather than a city ordinance, James Mackin, city attorney, volunteered to represent Eaton without fee.

Still unsolved is another larceny case which occurred in the shopping center parking area. Charles Smith, 2815 Owl, reported a television repair satchel containing tubes valued at $350 was stolen from his truck.

Residents of Arlington Heights who pass by Illinois Bell Telephone company's business office at 106 W. Eastman st. are getting a behind-the-scenes look at how the company's operators handle more than 7,000 calls daily.

Monday the company turned on a closed circuit television camera. All this week and next it will be focused on the operators. The public can view the operators at work on television sets located in the business office and at the Red Owl food store, 212 W. Northwest hwy.

"Even though all Arlington Heights telephones are on the dial system, the company needs more than 105 trained operators to handle local, long distance, emergency and special assistance calls," explained Mrs. Frances Bauman, the company's chief operator.

SO RESIDENTS can become familiar with the operators' responsibilities, the company is installing a series of telephones in the office and at the Red Owl. When picked up, the phones tell the story of the operators' work.

Phones will also be situated in the two places for those who wish to make an appointment for a private tour of the company's offices.

"We know many people are curious about what happens in the telephone operating room," Mrs. Bauman said. "We hope to show folks how emergency, long distance, credit card, overseas and other calls are handled."

Operators will be "on camera" for two weeks, beginning Monday.

Thousands of flags will decorate the Palatine Plaza, featuring the Avenue of Flags where symbols of the principal countries of the world will be displayed. A color guard in full dress uniform from Glenview Naval Air Station will provide an official touch to the national holiday observance.

Executives of the Western Land corp. expect village officials to be on hand and participate in the opening ceremonies at 9 a.m.

Three automobiles will be given away during the three-week opening. Other prizes in the weekly drawings, for which no purchase is necessary, are bicycles, radio and television receivers, baskets of groceries and other items.

ELLSWORTH Johnson, manager of the center for Western Land corp., said his company gave much serious consideration to sites all over the west and southwestern portions of the country before choosing the Palatine area.

The main purpose of the recently - organized company, according to Johnson, is the development of shopping centers in the western half of the United States.

Central offices of the developing firm are in Minneapolis. Western Land is negotiating for other centers in the Twin Cities, Los Angeles, St. Louis, Denver, Dallas and elsewhere to add to Palatine Plaza.

STORES TO open in Palatine Plaza include Kroger's Sherwin - Williams, Montgomery Ward, J and S Men's and Boy's Wear, Western Tire and Auto, Kresge, Powder Puff Beauty Salon, Palatine Currency Exchange, R & S Shoe Store, Mode O'Day Fashions, Andes, Candies Byhring Jewelry, Pankau Pharmacy, National Tea and Clean City, which will contain the Coin Cleaners, Coin Launderette and Jupiter Cleaners.

Set in the Heart Of a Growing Area

The Chicago area's newest community shopping center — Palatine Plaza at the junction of U.S. 14 and Illinois 53 — will open formally June 14.

Palatine Plaza, in the heart of the area's fastest-growing section, is the first of a nationwide network of shopping centers and other commercial properties planned by a group of executives from nationally-known retail firms, including several from the Chicago business community.

While workmen are grading and paving the parking areas, installing lighting, finishing exteriors and putting the final decorators' touches on interiors, many of the merchants are already moving in stock in preparation for the grand opening of Palatine's first shopping center.

Store hours during the opening period will be the same as those for regular business: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays.

THE 25 STORES will provide "the finest shopping conveniences in the region," according to Charles N. Schieb, president of Western Land Corp., Minneapolis-headquartered firm that owns and operates the center.

Several major national chains will open stores in Palatine—S. S. Kresge Co., the Kroger Co., Mode O'Day, Montgomery Ward, National Tea Co., Sherwin-Williams Co., Shoe Corp. of America, Standard Oil Co. and Western Tire Auto Stores, Inc.

Kresge has the largest space in the center, 24,000 feet of floor area. Kroger is next with 19,648, while third in line is National Tea's 15,070 square feet.

Locally-known retailers who will occupy space in the 113,000 square feet of retail selling area include Andes Candies, Inc., Byhring Jewelry, Currency Exchange, Des Plaines, Jupiter Cleaners, J & S Men's and Boys', Pankau Pharmacies, Inc., Powder Puff Salon de Coiffure, and Scher Laundromat.

Tenant representatives on the steering committee, which is drawing plans for opening of the Plaza, are S. G. Leftwich, Kresge district manager, Marvin Goldsmith, Kroger advertising manager; F. A. Pankau, president of Pankau Pharmacies; Joseph Hubert, Shoe Corp. district manager, and Charles Sostrin, J & S partner.

Also on the steering committee are Robert Betten of Chicago, shopping center consultant, and Ellsworth Johnson of Minneapolis, Western Land's operating manager.

Schieb, an attorney whose business background includes executive positions with Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and Montgomery Ward, said that the principal aim of Western Land is to acquire sites and to construct, develop, manage and promote shopping centers and other commercial properties to specifications that fit the requirements of qualified merchants and retailing chain organizations.

Palatine Plaza is the first property acquired by Western Land.

Still less than a year old, Western Land "plans to offer retail operations a new opportunity for long-range success," Schieb explained.

"Selection of sites and accomplishment of all the various phases of deveopment will be based on the retailers' immediate needs and expansion plans," he continued.

"The chaos produced by simply reacting to superficial business conditions will therefore be erased.

"Western Land, in effect, becomes an additional corporate arm of the explaning economy—an arm that is in constant touch with sound potential and the method of turning it into progress and profit."

Chicago-related executives in Western Land besides Schieb are Chairman of the Board Leslie F. Crews, Secretary-Treasurer Lester W. Lincke and Director Robert A. Seidel.

Crews, senior vice president of Gamble-Skogno, Inc., Minneapolis, and president of Gamble-Skogmo Acceptance Corp. (the financing company for more than 2,200 retail stores), spent 21 years with Montgomery Ward, where he was vice president and director of research. He also formerly owned a Chicago management consulting firm.

LINCKE HAS been in the chain store field a quarter century and was comptroller for the J and R Motor Supply Company when that firm operated 55 retail stores in the Chicago area. He, too, was an executive of Wards, being engaged in the planning, selection and development of retail store locations.

Seidel, who resigned January 1 as executive vice president of Radio Corporation of America (RCA), is a former executive of Wards and W. T. Grant Co., another nationwide retailing chain.

Other officers are Vice President Paul J. McCann, Director Robert W. Brezina, Henry A. Chandler, financial consultant, and Horace R. Hansen, assistant secretary and general counsel. (SS

"Selection of sites and accomplishment of all the various phases of deveopment will be based on the retailers' immediate needs and expansion plans," he continued.

"The chaos produced by simply reacting to superficial business conditions will therefore be erased.

"Western Land, in effect, becomes an additional corporate arm of the explaning economy—an arm that is in constant touch with sound potential and the method of turning it into progress and profit."

Chicago-related executives in Western Land besides Schieb are Chairman of the Board Leslie F. Crews, Secretary-Treasurer Lester W. Lincke and Director Robert A. Seidel.

Crews, senior vice president of Gamble-Skogno, Inc., Minneapolis, and president of Gamble-Skogmo Acceptance Corp. (the financing company for more than 2,200 retail stores), spent 21 years with Montgomery Ward, where he was vice president and director of research. He also formerly owned a Chicago management consulting firm.

LINCKE HAS been in the chain store field a quarter century and was comptroller for the J and R Motor Supply Company when that firm operated 55 retail stores in the Chicago area. He, too, was an executive of Wards, being engaged in the planning, selection and development of retail store locations.

Seidel, who resigned January 1 as executive vice president of Radio Corporation of America (RCA), is a former executive of Wards and W. T. Grant Co., another nationwide retailing chain.

Other officers are Vice President Paul J. McCann, Director Robert W. Brezina, Henry A. Chandler, financial consultant, and Horace R. Hansen, assistant secretary and general counsel.

Elmhurst College Plans 10 Year Development Program

ELMHURST COLLEGE CAMPUS as it will appear with the addition of four new major buildings planned during the "Decade of Development" is shown in this architect's sketch. The new structures will be a science building (1), a student center (2), a fine arts building (3), and a field house (4). The college's development plans were outlined recently by Erwin J. Goebel, president of the board of trustees, at an academic convocation on the campus.

Campus Expansion Plans Announced

Plans for a 10-year development program for Elmhurst college were announced recently at an academic convocation at the Hammerschmidt Memorial chapel on the college campus.

Objectives of the program include four new buildings, endowment funds and annual support for faculty salaries, and funds for student aid and teaching equipment.

The convocation of students, faculty members and administrators, board members, alumni, parents and community leaders heard the program outlined by Erwin J. Goebel, chairman of the board of trustees of the college. "Realization of the program by 1971, the centennial year of Elmhurst college, will lay the foundation for Elmhurst's second century of service to American education," he said.

NEW COLLEGE buildings proposed in the Elmhurst "Decade of Development" program are a science building, a student center, a fine arts building, and a field house.

Improved facilities for undergraduate science education, such as will be provided by the proposed new science building, were stressed by college officials as a key to the nation's scientific manpower needs.

The new building to house the departments of biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics, and geography will cost approximately $750,000 for construction and equipment. It will be erected at the southeast corner of the campus near the intersection of Prospect and Elm Park avenues, according to present plans.

A $600,000 Student Center building will provide central dining, recreational, and student activity facilities. It will serve to unify campus extra-curricular life, ranging from student publications to student government and social activities. The building will meet the needs both of resident students and Elmhurst's large body of commuting students for whom there presently exist no adequate lounge and recreational facilities.

The proposed location of the building is at the east end of the central campus hall.

A CAMPUS and community cultural center will be provided by a $500,000 building devoted to drama, music, and the graphic arts. It will house studios, exhibition rooms, workshops, rehearsal rooms, a concert hall and a theatre. The northeast corner of the campus, at the intersection of Prospect ave. and Alexander blvd., has been selected as the site for the Fine Arts building.

Area needs for an adequate facility for major indoor sports events and large assemblies will be met by construction of a field house at an estimated cost of $500,000. The college currently lacks space and facilities to serve a growing student body in programs of physical education, intercollegiate athletics, and intramural sports. Its location will be at the west end of the college playing field.

Faculty, student and community service objectives include increasing endowment through the establishment of professorial chairs, establishment of additional scholarships, establishment of book and equipment funds which may be used to provide additional volumes in the library, and modern classroom equipment.

In the area of community services, funds will be solicited for the speech correction clinic and for the support of the evening session of the academic program.

A PROGRAM of annual giving from friends and alumni in support of development of the educational program will provide the foundation for realizing Elmhursts's long-term objectives, Goebel stated.

"At the same time," he said, "we shall carry on a never-ending program of interpreting the significance of Elmhurst to all who have the means to invest in the special projects: the buildings and the endowment programs, which require substantial capital contributions. Rather than launching an intensive fund-raising campaign, we are in effect presenting an investment opportunity for creating the future."

Since 1871, Elmhurst college has served changing needs of church and society. Originally founded to offer pre-seminary training for ministers, it subsequently developed programs to serve broadening educational needs — first as a junior college and then as a four-year coeducational college of arts and sciences.

Elmhurst's most rapid period of growth in enrollment, faculty, and facilities has taken place in response to the demands of the post-World War II era. One-third of its present physical plant has been constructed in the last decade, including Hammerschmidt Memorial chapel, a multipurpose building dedicated in the fall of 1959, and a new dormitory, to house 136 men, which is now being completed.

DURING THIS decade, also, the community service programs of the college have been greatly broadened and increased, including the development of an evening session of the college now serving some 580 students representing 150 area firms, and the establishment of an outstanding speech correction clinic, the only such facility serving Chicago's west suburban area.

The college is affiliated with and draws much of its support from the Evangelical and Reformed Church. Of the 878 students enrolled, 46 per cent are members of the United Church of Christ (merger of Evangelical and Reformed and Congregational Christian Churches). (A14

Dr. MacDougall conducted a news writing clinic for staff members last Saturday as the first in a series of editorial workshops planned for Paddock Publications.

The first in a unique series of special editorial clinics was held Saturday for staff members of Paddock Publications, Inc.

Dr. Curtis D. MacDougall, professor of journaism at Northwestern university, conducted a news writing clinic for reporters and editors of the 14 suburban newspapers published by Paddock.

HE EVALUATED the news writing and reporting in the papers, reviewed basic skills, offered suggestions for improvement, and discussed techniques of interpretative reporting.

"Your obligation is to your reader," he reminded staff members. "A reporter must give the reader what he needs to know."

Dr. MacDougall said the move to the suburbs affected "more people and more institutions than any other force" in the country's recent history. It has brought the country to "the era of suburban journalism," he said. "Today the suburbs are where the people are. It is also where their problems, their homes, their businesses are."

The suburban press must be zealous about fighting secrecy in government at the local levels, the editors were told. There should be more interpretative reporting because "people can't know too much. In a world growing constantly more complex, it's more important than ever" to offer more than surface reporting.

ALTHOUGH praising much of the news writing, Dr. MacDougall said there "wasn't enough use of tiebacks, sidebars and background." The complex story ought always to be placed in perspective and its meaning given "depth and breadth."

"It is not recommended that editors and reporters become missionaries or social workers," he told staff members. "It is just suggested that they make the most of their opportunity as editors and reporters; that they keep pace with the racing demand for meaningful presentation and meaningful news."

Dr. MacDougall is editorial consultant to the Suburban Press Foundation, Inc., which made his services available to Paddock as a member of the association.

THE NEWS writing clinic was initiated by Charles E. Hayes, executive editor, who said it was designed as a "refresher" for staff members, all of whom are journaism graduates with professional experience.

"We are anxious to raise our professional standards. and improve the quality of our editorial product," explained Hayes. "These workshops are part of an overall effort to keep abreast of the changing needs and tastes of our suburban readership."

Future sessions will cover press law, photojournalism, reporting of government, and feature writing.

These clinics are believed to be the first developed by a suburban newspaper operation as an in-service training program. (A-14

Toastmasters Seek to Spare the Ear!

Clubs Nurture 'Spoken Word'

by BOB CUMMINS

"As a man speaks, so is he."

The author of this maxim was that Roman cat, Publilius Syrus, a foremost dramatist of the time of Julius Caesar.

His words have become the motto of Toastmasters International, an organization which has several vigorous clubs in the northwest suburban area, including those at Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

As the name Toastmasters might suggest, the clubs deal in spoken words.

TO THE SCOFFER who might ask, "Do we need more talk?" the answer would be that the clubs aim to improve the public speaking ability of their members, and that they deem brevity important to a good speech.

So one of the aims of Toastmasters is to cut down on the number of words which assail the ear of modern man!

Toastmasters International now has more than 80,000 members organized in 3,319 clubs. It was founded in 1932 by Ralph G. Smedley of Santa Ana, Calif., who is still active in the leadership of the organization.

What accounts for the growth and popularity of Toastmasters?

The answer would seem to be that members get something from the organization that helps them. And they have a good time, too.

TOASTMASTERS has a strong appeal, first of all, to those whose earning ability is improved by effective talking, such as the salesman and business executive.

Many nationally known business firms have sponsored Toastmasters clubs or encouraged their organization among their employes.

But the appeal of Toastmasters extends also to persons who think good speaking ability will help them in the activities of some other club, veterans 'organization, or community group.

Elks, Kiwanis, Farm Bureau, Knights of Columbus and the American Legion are among the organizations in which units of Toastmasters have been organized.

OF COURSE, Toastmasters do not have a monopoly on speech training, but they believe their methods have a couple of distinct advantages.

One of these is the opportunity for practice before an audience which each member has. Some clubs meet weekly, but those in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect meet semi-monthly.

At the least, every member will speak briefly at each meeting. In addition, several will speak at greater length. Toastmaster clubs limit their membership to 30 full members and 10 associate members so that each will be on his feet and talking frequently.

The second particular advantage to the Toastmaster type of training which its members have priased is the continual criticism and self-criticism which goes on.

JUST AS EACH member gives a speech in his turn, so does he act as critic of speeches by his fellow members. Each meeting has a "chief evaluator" and several "assistant evaluators."

The founder, Ralph Smedley, has written a 37-page booklet on speech evaluation, which serves as a guide to Toastmasters. The booklet is sub-titled "Constructive Criticism."

Persons who cannot take criticism are likely to drop out of their Toastmasters club before long.

THIS IS NOT A typical Toastmaster in standard speaking garb, but simply a typical Toastmaster speaking. An educational vice president assigns a theme to each meeting. The theme this meeting was "Beatnik Night." Beatnik Stan Wanberg reads a "beat" poem.

President of the Arlington Heights club, which was organized in 1952, is Al Hawkes, of 411 N. Carlyle pl.

The typical program over which he presides will begin with an invocation, given by one of the club members.

A 15-minute "warm-up" period may follow, during which each member will talk for 30-seconds on a pre-selected topic. Recent topics have been "My Most Impressive Circus Experience" and "What Toastmasters Has Failed to Do for Me."

AN EDUCATIONAL talk may follow, and then the business meeting, before the club listens to the main speeches of the evening.

One of the most interesting features of the meeting usually comes between delivery of the main talks and criticism. This feature is called "Table Topics."

The topic for the evening is a surprise to members. Each must rise and give his impromptu comments on the topic, with a one-minute time limit.

The "Table Topic" may be a newspaper clipping on which each member must comment. On other occasions the "Topicmaster" has brought a variety of small objects which he hands to each member for a brief comment. The home office has suggested, for "Table Topics," the best jokes of the week, "if kept clean."

A THEME FOR each meeting is chosen by the Arlington Heights club. In recent months the club has had "Confession Night," "Peace Night," "Ungrateful Night," and "Open Mind Night."

"Beatnik Night" this spring was one of the club's most successful affairs. Toastmasters dressed, acted and talked like beatniks. They sat cross-legged on "pads" and pale yellow floor lamps gave the only light. During "Table Topics" the topicmaster accused members of conformist acts and members gave their defense.

Said President Hawkes: "Our purpose was to provide an atmosphere in which Toastmasters might throw off inhibitions which beset them in a more formal meeting and perhaps, discover some hidden skills of communication."

The club prints a newsletter called "Windjammer."

Toastmasters International sponsors a speech contest for its members each year. The contest progresses through the club level to area and district contests, and thus on to the competition that produces an international champion.

Toastmasters organization stretches around the world—from Ethiopia to Greenland. And there are even clubs afloat—on the USS Saratoga and the USS Everglades. One of the most interesting statistics revealed by the organization's directory is that England has only about a dozen clubs, while Scotsmen have formed about 75!

A SIMILAR organization, called the Time and Gavel club, has been formed in Rolling Meadows this year. Tom Baranski, 3907 Wren lane, is its president, and the group has found a meeting place in the Community room of the Rolling Meadows bank, which it will use for the first time at its next meeting June 12.

Baranski says the Time and Gavel club may apply for a charter as a Toastmasters club when its membership has grown larger.

An Arlington Heights man, Jim Kulze, of 203 S. Gibbons ave., is area four governor of Toastmasters. Area four includes the clubs at Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Crystal Lake and O'Hare Field. Kulze reports lively interest everywhere, with Des Plaines taking in eight new members in the last month, and Crystal Lake five.

"If membership goes beyond the limits set in by-laws," Kulze reports, "steps are taken to form a new club."

SUCH NEW clubs seem likely.

As Toastmasters international says: "Fellow citizens follow men who think clearly, express themselves effectively and know how to lead groups."

Father's Day

'Dear Old Dad' Gets His Day on June 18

Dad has had his ups and downs throughout history.

He hasn't always been the popular guy who will be honored on Father's Day, Sunday, June 18.

Back in the Stone Ages, for example, the "head man" was a tyrant. As he grew older, one of his sons usually disposed of him in a fierce hand-to-hand battle, and then "took over" the family.

The first known tribute to fatherhood was made by Elmesu of Babylon. It was written on a clay tablet about 2000 B.C., and implored the gods to grant his father "good health and enduring days."

In Biblical times, it was considered a crime, punishable by death, for a son to disagree with his father. Early Romans called down the curses of the ancestral Numina, or family gods, on children who cut themselves loose from parental authority.

AMONG THE ancient Greeks, when a son was old enough to marry, his father selected his wife for him — with no questions asked! The same belief in father's matrimonial wisdom was held in India where children were betrothed in childhood, and sometimes a young man was not permitted to unveil his bride until after the wedding ceremony.

But Indian women had their revenge. An odd law decreed that if a father got into debt, his wife could sell him into slavery to pay off the creditors.

And in the African Sudan, father definitely comes out second best. After bearing five children a wife may return to her parents leaving Pop to look after the kiddies.

On Palau Island in the South Seas, the ruling matriarch can have any male executed if he even disturbs her contemplation.

AND NEAR Sumatra, Dad has mother-in-law problems right from the start. He has to go live with his wife's family. And if this weren't enough, children take their mother's name and only daughters inherit property.

In the United States, statistics show that women own an ever-increasing portion of the national wealth. Pop's in danger of becoming the "forgotten" man some sociologists believe.

But while he may be shorn of his tyrannical powers, the annual outpouring of affection with gifts and sentimental greeting cards shows that Pop's place in his family's heart is stronger than ever.

Suburbs, Citizens Ask Billboard Laws

THIS HUGE ENTRANCE to Rainbow Ridge housing development has been erected on River road north of Des Plaines. The same concern has numerous smaller signs and more flags strung at about 50-yard intervals along the side of the road.

'Avenues' of Advertising?

by TOM EDWARDS

Billboard bedecked highways have long been, and still are, the object of much protest from various citizen groups. But for the first time, controlling legislation may be passed by the Illinois legislature.

Support for such laws has been voiced by Gov. Kerner's administration strongly endorsing extensive billboard legislation.

Two bills are now pending; one has been reported as having already passed the House of Representatives.

Protests on use of highways as "avenues of advertising" have been vehement not only from Illinois, but from throughout the country. Reasons are both aesthetic, and for safety.

THE FEDERAL government has gone so far as to provide grants ranging in the millions to states which pass legislation essentially forbidding signs other than traffic directions along inter-state highways.

Most incorporated areas already have extensive ordinances dealing with signs, and every community in the northwest Chicago suburban area has some form of regulation.

Controls over the vast unincorporated areas of the state are much less. However, Cook county does have regulations, though generally less extensive than in incorporated areas.

One of the most flagrant examples of billboard advertising in the northwest suburbs is in Wheeling. Its only limitation as to billboards is that they not pose a traffic hazard, which is left to the judgment of the building inspector, and that they be sound structures engineeringwise.

SIGNS ADVERTISING Hollywood Ridge subdivision alone number about 50 in and about the narrow confines of that village. They line the major arteries and greet visitors at major village entrances. The same company also has billboards scattered throughout the northwest area.

Also, several other builders have erected large billboards on Wheeling thoroughfares, advertising homes not only in Wheeling but in Buffalo Grove, Aptakisic and other outlying communities. There are nearly 100 billboards (excluding signs on business establishments) along about three miles of roadway through the heart of Wheeling.

Along Dundee road there are about 30 signs about three or four square feet in area and spaced about 50 to 75 yards apart, all advertising one subdivision. There are many others reaching sizes of about 150 to 200 square feet in area.

There have been no complaints to the Wheeling board of trustees, it was reported, so it might be assumed that they are not considered detrimental to the appearance of the community. On the other hand, the Wheeling junior woman's club and the Jaycees have adopted village beautification as a major project for the oncoming year.

HOWEVER, former school board member Seth Butler complained about "false advertising" on one billboard.

Such strings of signs of the Burma Shave variety are also found in the unincorporated areas outside Des Plaines and Mount Prospect, where there is a seemingly ceaseless repetition of billboards almost entirely advertising housing developments.

A mammoth sign labeled "Chicagoland's Exposition" fronts the entrance to one housing development on River road just north of Des Plaines. It must be fully 30 feet high at one point, and about 75 yards long, being almost a huge fence rather than a billboard. Also, the developer has flags and smaller signs aternating in a series along the highway.

At the intersection of Higgins, Oakton and Busse roads (highways 83 and 72) there are seven large billboards advertising eight concerns. They are Meadowdale Homes, Park Ridge Inn, Rolling Meadows shopping center and the My Shop in the center, Elk Grove village, Elk Ridge Villa, Brickman Manor homes, Hollywood Ridge homes and the Des Plaines First National Bank. Most are lighted.

IN SUPPORT of billboards, statistics have been presented to show that signs actually make driving safer as long as they do not block vision. Business lobbies claim that rather than distracting the driver, signs keep him alert by breaking the monotony of miles of roadway.

This point has been fairly well ascertained, especially on expressways where drivers sometimes go into a "trance."

But aesthetic minded groups point out that scenic landscaping serves the same purpose of breaking the monotony.

Also, business proprietors state that their signs serve a purpose in directing motorists to facilities. Result in some states has been a compromise, severly limiting the number, size and location of signs, but allowing enough to advise the motorist what to expect in the way of lodging, restaurants, etc.

MAIN OPPOSITION to legislation regulating billboards in Illinois has come from downstate, according to representative Bernard Peskin of Northbrook, who advocates regulation. He noted that "farmers get substantial rent" for billboards on their property, and that there is a strong lobby working for billboards.

Peskin said it was a bipartisan issue, with upstaters generally for it.

Cook county regulations forbid billboards in residential areas and within 300 feet of the tollway, it was reported. Also, size is regulated according to the zone and amount of frontage of the property. Sign permit fees range from $10 to $40.

AN EXCEPTION is that builders may erect signs up to a 12-foot square area in residentially zoned areas, one source said. But this regulation only went into effect in March, 1960, and many signs are larger. Also the size may be increased with special permission of the county zoning board.

Municipalities and villages have been faced with the problem of sign competition, store owners seeking to erect bigger and more outstanding signs than neighboring businesses. The result could be a maze of signs, presenting a gaudy Las Vegas appearance.

But strict limitations have generally been imposed with the intent of keeping an orderly appearance while still allowing proper, equally fair advertising.

Shopping centers, recognizing problems and expense of a galaxy of signs, have often imposed self-restrictions, usually that signs must be flush with and not projecting either outward or upward from the buildings. Thus, the sign is limited to the size of the building itself.

NEARLY EVERY northwest area village forbids billboards in residential areas, excepting real estate signs. And most have a building permit fee of 10 cents per square foot for non-lighted billboards and 20 cents for lighted ones.

Rolling Meadows evidently has the strictest regulations. It permits no billboards in the community unless special permission is given by the Zoning Board of Appeals. And then the sign may remain for only six months unless further special permission is given by the board. Size is limited to a four by eight-feet maximum and signs on commercial buildings are only allowed on their fronts and flush with the building.

Buffalo Grove now permits billboards that advertise something for sale on the property on which the sign is located. There may be no advertising signs in residential areas except a one-foot square sign announcing a house for sale, and no signs are allowed on public rights-of-way.

BUFFALO Grove developer Al Frank favors extensive regulations of billboards, although he believes that they are one of the most effective means of advertising. "It would be the same for all" if the quantity of such advertising were cut down. He noted that he has erected many signs just to meet the competition of other builders.

Arlington Heights has a 200-square-foot maximum limitation on billboards. Village manager L. A. Hanson said, "You can imagine what shopping centers would look like" if any type of sign were allowed.

"The ideal situation is to have no overhanging signs in commercial areas, that they all be flush with the buildings," he said. This is not true of Arlington's original commercial center on Northwest highway, which is pointed to by officials of other communities as undesirable relative to signs.

(However, ordinances can not be made retroactive. Signs erected before laws are passed may remain. Therefore, to be fair, villages must sometimes continue to permit advertising they would otherwise not allow.)

Palatine's size restriction is a maximum of 12 square feet.

BOTH Palatine and Hoffman Estates have no restrictions as to the number of signs that can be placed in a given location, but both allow billboards only in commercial and industrial areas.

Hoffman Estates also does not have a size restriction, except that real estate signs in residential areas are limited to a 12-foot area. Its building inspector, architect Delbert Allison, said, "Billboards along highways should be considered very carefully if allowed at all. Also, billboards could be made much more attractive." ## Billboard Bills Before Assembly

Two bills pertaining to billboards were before the state House of Representatives last week.

One would forbid billboards within 500 feet of scenic areas; at intersecions where view' of traffic woud be impeded; and also within 100 feet of and facing a church, school or residence without the owner's consent,

However, where commercial establishments exist, signs could be erected in the above limitations.

A SECOND bill would restrict billboards aong interstate highways, which would make the state eligible for a 4.4 million dollar increase in federal grants.

A duplicate interstate highway billboard regulations bill was killed in the House committee on roads and bridges recently.

One report ascribes the new bill to Rep. William A. Redmond (D., Bensenville), and another to Rep. Jack Bairstow (D.-Waukegan). A-14

WHEELING NURSERY has lined its Milwaukee avenue frontage in the village with signs as above.

SERIES OF SMALL BILLBOARDS such as are shown above along Dundee road in Wheeling are employed by many housing developers. They can be found in nearly any unincorporated area in the Northwest suburbs, and sometimes, as in Wheeling, in incorporated areas. There are about 11 in this series, plus two large billboards (foreground and in the distance) erected by the same builder.

LARGE BILLBOARD in the background erected by developers in Wheeling on Dundee road has been cited by a former school board member for false advertising. The sign reads, "Hollywood Ridge Jr. High School On This Site." Since the sign is on property owned by the developer, the school district has attempted to blot it out with a sign of its own on school property. It reads, "Jack London Junior High School, an investment of the citizens of Community Consolidated School District 21," then lists the architect and contractors.

The students see many topographical features of the state during the flights. They study soil conservation methods, highway systems, and industrial layouts. They also see farm patterns, residential subdivisions and such points of interest as Milwaukee, Fond du Lac, Oconomowoc, Waukesha, and smaller towns in between.

Suburbs, Citizens Ask Billboard Laws

RAINBOW RIDGE

THIS HUGE ENTRANCE to Rainbow Ridge housing development has been erected on River road north of Des Plaines. The same concern has numerous smaller signs and more flags strung at about 50-yard intervals along the side of the road.

'Avenues' of Advertising?

by TOM EDWARDS

Billboard bedecked highways have long been, and still are, the object of much protest from various citizen groups. But for the first time, controlling legislation may be passed by the Illinois legislature.

Support for such laws has been voiced by Gov. Kerner's administration strongly endorsing extensive billboard legislation.

Two bills are now pending; one has been reported as having already passed the House of Representatives.

Protests on use of highways as "avenues of advertising" have been vehement not only from Illinois, but from throughout the country. Reasons are both aesthetic, and for safety.

THE FEDERAL government has gone so far as to provide grants ranging in the millions to states which pass legislation essentially forbidding signs other than traffic directions along inter-state highways.

Most incorporated areas already have extensive ordinances dealing with signs, and every community in the northwest Chicago suburban area has some form of regulation.

Controls over the vast unincorporated areas of the state are much less. However, Cook county does have regulations, though generally less extensive than in incorporated areas.

One of the most flagrant examples of billboard advertising in the northwest suburbs is in Wheeling. Its only limitation as to billboards is that they not pose a traffic hazard, which is left to the judgment of the building inspector, and that they be sound structures engineering-wise.

SIGNS ADVERTISING Hollywood Ridge subdivision alone number about 50 in and about the narrow confines of that village. They line the major arteries and greet visitors at major village entrances. The same company also has billboards scattered throughout the northwest area.

Also, several other builders have erected large billboards on Wheeling thoroughfares, advertising homes not only in Wheeling but in Buffalo Grove, Aptakisic and other outlying communities. There are nearly 100 billboards (excluding signs on business establishments) along about three miles of roadway through the heart of Wheeling.

Along Dundee road there are about 30 signs about three or four square feet in area and spaced about 50 to 75 yards apart, all advertising one subdivision. There are many others reaching sizes of about 150 to 200 square feet in area.

There have been no complaints to the Wheeling board of trustees, it was reported, so it might be assumed that they are not considered detrimental to the appearance of the community. On the other hand, the Wheeling junior woman's club and the Jaycees have adopted village beautification as a major project for the oncoming year.

HOWEVER, former school board member Seth Butler complained about "false advertising" on one billboard.

Such strings of signs of the Burma Shave variety are also found in the unincorporated areas outside Des Plaines and Mount Prospect, where there is a seemingly ceaseless repetition of billboards almost entirely advertising housing developments.

A mammoth sign labeled "Chicagoland's Exposition" fronts the entrance to one housing development on River road just north of Des Plaines. It must be fully 30 feet high at one point, and about 75 yards long, being almost a huge fence rather than a billboard. Also, the developer has flags and smaller signs aternating in a series along the highway.

At the intersection of Higgins, Oakton and Busse roads (highways 83 and 72) there are seven large billboards advertising eight concerns. They are Meadowdale Homes, Park Ridge Inn, Rolling Meadows shopping center and the My Shop in the center, Elk Grove village, Elk Ridge Villa, Brickman Manor homes, Hollywood Ridge homes and the Des Plaines First National Bank. Most are lighted.

IN SUPPORT of billboards, statistics have been presented to show that signs actually make driving safer as long as they do not block vision. Business lobbies claim that rather than distracting the driver, signs keep him alert by breaking the monotony of miles of roadway.

This point has been fairly well ascertained, especially on expressways where drivers sometimes go into a "trance."

But aesthetic minded groups point out that scenic landscaping serves the same purpose of breaking the monotony.

Also, business proprietors state that their signs serve a purpose in directing motorists to facilities. Result in some states has been a compromise, severly limiting the number, size and location of signs, but allowing enough to advise the motorist what to expect in the way of lodging, restaurants, etc.

MAIN OPPOSITION to legislation regulating billboards in Illinois has come from downstate, according to representative Bernard Peskin of Northbrook, who advocates regulation. He noted that "farmers get substantial rent" for billboards on their property, and that there is a strong lobby working for billboards.

Peskin said it was a bipartisan issue, with upstaters generally for it.

Cook county regulations forbid billboards in residential areas and within 300 feet of the tollway, it was reported. Also, size is regulated according to the zone and amount of frontage of the property. Sign permit fees range from $10 to $40.

AN EXCEPTION is that builders may erect signs up to a 12-foot square area in residentially zoned areas, one source said. But this regulation only went into effect in March, 1960, and many signs are larger. Also the size may be increased with special permission of the county zoning board.

Municipalities and villages have been faced with the problem of sign competition, store owners seeking to erect bigger and more outstanding signs than neighboring businesses. The result could be a maze of signs, presenting a gaudy Las Vegas appearance.

But strict limitations have generally been imposed with the intent of keeping an orderly appearance while still allowing proper, equally fair advertising.

Shopping centers, recognizing problems and expense of a galaxy of signs, have often imposed self-restrictions, usually that signs must be flush with and not projecting either outward or upward from the buildings. Thus, the sign is limited to the size of the building itself.

NEARLY EVERY northwest area village forbids billboards in residential areas, excepting real estate signs. And most have a building permit fee of 10 cents per square foot for non-lighted billboards and 20 cents for lighted ones.

Rolling Meadows evidently has the strictest regulations. It permits no billboards in the community unless special permission is given by the Zoning Board of Appeals. And then the sign may remain for only six months unless further special permission is given by the board. Size is limited to a four by eight-feet maximum and signs on commercial buildings are only allowed on their fronts and flush with the building.

Buffalo Grove now permits billboards that advertise something for sale on the property on which the sign is located. There may be no advertising signs in residential areas except a one-foot square sign announcing a house for sale, and no signs are allowed on public rights-of-way.

BUFFALO Grove developer Al Frank favors extensive regulations of billboards, although he believes that they are one of the most effective means of advertising. "It would be the same for all" if the quantity of such advertising were cut down. He noted that he has erected many signs just to meet the competition of other builders.

Arlington Heights has a 200-square-foot maximum limitation on billboards. Village manager L. A. Hanson said, "You can imagine what shopping centers would look like" if any type of sign were allowed.

"The ideal situation is to have no overhanging signs in commercial areas, that they all be flush with the buildings," he said. This is not true of Arlington's original commercial center on Northwest highway, which is pointed to by officials of other communities as undesirable relative to signs.

(However, ordinances can not be made retroactive. Signs erected before laws are passed may remain. Therefore, to be fair, villages must sometimes continue to permit advertising they would otherwise not allow.)

Palatine's size restriction is a maximum of 12 square feet.

BOTH Palatine and Hoffman Estates have no restrictions as to the number of signs that can be placed in a given location, but both allow billboards only in commercial and industrial areas.

Hoffman Estates also does not have a size restriction, except that real estate signs in residential areas are limited to a 12-foot area. Its building inspector, architect Delbert Allison, said, "Billboards along highways should be considered very carefully if allowed at all. Also, billboards could be made much more attractive." ## Billboard Bills Before Assembly

Two bills pertaining to billboards were before the state House of Representatives last week.

One would forbid billboards within 500 feet of scenic areas; at intersecions where view of traffic woud be impeded; and also within 100 feet of and facing a church, school or residence without the owner's consent,

However, where commercial establishments exist, signs could be erected in the above limitations.

A SECOND bill would restrict billboards aong interstate highways, which would make the state eligible for a 4.4 million dollar increase in federal grants.

Arlington Motel Stages Open House for Addition

A gala open house to celebrate the opening of an 18-unit addition to the Arlington motel, 948 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, was sponsored Wednesday by Pete and Barbara Craig, owners of the motel.

THE MOTEL was constructed in 1956 with 18 units, Craig explained. In 1957 he added 18 more units and in 1958 built new office facilities. The most recent addition blends with the Colonial architecture of the motel.

Craig, a veteran of the motel business, is vice president and director of the Illinois Motel association.

"Even though the open house has been held," he noted, "we cordially invite all residents of the area to stop in and take the 50 cent tour. We're proud of our business."

HE POINTED out that 80 per cent of the motel's users are businessmen who enter the village reguarly. Local residents comprise 15 per cent of its use and five per cent are attracted as they drive along the Northwest hwy.

Q. Is it proper to address the envelope of a letter to a person without using the titles, "Mr., Mrs., or Miss"?

A. Never.

Q. Am I supposed to write a thank-you note to the wife of my husband's employer who recently entertained us at a dinner party, or do I invite them to dinner in our home as repayment?

A. Neither is necessary. However, should they continue to invite you to their home and you become good friends, then return their hospitality.

Q. Upon being introduced to Miss Adams for the second time, is it all right to say, "I know Miss Adams"?

A. This would seem to sound as if it were too much trouble to make a second acknowledgment. Much better to say, "I have already had the pleasure of meeting Miss Adams."

Q. Is it permissible to eat the skin of a baked potato, and also the parsley used as a garnish?

A. If you enjoy these items, it is perfectly proper to eat them.

Q. Should birth announcements be mailed to everyone, including those whom you have already told over the telephone or in person?

A. No; only to persons whom you have not told.

Arlington Motel Stages Open House for Addition

A gala open house to celebrate the opening of an 18-unit addition to the Arlington motel, 948 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, was sponsored Wednesday by Pete and Barbara Craig, owners of the motel.

Attending the event were business, civic and social leaders of the community. Many residents also toured the new two-story addition, which raises the motel's capacity to 54 units.

Craig, a veteran of the motel business, is vice president and director of the Illinois Motel association.

"Even though the open house has been held," he noted, "we cordially invite all residents of the area to stop in and take the 50 cent tour. We're proud of our business."

HE POINTED out that 80 per cent of the motel's users are businessmen who enter the village reguarly. Local residents comprise 15 per cent of its use and five per cent are attracted as they drive along the Northwest hwy.

YMCA Day Camp Adventure To Serve 400 Youngsters

Cook-outs, carnival days and swimming instruction daily are all in store for youngsters who attend Northwest Suburban YMCA day camp this summer. "Camp Adventure," as it is called, is open to 'Y' members and non-members, as well, from the ages of 7 through 12 years.

Over 400 boys and girls will be going to "Camp Adventure" in the three 2-week periods, June 27 to July 7, July 11 to July 21 and July 25 to August 4. The youngsters attend four days each week, Tuesdays through Fridays, making an 8-day period.

THE COST IS $20 per period for YMCA members, $23 for non-members. This fee includes transportation, insurance and milk for lunch each day.

Chartered buses will pick up the campers daily at the grade schools nearest their homes and take them to Deer Grove for morning outdoor fun. Later in the day they will be transported to the new Northwest Suburban YMCA pool for swimming, both instructional and recreational. The chartered buses return the children to their pickup points at approximately 5 p.m.

BOYS AND GIRLS bring their own lunches most days, but there are also special cook-outs and other meal meal treats in the program. Fishing, nature hikes, athletics, story-telling, handicraft and group skits are all part of the fun at 'Y' day camp.

The camp is operated under direction of a professional YMCA staff with specially selected and trained counselors.

Registration may be made at the 'Y' or by calliig CY 6-3376. (AMP

Q. Is it proper to address the envelope of a letter to a person without using the titles, "Mr., Mrs., or Miss"?

A. Never.

Q. Am I supposed to write a thank-you note to the wife of my husband's employer who recently entertained us at a dinner party, or do I invite them to dinner in our home as repayment?

A. Neither is necessary. However, should they continue to invite you to their home and you become good friends, then return their hospitality.

Q. Upon being introduced to Miss Adams for the second time, is it all right to say, "I know Miss Adams"?

A. This would seem to sound as if it were too much trouble to make a second acknowledgment. Much better to say, "I have already had the pleasure of meeting Miss Adams."

Q. Is it permissible to eat the skin of a baked potato, and also the parsley used as a garnish?

A. If you enjoy these items, it is perfectly proper to eat them.

Q. Should birth announcements be mailed to everyone, including those whom you have already told over the telephone or in person?

A. No; only to persons whom you have not told.

Historic Roadster Is Displayed by Dealer

An Arlington Heights auto firm this weekend will display a shiny, bright red, four-cylinder 1917 Inter-State TR roadster.

Irving Berens, owner of Suburban Motors corp., 1824 W. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, has arranged to display the 44-year-old vehicle in his showroom all day Saturday and Sunday.

The fully operating roadster has won many prizes through appearances in the Glidden Tours, national meetings of Antique Automobile clubs, state fairs and antique shows.

"We thought residents of the Arlington Heights area would be interested to see this antique roadster," Berens said in explaining the auto's visit. He invited all residents to stop by and examine it.

A FAMILY tree of the automobile industry would show the Inter-State several branches above the first horseless carriage, it was pointed out by Hal Wadkins, general manager at Suburban Motors.

The first decade of 1900 ushered in a new century and a new invention, the gasoline buggy, which captured the public's eye and fired the mechanic's creative imagination.

Small manufacturers of the motor cars sprung up almost overnight and there were to be some 2,700 different makes of motor cars manufactured during the next 50 years. Only about a half dozen manufacturers have survived.

FOR MOTOR enthusiasts, the engine of the Inter-State has three and a half inch bore by five inch stroke with a valve-in-head. It averaged 17 miles per gallon of gasoline.

It is now more than four decades since the name and emblem of the Inter-State car faded from the scene. The name has been restored, however, with the purchase and showing of the auto by Inter-State Finance corp., Dubuque, Iowa.

Suburban Motors, opened last August, is dealer for Dodge, Dart, Lancer, Polara and Dodge trucks. (A

Board Is Unanimous In Monday's Voting

A completely unanimous session, with all resolutions and motions adopted with favorable votes of all members, marked the Arlington-Prospect school board meeting Monday night.

Th unanimous voting pattern has become "standard" with the board. It went through long controversy on votes before the recent school board election.

The board went through the major section of its agenda in recor dtime, completing the public portion of the meeting by 9:30 p. m.

AMONG THE major items approved were:

—The purchase of $294 in equipment for the reading development laboratory;

—The selection of counselors and their salaries for the school summer guidance program;

—An experimental team-teaching project for three fast English I classes at Prospect high school next fall:

—Awarded plaques to three former board members who have been replaced on the board this year; and —Purchase of almost $19,000 in equipment for the Arlington high school cafeteria and folding doors for a study-hall room.

AT THE CLOSE of the public section of the meeting, the board went into executive session to discuss salaries of school office staff and custodians, selection of an accounting firm for the coming year, selection of an assistant curriculum coordinator and the appointment of an acting director of guidance at Prospect high school.

Under state law, school boards are permitted to go into closed sessions to discuss hiring or firing of personnel and the setting of salaries. No official action may be taken at an executive meeting. Monday night a public audience of 17 persons was dismissed to permit the executive session.

Reconvening at 11:02 p. m. in open session, the board granted salary increases to the school office staff ranging from five to 15 cents per hour. Custodians were granted salary increases up to 15 cents per hour. School custodians formed a union local last week, Supt. Harold Slichenmyer announced at the meeting.

THE BOARD appointed Roderick McLennan as assistant curriculum coordinator and approved selection of Clarence Feiereisel as acting director of guidance at Prospect high school.

William Spomer, chairman of the board finance committee ,had informed the board that new state laws require the employment of certified public accountants as school auditors. The board selected Arthur Young and co., Chicago, as the official school auditors for the fiscal year July 1, 1961, to June 30, 1962.

Plaques were approved for former board members Charles E. Lockwood, Orville Rumrey and Dr. Keith Wurtz. Lockwood, former board representative from the unincorporated area, resigned in February. Rumrey and Dr. Wurtz lost their board positions in the April elections.

The experimental program in team-teaching of English I was recommended to the board b ythe education committee composed of Kenneth E. Dougan and John A. Haas.

ALTHOUGH an experimental team-teaching program had been conducted in speech during the 1960-61 school year, school officials found evaluation of the "non quantitative" material difficult. School board members appeared to feel a better evaluation could be made of a standard English I course.

Spomer urged careful evaluation, stating high school English courses throughout the country were weak according to college spokesmen.

Dougan, in urging adoption of the program, stressed the evaluation of the three team-teaching experiments — one each in science, speech and English—would enable the administration to work toward an evaluation of this technique with the aim of either adopting it as an educational policy when desired by the administration or eliminating it.

Dear Dairy

ALL ITEMS IN THIS AD FOR SALE THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY, JUNE 8, 9, 10 AT MOUNT PROSPECT STORE ONLY.

June is National Dairy Month. That's the official signal for dairy lovers to head for Hillman's. Milk is milkier, cream is creamier, and there are no "buts" about the quality of our butter. Where else but at Hillman's could you find Grade "AA" eggs . . . the royalty of the roost, so perfectly marvellous that the Government decided a Grade "A" rating just wasn't good enough! Fresh? No one can beat Hillman's for getting fresh dairy products to you fast. And when it comes to dairy products that require proper aging, like Hillman's fabulous selection of 72 cheeses . . . you can be sure that each cheese has been ripened to the peak of its perfection before it's ever offered to you. Dairy products have a tremendous range of tantalizing flavors for every taste . . . a storehouse of body-building protein, plus other vitamin and mineral benefits. Penny for penny, you get more food value from dairy products . . . and watch how much those pennies buy at Hillman's.

June Busts Out in Welcome Rash of Sociability

The busiest of the summer months is off to a running start with graduation parties, birthday celebrations and a grand assortment of good old "miscellaneous" to give impetus to the social whirl. June is truly busting out all over — in a welcome rash of sociability that is infecting almost everyone.

A triple-header farewell party that co-starred a scented hen entertained 35 residents of the 1000 block of W. Miner and the immediate vicinity Saturday night. The cooperative enterprise, given in the R. W. LeMeilleur home at 1009 W. Miner, used everyone's ingenuity, folding chairs and sundry party supplies to give the Ed Johnsons, Robert Wards and Henry Mengels an unforgettable adieu.

Skits pertaining to the future locale of each departing couple were the highlight of the evening. Harold Phillips gave a dead-pan lecture on farming for the benefit of the Ed Johnsons who will leave 1008 W. Miner for a farm near Wauconda. The "do's and don't of living by the acre" was given pseudo-seriously, received hysterically and climaxed with Phillips' presentation to the Johnsons of the hen, still soggy but sweet-smelling from a pre-party shampoo and shower.

MR. AND MRS. LeMeilleur, native Texans, directed their dramatics to Mr. and Mrs. Ward, 204 N. Kennicott, who leave this summer for a new home in the Lone Star state. A miniature oil well and authentic Texas drawls were the accompaniment to this act and the Wards are since practicing the fine points of being Texans "and proud of it."

aganda on her state's behalf.

The Harry Stanfields gave a skit, a wheel and an auto-transport to prepare the Henry Mengels, 115 N Dwyer, for their imminent move to Detroit where the wheels of industry ar due to hum, provided Mengel follows Stanfield's advice. After the free-wheeling dramatics were over, dancing and more extemporaneous speeches entertained before, after and during a late, late buffet supper. Next day it was very quiet along the block except at 1008 W. Miner. The Johnsons' hen laid an egg.

Steve, the grade school graduate son of the Johnsons will wait to celebrate his diploma event until after next week's move to the farm. Tentatively a Fourth of July party will honor him and his brother, Pete, whose third birthday is July 5.

THE EARL Rileys returned to 738 S. Mitchell from two weeks at their Lac LaBelle home in Oconomowoc, Wis., just in time to celebrate their May 29 wedding anniversary. At the beginning of the two weeks a family weekend party honored their son, Richard, and his wife on their fifth wedding anniversary, May 12.

This date also being Richard's birthday, the weekend also including Mothers day and a cousin with a May 11 birthday also being in the party, the congratulations were in great good abundance. The junior Mrs. Riley, with a birthday the following weekend, garnered a fair amount of good wishes too. The birthday cousin and family were the Robert Cowans of Palatine.

On the weekend between anniversary celebrations Mr. and Mrs. Riley hosted local friends, the Charles Pratts, for a "do nothing but enjoy the scenery" 2-day session at the lakeside house.

MR. AND MRS. William Andres, hosts at many a party, surprise and otherwise, were guests of honor Saturday night at a surprise party in their own home, 1145 N. Belmont. They observe a June 15 wedding anniversary and this year was the 20th, an event worthy of special attention in the opinion of the Andres' children, "Cooky" and Bill, and Mrs. Andres' mother, Mrs. Jacobs, also of 1145 N. Belmont.

A majority of the 55 local and Chicago area guests arrived at the Andes home while two others who "just happened by" kept Mr. and Mrs. Andres occupied in a downstairs recreation room. When "Cooky" called her mother and dad upstairs on a fictitious emergency they found the assembled friends and relatives who were awaiting them.

The anniversary couple was totally speechless, not quite tearless and, after the shock wore off, more excited than they've been since the June of 1941. Among the guests were several members of the wedding party; the best man, Robert Jacobs, Ellen Dudley, Henrietta Andres, the Don Murphys, Art Michaels and Martin Jedrys, all of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Andres were married in Chicago, moved here within a year of their marriage and now consider themselves among the "old-timers" of Arlington Heights.

MR. AND MRS. Carl Bomanz' sister and family, the Peter Wendlings of St. Louis. During their visit they were part of a surprise birthday celebration for the Wendlings' daughter, Joan, who was 21, engaged and on cloud nine about both conditions.

The party for friends and relatives was given by her parents in the Green Parrot, a fashionable restaurant in suburban St Louis. .... ......

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heiss have returned from a winter long stay in Mexico and a recent month's tour of the west. Formerly of 315 W. Vine, the Heisses dub themselves "nomads" since the acquistion of a house trailer in which they'll henceforth make their yearly winter trip to southern points. They'll summer here in their trailer home which this year is adjacent to the home of their daughter and family, the Robert Lordens of Palatine.

The Mark Rightmire family and Mrs. Rightmire's mother, Mrs. Anna Adam, all of 116 S. Walnut, were part of a family celebration in Wauconda Saturday night for Miss Ella Mae Adam who was newly graduated from high school. Mrs. Adam and her granddaughter will leave Saturay for a 10 day tour of Washington, D.C. and New York City that is to be Ella Mae's graduation present from her grandmother.

MR. AND MRS. Owen Sellers, 520 S. Chestnut, attended the graduation Sunday of their daughter, Sharon, from Illinois Wesleyan college in Bloomington and returned home with her Sunday night. Sharon's sister, Kathy, missed the auspicious occasion, having an auspicious one herself Sunday.

Kathy graduates from high school this week and was with her class for the baccalaurate service here while Mom and Dad were in Bloomington.

Carol Condon is home for the summr at 314 W. Fairview as of Sunday and the end of the school year at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Stonegate youngsters celebrating birthdays in June include Carol Ann Barton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barton, 321 S. Windsor, who will mark her eighth birthday Saturday at an afternoon party.

Carol Marie Hixon will be 8 June 9 and will give a birthday tea for 15 friends. The tea party will be fashioned after a formal tea and will be held in the children's playhouse which is an exact replica of her parents' home. Carol Marie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hixon, 218 Drury.

MRS. ROSEMARY Thompson and her daughter, Julie of Marion, Ind., are spending a week in Arlington Heights visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Thompson, 314 S. Gibbons.

Recent out-of-towm houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Koenig, 1312 Woodford, was William Breismeister of New York City.

Miss Judy Strobel arrived home Friday from Valparaiso university and will remain home during the rest of the month, after which she will spend the next two months attending the youth conference work programs in various cities throughout Michigan and Canada. Judy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Strobel, 1319 Mayfair.

POPULAR VISITOR in Arlington Heights is young Bill Lips, who jetted in from Wilmington, Del. to spend a week with Phillip Gustafson, 332 S. Windsor. Bill and his parents lived in Scarsdale for many years before moving east and he has been busy seeing all his old friends again.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Banks, 722 Mayfair, spent the past four days in New York City. where Mr. Banks was discussion leader at the meeting of the American Management association. Mrs. Banks spent one day visiting her sister, Mrs. James Pendry of Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island.

Mrs. George J. Betts, 516 S. Lincoln, returned Saturday from a 5-week trip to California. Her mother, Mrs. William J. Healy of Alameda, Cal., who had come to Arlington Heights early this spring for the April wedding of her granddaughter, Miss Carla Betts, to Theodore Geocaris, accompanied her.

They visited Carla and her husband, who have taken an apartment in San Francisco while he is stationed with the army in Presidio, and visited many relatives and friends, as California is the former home of the Betts family.

Before returning home, Mrs. Betts joined long time friends Mr. and Mrs. Corrington Bowles of Menlo Park, to spend a week at Lake Almanor on Feather river.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hoben, 645 Burton, spent the weekend in Ripon, Wis., where they attended the 25th anniversary of Mr. Hoben's graduating class reunion at Ripon college.

MICHAEL Thuerk, 737 S. Walnut, is back at school and play after a tonsillectomy that followed a few days after his May 13 birthday celebration. Thirteen neighborhood friends helped him through the fun of being 7 years old and over the worry about getting his tonsils out. Mike's not much in favor of the latter but figures "if you gotta, you might as well have a whiz-bang party first."

Miss Linda Poulos, 1225 N. # D-Day Drama Is Rehearsal for Tragedy

Mock Disaster Drill Is Held

ANOTHER VICTIM in the "mock plane crash" disaster program is being treated for injuries by a member of the Elk Grove Village Nurses club. Nurses spent three hours Saturday afternoon before the disaster applying theatrical makeup "wounds" to volunteer victims.

by LYNN MELCHER

Saturday, June 3, was D-day in Elk Grove Village.

But most residents, busy with Saturday afternoon errands, were unaware of the drama being enacted in nearby Busse Forest Preserve.

Less than one-quarter mile from the village boundaries and the heavily traveled highway intersection of Arlington Heights and Higgins rds., 130 local residents, joined by volunteers from Hoffman Estates, participated in a mock disaster program which tested the ability of Elk Grove Village to meet the problems of an emergency disaster.

THE DISASTER was labeled "airplane crash" by Lt. Marilyn Becker, United States Air Force Nurses reserve, director of the activity.

By 6 p.m. 50 volunteer casualties (whose cosmetic wounds were so convincing that one teen-age volunteer became frightened and fled) were stationed in the forest preserve.

"Crash" victims were dangling from trees, stretched prone on the ground, or wandering aimlessly through the underbrush.

One teenager lay in ominous silence, pinned by a fallen tree limb. His right leg appeared to have been amputated.

Screams and pitiable howls pierced the air.

Voices, muffled by thick shrubbery and trees, cried "Doctor!" "Nurse!" "Stretcher!" "Help me!" Others moaned or sobbed as they awaited help.

A BLONDE housewife, a teenage girl, a grandmother, and a professional sales engineer clawed through a thicket and stumbled into a clearing; they appeared dazed, glassy-eyed and vacant of thought. All were "psychos" for a three-hour period during the disaster.

Spectators listened to the screams and viewed the artificially induced injuries with mixed emotions. In a sense it was ludicrous — all these people lying around pretending to be half-dead.

Then the horror of reality banished the humor of a sunlit frolic in a forest preserve.

It COULD happen!

ELK GROVE Village and many other suburban communities are in the flight path of plane traffic at O'Hare Field.

What would you do to help if a plane did crash?

A crisp voice ordered casualties to their posts.

"Here come the nurses!" heralded a parade of medical aid.

Nurses, police, civil defense workers and volunteer firemen marched into the grove lugging first aid kits, ladders and stretchers.

Victims were given assistance in order of seriousness of injury.

Spectator assistance was enlisted to lead ambulatory patients to a main treatment and supply area while stretcher cases were given temporary medical care and then taken to a field hospital in the grove.

The "psychos" appeared with tags pinned to their clothing—"No apparent physical injuries; patient appears mentally confused and could not recite her name or address. Does not seem to know what happened. No medication ordered."

From a hodge-podge of people and equipment came order. The screams for help subsided.

AL THAT remained was to analyze the results of more than six months' study by 20 trained nurses who, in two months' time, had planned and organized the mock disaster which was so effective that the nurses themselves admitted to being slowed down in rendering treatment by initial shock at the sight of the wounded.

The effort was considered successful, with reservations, by the nurses.

"We need more practice," Nurse Barbara Anderson said, "but this is the first time a mock disaster of this kind has ever been attempted by a non-government sponsored organization.

"We feel Saturday's program was effective and well-handled. It showed us the defects as well as the positive points of our preparedness and we are already planning a second mass casualty program for next December."

THE NURSES club is participating in a 30-hour mass casualty study course under the direction of Lt. Becker.

Upon completion of course they will offer the same instruc tnaiyntoo struction to any social, civic or church organizations in the suburban area as a part of their program to develop first-aid preparedness for disaster situations.

THURS., JUNE 8, 1961

AT THE TEMPORARY field hospital nurses classified victims according to seriousness of injury and supplemented first aid given by rescue workers. The majority of the casualty volunteers participating in Saturday's "mock disaster" were local teenagers.

RESCUE WORKERS mounted ladders to free teenage victims who were caught in trees when they were thrown through the air during the "mock plane crash" in Elk Grove Village Saturday afternoon.

Free Fun and Relaxation Is In DuPage Forest Preserves

The annual flight to nature is on and DuPage county's 23 forest preserves are ready.

Boating, canoeing, sightseeing, picnicking, relaxing — small animals, flowers, trees, you'll find them all in the forest preserves.

The preserves are governed by certain regulations like those forbidding fires anywhere but in fireplaces and injuring trees, shrubs and flowers.

A MAP of the forest preserve system may be obtained from the DuPage county clerk.

Reservations for large group picnics must be made with the clerk.

CHURCHILL LAKE in Churchill forest preserve is one of several lakes open to public fishing. East branch of the DuPage river flows through the 136-acre preserve located between Lombard and Glen Ellyn. (Z

SALT CREEK flows through Fullersburg preserve, located on York road north of Hinsdale, and provides an excellent boating and canoeing facility. There are 130 acres of recreation area in Fullersburg preserve. York park, a short distance north, was first preserve in county system. (Z

OLD GRAUE MILL at Hinsdale is the only water mill in the Chicago area. It was completed in 1852 and still grinds grain which is sold to tourists. It is operated as a museum by a non-profit corporation. (Z

MILL STONES in Deer Park, an 18-acre site on Church road west of Bensenville, are remnants of a mill operated during and after the Civil War. (Z

SALT CREEK PARK, on Addison avenue between Wood Dale and Addison, can accommodate several large group picnics at once. Salt Creek, like other forest preserves, is open daily from 5 a.m. to 10 p.m. (Z

THE FIRST FLOOR of the Old Graue Mill in Fullersburg preserve houses the mill machinery; the second floor, old farm and home implements and collection of Civil War firearms, and, third floor, several period rooms. (Z

FISHERMEN can catch crappies, bass, blue gills and bullheads in Herrick Lake, located on Butterfield and Herrick roads, southwest of Wheaton. (Z

WARRENVILLE GROVE preserve, located on South Winfield road, is called one of the most scenic spots in DuPage county. An old stone mill race is the only remnant of a grist mill which once operated here. The west branch of the DuPage river flows over a dam in Warrenville grove preserve. (Z

BOATS CAN BE RENTED for fishing at McDowell Grove lake, shown here, and at Herrick Lake and Fullersburg lake, all located in forest preserves. A rock dam in McDowell creates a large water area lined with weeping willows and giant elms, one of which has a trunk nearly seven feet in diameter. (Z

You're Safe with Oil Heat: Industry Study

There have been over 10,600 gas explosions in the United States in the last three years, many resulting in death and great destruction of property, according to statistics compiled by the Oil Heat Industry.

Some 65,000,000 Americans are kept warm every winter by oil heat. Oil today, because of its great popularity in cold winter states, supplies a third more energy units than gas and three quarters more than coal and other fuels to keep all Americans comfortably, efficiently, economically and dependably warm, oil industry officials claim.

SAFELY AND comfortably asleep in a home heated by oil.

Modern automatic heat as we know it today was created by the oil industry and its record of improvement of product and equipment is not excelled by any fuel, industry spokesmen say.

TESTS BY outside experts and the University of Illinois have rated oil heating equipment equal or greater in efficiency to other fuels. In addition, heat controls on gas and oil furnaces are basically the same and thereby permit fresh, even temperature, humidity controlled heating.

Cleanliness is an important part of any heating system today. Combustion chambers of oil furnaces are sufficiently sealed so that deadly fumes, soot and smoke have but one place to go—out the chimney. Laboratory tests prove that film on windows and walls consist of 95 per cent fats and 3 per cent smoke.

THE dependability of fuel oil is evidenced by the fact that one may receive scientific weather - controlled automatic deliveries from one's choice of supplier in a never-ending supply and at no extra charge. No attenion is required on the customer's part —no worry about variation in pressure, line leaks or breaks or cold weather demand shortages, say oil heat officials.

Based on heat values, today's fuel prices and an average conversion cost, it would require more than 10 years to "pay-off" a gas conversion through anticipated heating cost savings according to oil heat authorities.

THEY point out that when a customer considers the trend of the utility fuel and fuel oil prices, it may well be that in the not too distant future the cost of a conversion may never be "made - up."

"For example," state oil heat authorities "over the last 10 years, No 2 fuel oil price has risen only 11 per cent compared with a 32 per cent increase for natural gas."

Already available as a result of extensive research programs of the oil industry are oil fired hot water heaters, combination furnace and air conditioning units and heating units which provide up to 25 per cent fuel cost savings, reports the oil industry. (BB

THEY point out that when a customer considers the trend of the utility fuel and fuel oil prices, it may well be that in the not too distant future the cost of a conversion may never be "made - up."

"For example," state oil heat authorities "over the last 10 years, No 2 fuel oil price has risen only 11 per cent compared with a 32 per cent increase for natural gas."

Already available as a result of extensive research programs of the oil industry are oil fired hot water heaters, combination furnace and air conditioning units and heating units which provide up to 25 per cent fuel cost savings, reports the oil industry. (BB

Builder Predicts Upsurge In Home Sales Is Here

Based on the results of opening weekend activities at Winston Park Northwest, Joshua A. Muss, vice president, predicts that the trend towards increased home sales is here, and anticipates that his firm will exceed 500 sales this year, a substantial increase over the last two years.

Public acceptane of the new split-level and mid-level ranch introduced at Winston Park Northwest the weekend of May 26 proved to be far greater than the results anticipated by the building firm, according to Muss.

"IN THE FIRST two days of the 4-day Memorial holiday weekend alone," Muss stated, "one in every 50 families viewing our new models for the first time purchased a home; and an additional two out of every 40 indicated great interest and plans to return for closer scrutiny. As anyone in the home building field knows, this is a fantastic percentage."

"In the early planning stages," he continued, "we decided to build somewhat lower-priced models than the first 4 offered in Unit II in order to achieve the balanced community represented in Unit I. At the same time, we were determined to offer the most house for the money while maintaining our rigid construction standards. As the models took shape we became increasingly confident that we had achieved our goal, but even we were somewhat overwhelmed by the acclaim."

The two models, each of which is available in 3 exterior elevations, are offered with VA, FHA or conventional financing.

Purchase price of the homes includes landscaping and seeding. Located within the Village of Palatine, all city improvements have been installed and paid for by the developer, and the community has full police and fire protection and garbage and snow removal service. (BB

THE EXPRESSIONS on the faces of Joshua A. Muss, right, Winston Park Northwest vice president, and sales manager James Blaeser tell the story of the successful opening weekend of two new models in the Palatine community. With one in every 50 families viewing the homes for the first time ending up as buyers, the two playfully "gift-wrapped" one of the models. Based on opening weekend activities, Muss anticipates more than 500 sales this year. (BB

It costs nearly twice as much to have a baby today as it did five years ago, when costs were $125 to $150.

Kraft Cheese Dips Have New Look

A "zip" opening aluminum can which ushers in a new era of convenience for Mrs. Housewife is being introduced nationally this month by Kraft Foods. Packed in the new can are four varieties of ready-to-use cheese dips in 8-ounce sizes.

The can has an opening pull tab device which eliminates the need for any sort of can opener, key, or lid flipper. Attached to the tab is a narrow strip of aluminum which seals the lid to the lower portion of the can.

After the can is opened, the lid may be replaced for refrigerated storage. Can bodies may be used as dessert cups or gelatin molds after their contents are consumed, Kraft said.

The four flavors are identified in the supermarket dairy case by color. The onion flavor is colored brown; blue cheese flavor, blue; dill pickle flavor, green; and bacon-horseradish flavor, 'hot orange.'

TWA's 'Muffle' Program

Suppressing Roar of Superjets Is Costly

Stop a moment and think about the deafening roar of 23,000 wild horses in mad stampede. Could such thunder be muffled?

Trans World Airlines and the air transport industry have proven that it can, but it took $50,000,000 worth of research and development and still costs TWA $1,200,000 every year. But what TWA spends to quiet its mighty SuperJets is repaid in good will from those communities the airline serves, such as Chicago's northwest suburbs.

TWA Convair SuperJets recently inagurated service to Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Indianapolis and Albuquerque. By mid-August, 21 U. S. cities will be on the routes of TWA's Boeing and Convair SuperJets.

THE CONVAIR SuperJet cruises at 615 miles an hour at altitudes up to 41,000 feet. Each of its four engines, when wide open, is capable of producing 11,200 pounds of thrust. Naturally the engines aren't operated at full power all of the time. But even when the SuperJet is throttled back, producing, say, 23,000 of its potential 46,000 horsepower, it could still rain a lot of noise down on the public as it approaches or departs airports. It could, that is, except for one thing—sound suppressors.

Historically, every advance in power has been accompanied by an increase in noise. It was so with the piston engine, and now with the jet. The sound of piston aircraft engines wasn't considered enough to justify mufflers. But the tremendous power increase of the jet necessitated development of a sound suppressor.

The supressors are the black devices attached to the rear of each jet engine. Looking at the Convair SuperJet's four suppressors from the rear, one notes that they are shaped like the petal pattern of a daisy. On TWA's larger Boeing SuperJets, the suppressors look more like clusters of organ pipes.

WITH A JET, a large mass of high velocity exhaust gas must mix with the low velocity, cooler air outside. If this mixing is confined to a small area, turbulence is high and, therefore, noise energy is high. Suppressors increase the area of mixing and accelerate the colder air, thereby reducing noise.

The aircraft industry spent $50,000,000 in developing sound suppressors. They are costly in that they increase the cost of operating the plane. Too, they are expensive to purchase, install and maintain. And suppressors sacrifice between 1 and 1½ per cent of the engines' thrust capability. This may not sound like much, but look at what it costs in dollars and cents over the course of a year.

TWA's capital investment in the suppressors amounts to almost $2,500,000. Paying this off, say over 10 years at 6 per cent interest, means payments of between $300,000 and $350,000 annually. Parts and labor for maintaining the supressors a year cost $200,000. Suppressors create drag on the plane, and an extra $663,100 worth of fuel is burned to overcome the drag. All that extra fuel takes up weight, and the plane's payload capability is reduced.

ADD ALL THIS together and one finds that the average yearly cost of suppressing the sound of TWA's 47 Boeing and Convair SuperJets is a whopping $1,200,000. And that doesn't include the $50,000,000 development cost that must also be absorbed by the airlines as they purchase aircraft.

Engineering research is producing improved sound suppression techniques, and the operating costs incurred in the interest of human comfort will be reduced with time. TWA is already modifying its ships with new suppressors that will reduce fuel consumption without increasing the noise level.

Putting these improved devices on the planes will cost an additional three-quarters of a million dollars, but TWA considers such money well spent. (BB

MUFFLING A JET engine so its powerful roar in flight won't disturb persons below requires sound suppressors like these of "daisy petal" design on a Trans World Airlines Super Jet. The suppressors, at the rear of the jet pod, reduce noise by breaking up hot exhaust gases and allowing a more gradual mixture of the hot gas and cold air outside the plane. Development of suppressors required costly reseearch, and their installation increases the expense of operating a jet airliner.

TWA's 'Muffle' Program

Suppressing Roar of Superjets Is Costly

Stop a moment and think about the deafening roar of 23,000 wild horses in mad stampede. Could such thunder be muffled?

Trans World Airlines and the air transport industry have proven that it can, but it took $50,000,000 worth of research and development and still costs TWA $1,200,000 every year. But what TWA spends to quiet its mighty SuperJets is repaid in good will from those communities the airline serves, such as Chicago's northwest suburbs.

TWA Convair SuperJets recently inagurated service to Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Indianapolis and Albuquerque. By mid-August, 21 U. S. cities will be on the routes of TWA's Boeing and Convair SuperJets.

THE CONVAIR SuperJet cruises at 615 miles an hour at altitudes up to 41,000 feet. Each of its four engines, when wide open, is capable of producing 11,200 pounds of thrust. Naturally the engines aren't operated at full power all of the time. But even when the SuperJet is throttled back, producing, say, 23,000 of its potential 46,000 horsepower, it could still rain a lot of noise down on the public as it approaches or departs airports. It could, that is, except for one thing—sound suppressors.

Historically, every advance in power has been accompanied by an increase in noise. It was so with the piston engine, and now with the jet. The sound of piston aircraft engines wasn't considered enough to justify mufflers. But the tremendous power increase of the jet necessitated development of a sound suppressor.

The supressors are the black devices attached to the rear of each jet engine. Looking at the Convair SuperJet's four suppressors from the rear, one notes that they are shaped like the petal pattern of a daisy. On TWA's larger Boeing SuperJets, the suppressors look more like clusters of organ pipes.

WITH A JET, a large mass of high velocity exhaust gas must mix with the low velocity, cooler air outside. If this mixing is confined to a small area, turbulence is high and, therefore, noise energy is high. Suppressors increase the area of mixing and accelerate the colder air, thereby reducing noise.

The aircraft industry spent $50,000,000 in developing sound suppressors. They are costly in that they increase the cost of operating the plane. Too, they are expensive to purchase, install and maintain. And suppressors sacrifice between 1 and 1½ per cent of the engines' thrust capability. This may not sound like much, but look at what it costs in dollars and cents over the course of a year.

TWA's capital investment in the suppressors amounts to almost $2,500,000. Paying this off, say over 10 years at 6 per cent interest, means payments of between $300,000 and $350,000 annually. Parts and labor for maintaining the supressors a year cost $200,000. Suppressors create drag on the plane, and an extra $663,100 worth of fuel is burned to overcome the drag. All that extra fuel takes up weight, and the plane's payload capability is reduced.

ADD ALL THIS together and one finds that the average yearly cost of suppressing the sound of TWA's 47 Boeing and Convair SuperJets is a whopping $1,200,000. And that doesn't include the $50,000,000 development cost that must also be absorbed by the airlines as they purchase aircraft.

Engineering research is producing improved sound suppression techniques, and the operating costs incurred in the interest of human comfort will be reduced with time. TWA is already modifying its ships with new suppressors that will reduce fuel consumption without increasing the noise level.

Putting these improved devices on the planes will cost an additional three-quarters of a million dollars, but TWA considers such money well spent. (BB

Super Mart Jobs Good: Director

School's out soon, and students seeking summer employment or graduates looking for that all-important first-time job are urged to check their neighborhood super market.

The tip comes from Don Parsons, executive director of Super Market Institute. He points out that employment in a super market has the following advantages:

1. Wages that, in most communities, are slighhtly higher than the average for other retail establishments (a statement based on U.S. Labor Department figures).

2. Work that is close to home, often within walking distance.

3. Work that may extend, on a part-time basis, throughout the school year. Nearly half (45 per cent) of all super-market personnel are part-timers.

FOR THE graduate student seeking a career, Parsons said the industry offers security (people have to eat, good times or bad) — plus the excitement of sales promotions and special events. Modern super market companies offer advancement opportunities and good salaries for executives (many store managers receive five-figure annual salaries.)

Specialists are needed in such fields as accounting, advertising, personnel, purchasing, sales promotion and warehouse traffic engineering. Many companies offer a package of fringe benefits second to none, including bonuses, profit sharing, insurance and pension plans. (BB

Hints To Home Owners

James Fizzell

Assistant Farm Advisor

The presence of moss in lawns can be due to a number of factors, all of which can be traced to environmental or soil conditions, that are detrimental to the growth of turf grasses.

If moss is present in a lawn it is a good indication that something is preventing the grass from growing. The most common factor is depleted soil. Moss is much better adapted to growing in poor soil than grass. Fertilizing with a good lawn fertilizer in spring and early fall will help the grass to grow and eliminate the moss.

POOR DRAINAGE can also be responsible for moss. Low spots in the lawn should be filled in to provide natural runoff of water. In some cases, tile will be necessary to get proper drainage.

Excessive shade is a factor which is common in city lawns. Thinning tree branches can be helpful, but a grass such as creeping red fescue or Poa trivialis which is adapted to shaded areas should be sown.

Few lawn grasses grow well in acid soil. The only way to tell if soil is acid is to have it tested. Contact the Farm Bureau Office in Arlington Heights for information on soil testing. If the soil is acid, the results of the test will give instructions on how to correct the situation with lime.

IN AREAS where there is a dense mat of moss on the lawn, it should be killed by spraying with a 5 per cent solution of iron sulfate.

This will stop the moss from growing while the lawn grasses become established provided that the factors responsible for the moss are remedied. (FM

Kimball Hill Attends NAHB Board Meet

Kimball Hill of Kimball Hill and associates, developer of Rolling Meadows, has returned from the spring board of directors meeting of the National Association of Home Builders held in Washington, D. C., last week.

During the three-day session the directors heard the problems of the 45,000 small and large-volume home building contractors who erect an estimated 80 per cent of the United States' new residential construction. They studied the latest construction techniques to keep the builder membership throughout the country informed on the latest products and ideas.

THE DIRECTORS held a special banquet for United States Congressmen who have depended on the association throughout the years for housing information. Fourteen legislators from the Chicago area attended this annual dinner.

These congressmen also attended the discussion sessions to hear the ideas of the builders on matters of wage scales, public housing, construction taxes and long-term financing. Since housing has been given prime importance in President Kennedy's program with a special cabinet post being considered to handle the problems of the building industry, mutual exchange of ideas between builders and Congressmen was essential.

Hill is a national director in NAHB and has been a past president of Home Builders Association of Chicagoland. (BB

Super Mart Jobs Good: Director

School's out soon, and students seeking summer employment or graduates looking for that all-important first-time job are urged to check their neighborhood super market.

The tip comes from Don Parsons, executive director of Super Market Institute. He points out that employment in a super market has the following advantages:

1. Wages that, in most communities, are slighhtly higher than the average for other retail establishments (a statement based on U.S. Labor Department figures).

2. Work that is close to home, often within walking distance.

3. Work that may extend, on a part-time basis, throughout the school year. Nearly half (45 per cent) of all super-market personnel are part-timers.

FOR THE graduate student seeking a career, Parsons said the industry offers security (people have to eat, good times or bad) — plus the excitement of sales promotions and special events. Modern super market companies offer advancement opportunities and good salaries for executives (many store managers receive five-figure annual salaries.)

Specialists are needed in such fields as accounting, advertising, personnel, purchasing, sales promotion and warehouse traffic engineering. Many companies offer a package of fringe benefits second to none, including bonuses, profit sharing, insurance and pension plans. (BB

For Suburban Trains

Complete Delivery of Commuter Coaches

The last of 200 new air conditioned, bi-level coaches was delivered last week in Chicago and North Western railway's $43 million modernization of suburban trains to give northwest suburbanites "the finest commuter train service in the world."

Clyde J. Fitzpatrick, president of the North Western, also announced that the railway is already modernizing and improving the first 48 double-deck coaches purchased only five years ago so they may be used in push-pull operation. This is being done, he said, so that the road's entire 200-car fleet of bi-level coaches will be standardized and so that all cars will have the same up-to-the-minute refinements.

CHANGES ON the original 48 coaches delivered to the road in 1956 will i[illegible] the installation of new electric heat, replacing steam heat; fluorescent lighting, tinted glass windows and more modern brakes. These features were incorporated into the 152 new coaches ordered in the past two years.

C&NW RIDERS DETRAINING at Arlington Heights station, the road's largest suburban station with approximately 3,000 weekday riders, step off their Commuter Streamliner and into their automobiles in the adjacent parking lot. Suburban officials and the railway have at suburban stations on all three of C&NW's lines.

Fitzpatrick explained that while the original 48 double-deckers are being converted North Western will be operating a few conventional trains. But these will be gradually taken out of service each week as the 48 double-deckers are revamped this summer. Sixteen of these coaches are already undergoing modernization by Pullman-Standard and the first cars will be delivered to the road within a few weeks. Conversion cost of the original 48 coaches will exceed $2,000,000.

"Virtually all of our riders will have the new air conditioned, bi-level trains this summer," Fitzpatrick said.

NORTH WESTERN is Chicago's largest commuter railway with 69 commuter stations on three lines, north, northwest and west from Chicago.

The new push-pull trains, called Commuter Streamliners, operate with the locomotive pushing the coaches into Chicago and pulling on outbound trips away from the city. On inbound trips, engine crews control the trains from specially equipped cabs in the leading coach. The push-pull system reduces switching and simplifies operations at terminals.

In announcing delivery of the last coach in the road's new fleet of 200 double-deckers which replace more than 400 conventional coaches, Fitzpatrick said North Western now has the finest and most modern commuter trains in the world.

"No other major metropolitan area anywhere in this country or abroad has anything to match these fine trains. Private investments of such scope in modern commuter trains—air conditioned in summer and electrically heated in winter—are almost unknown in other major metropolitan areas of this country," Fitzpatrick said. "Chicago is unique in this accomplishment.

"What is even more important, Chicago's suburban railroads are establishing new standards in high-comfort, low-cost commuter train service without a penny of public funds," he said.

HE POINTED out that in 1960 Chicago's major commuter railroads, C&NW, IC, Burlington, Milwaukee and Rock Island actually paid more than $3.7 million in taxes on operating property in Cook county alone.

Fitzpatrick said that scores of transit officials in other cities of this country and abroad have inspected North Western's new high-capacity, bi-level trains. A Russian delegation of railroad officials headed by the Minister of Transport, B. Beschev, inspected C&NW's new push-pull trains last winter. "Most interesting feature, to the Russians, was that our new commuter coaches are air condition," said Fitzpatrick.

In addition to the new trains, North Western recently inaugurated experimental hourly "off-peak" service on its three suburban lines to Waukegan, Crystal Lake and West Chicago to attract shoppers and other occasional riders. The hourly mid-day and late evening service brought 146 new trains per week, Fitzpatrick said.

North Western is now operating a total of 1,105 trains a week on its three lines, or more than 55,000 suburban trains a year. (BB

Plant All Summer with Container-Grown Shrubs

A few years ago expert landscaping of the home property was enjoyed mostly by the wealthy. Today all home owners have professional-looking landscapes available to them at a modest cost, according to Jack Hill, Dundee nurseryman.

Nowadays with the new type of Plantainer-grown trees and shrubs it is possible to plant all summer long without any loss of plants or harm to their growth. Because all genuine container-grown evergreens and shrubs come to you with their root systems intact and undisturbed, they will grow faster and bigger the first season than with any other known method of handling nursery plants.

NOTE: Be sure to check your container plants to determine the fact that they have actually been grown in the container and not just placed in there a few weeks earlier. These specimen plants can be planted at any time of the year with no loss or set back. Each one will grow on rapidly from the container home in which it is delivered to you. Every good nurseryman will guarantee his product.

Remove the plant from the container by inverting and tapping the can sharply on a solid surface. Plant exactly as with a balled evergreen but be very careful to keep the root ball intact and unbroken. Water it very thoroughly at least once each week for the first growing season.

All container-grown evergreens and shrubs need fertilization. Much of this fertilizer is present in most soils, but often plant performance is greatly improved by the frequent addition of small amounts of fertilizer. Use any type of organic or inorganic fertilizer offered on the market. All are good and usually improve the growth and health of your plant. To be on the safe side, apply at one-half the manufacturer's recommended rate, but apply twice as often. Always follow dry fertilizer applications with water.

AT LEAST 20 million homes in the United States that were planted in the old days need to have their old fashioned, overgrown plantings remodeled and brought up to date with new trees and shrubs. The container grown plants are an easy and inexpensive way to start remodeling an old landscape. Plan to use low-growing shrubs for the foundation of the house, larger evergreens for the corner of the house, and specimen trees in your yard where they can grow to a large size without hampering your view.

Good healty shade or ornamental trees are best left in place unless they have overgrown their location. It takes years to grow a specimen tree. Often they are valued up to $3000.00 by the courts. Add to your trees but don't destroy them if they are serving a useful purpose.

Remember when remodeling your landscape, do it to make your place more livable as well as for looks. Good landscaping increases the value of your property without raising your taxes. By the same token, overgrown and diseased landscape material can detract from the quality of your home. The quality of your landscaping nowadays is as important as the quality of your home in appraising real estate values. For additional advice, see your reliable nurseryman. (BB

Dr. Kramer Publishes Nursing Home Articles

Dr. C. H. Kramer, medical director of Plum Grove Nursing home, is the author of a two part article, "Requirements for Better Patient Placement," published in the April and May Journal of the American Nursing Home association, "Nursing Homes."

Mrs. Kramer, administrator of the home, published an article, "Records for Rehabilitation" in the May issue of "Professional Nursing Home," a national monthly magazine for nursing homes and homes for the aging.

MRS. KRAMER went to New York Monday to begin a basic hospital course in the program of continuing education at Columbia university's school of public health and administrative medicine. THE COURSE will conclude with another two week program of study on the campus at Columbia in June, 1962.

Hoffman Lanes Installs Newest Automatic Units

A large neon sign, proclaiming "Hoffman Lanes," has been installed at the partly completed 32,000 sq. ft. recreation center under construction at Higgins and Roselle rds.

Leslie Zikes Sr., newly-appointed manager of Hoffman Lanes, is enthusiastic about the progress of the building and the equipment it will house. "We want our bowlers to enjoy the sport to the fullest, and are making everything as convenient as possible for them."

HOFFMAN LANES, he added, will feature 24 Brunswick "Gold Crown" lanes, as well as Brunswick automatic equipment. The new center will install the Tel-E-Score system, which will enable spectators and players alike to follow the progress of the game without leaving their seats.

Foul detection will be handled automatically by Tel-E-Foul units operating on the principle of an electric eye which sounds a buzzer as the bowler's foot crosses the foul line.

In addition, there will be automatic pinspotters, pinsetters, rapid and unseen ball return and air-flow hand drying at each lane.

Zikes added that Hoffman Lanes is scheduled to open in early August and that league arrangements currently may be made by phone at LA 9-1500. (BB

Journalism Offers Top Opportunities

Ela-Vernon high school students were told last week that journalism is "one of the most opportunity-laden, challenging, satisfying and broad careers open to young people today."

Addressing the high school's annual journalism banquet in Lake Zurich Thursday night, Charles Hayes, executive editor of Paddock Publications, Inc., said "Journalism is exciting and important. And it needs thousands of new professionals for its varied and growing opportunities."

THE BANQUET honored students who worked on school publications during the past year.

In discussing career opportunities, Hayes told the teenagers: "The horizons of journalism are expanding rapidly. To keep them moving ever outward, we need better informed men and women in the newsrooms of all our newspapers. The demands of our new society require a newspaper that prints the news fully, fairly and fearlessly; interprets it intelligently; and comments upon it vigorously." (BB

Carol Demichele Is May Bride of Walter Gauger

Now at home at 1208 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, are a local couple who were married on May 7 in St. Mark Lutheran church of Mount Prospect. The bride is the former Carol Demichele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Demichele of 303 Elm st., Prospect Heights.

She and her bridegroom, Walter Gauger of Mount Prospect, were united at the white flower-decked altar in an afternoon ceremony performed by Rev. Richard Pierson. The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. W. Gauger of 26 N. Albert st., Mount Prospect.

THE WEDDING reception took place at the Elks club in Des Plaines, at which 100 guests greeted the newlyweds. At the ceremony and reception the bride's mother was attired in beige silk organza with a gold hat and beige accessories. Her corsage was of green cymbidium orchids.

The bridegroom's mother chose a blue lace dress with matching blue shoes, white hat and gloves and a corsage of pink miniature roses and white carnations.

Robert Breihan was at the organ for the wedding ceremony, and Mrs. E. Blomquist sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

THE BRIDE came down the aisle in a gown of white swiss organdy with fitted bodice of palest blue dotted organdy, fashioned with a square scalloped neckline and cap sleeves. The long bell skirt was white with a wide horizontal inset of blue three-quarters of the way down the hemline.

A tiered ballerina veil of silk illusion cascaded from a circlet of orange blossoms and pearl buds. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of stephanotis and amazon lilies.

Expectations for Growth

MEDICINE, IN THE PRESENT time, seems to have made such strides that I'm sure they have cures for which there are no diseases. Which is wonderful. Way, way, way back, when I was a child, I seem to recall that all childish diseases were treated with oil of peppermint or a quick nip of Fletcher's Castoria.

Now my medicine chest looks like the shelves of the most up to date super drug store in the world. I have syrups for light coughs and other syrups for in-between and deep harumph type coughs. There are pills for congestion. Pills for allergies. There are antibiotics for viruses A, B, C, and that most wonderful of all viruses, X. Then there are other things for stuff that is caused by microbes. Very confusing.

Also, back in my youth, a person planted things and then sat back to watch them grow. I mean, trees were trees in those days and they grew. If something attacked them, they sturdily defended themselves and fought back. Or died valiantly in the fray. When they died, they fell down. That was the end of them. We expected things of our growing stuff. Big things.

Nowadays my garage shelves would rival the shelves of the largest nursery in the area. Each plant and tree that I own is a shivering fragile thing given to contracting the most horrible ailments. The rose dust is obviously for roses who are particularly susceptible to any number of things. I know what a plant louse is but what ever is a thrip? Black spot is black. I suppose white spot is white. But, what I am really waiting for is a thrip.

We have all been alerted to the danger of the Dutch Elm ailment. Much has been written about it and none of us are particularly surprised when the patient dies. But, the other day I discovered red warts on my Maple tree. Imagine my consternation. Red warts. Tsk Tsk. So I called a tree doctor and I thought him very unfeeling when he said the Maple was suffering from Red Gall. I think that's what he said.

I have heard of colossal gall but always thought it a personality trait. Red Gall is different. I knew those Russians were up to no good. (Soc

Living Together

Dear Peg:

I have a feeling that Grandmother Rice is looking down from whatever little part of Heaven is reserved for dear old Grandmothers, and is shaking her finger at what I'm about to say—in much the same manner as she did years ago, when her impossible Granddaughter refused to join the Daughters of the American Revolution after the poor dear had devoted much time and energy proving her eligibility.

Grandmother was a single-minded woman, fiercely devoted to her family, relatives, friends, church and the United States of America. As far as she was concerned, no other country or people existed. Anything but a liberal or progressive thinker, she would have without doubt agreed with the D. A. R., who at their 1961 convention urged the immediate withdrawal of the U. S. from the United Nations and a complete halt to federal spending in the fields of housing, education and urban renewal and I'm afraid she would have cast her lot with the 2,082 members who voted against the Peace Corps. (The count was 2,082 to 1. Some Daughter goofed!)

Apparently the D. A. R. objects to the lower standard of living and possible health hazards that young members of the Corps would be subjected to in foreign countries. From what I've read the volunteers will live in a manner comparable to their foreign counterparts. For instance, those in the field of teaching will live with or among teachers and enjoy the standard of living that they do in that particular country. The same will be true of those in the field of medicine, engineering or agriculture. We are a healthy nation. Our youth are probably the best fed—the strongest physically and mentally—of any in the world and, no doubt, the cream of college students who will make up the Corps will be willing to make many small sacrifices to achieve the goals of peace and understanding among nations.

According to Peace Corps Director, R. Sargent Shriver the pilot plan is for volunteers to serve two to three years and, although they will receive no pay—only living expenses—there will be a "bonus" payment when their service is ended. Peace Corps members will not be sent to any country unless asked for by that country. They will teach languages—English where it is needed—other subjects if they are requested. They will fight disease, by bringing information about health and sanitation. They will work to improve farm methods. If asked, they will serve in local government—as clerks, administrators and helpers. Even now, hundreds of applications a day are pouring into the Peace Corps headquarters. By the end of 1961, President Kennedy expects to have between 500 and 1,000 in the field.

Now, I ask you, Grandmother, why would the D. A. R. oppose so constructive and imaginative a program — one that, through personal and direct contact and help, attempts to tackle the problem of building for peace, instead of just fighting a shooting war? Maybe, Gram, from where you are now, you can get a better look at the whole world and just maybe even you have decided that your great country has its obligation to fulfill—that of doing all that it can to help every nation and people live together in peace.

My love,
Patty

A Buffet Reception

by DOLORES HAUGH

June is here with graduations, bridal receptions, anniversaries and many other events which can best be celebrated with the buffet reception.

INVITATIONS

Be sure invitations are sent at least two to three weeks in advance of the event and if announcements are sent include a separate card or invitation; do not write it on the reverse side of the announcement as it may be overlooked. Be sure you have the guests respond so that you may plan the food accordingly. For a large number of guests an open house schedule and buffet serving is best.

PREPARATIONS

After your guest list is compiled, start thinking about the location of your buffet; this is determined by the space you have in your home or patio. Be sure you have seating arrangements for the majority of the guests although this is not mandatory when serving out-of-doors. With the weather warming up, a garden buffet is lovely and simple but remember one thing, the weather may change so have an alternate plan in case of rain.

MENU

Plan the menu and above all keep it simple. A dinner served buffet should follow the same rule of thumb and, of course, keeping food hot is your main goal plus replenishing the platters. Serve hot foods in casseroles or keep them hot right at the table. For the buffet reception serve open-faced sandwiches, relishes, coffee, punch and cake and/or cookies, fancy type. Nuts and mints round out the menu.

If you serve outside, do not use paper napkins or dishes. The wind will make the party look like a retrieving game and the clean up detail will have bushels of problems.

DECORATION

For a formal buffet, as this will be, sterling silver, roses, lace and fine china are almost a must. The centerpiece may be pink as this is a delicate color adaptable to any event. Use tiny forget-me-nots and baby breath in the floral arrangement. Peonies or other garden flowers or a formally designed florist arrangement would be the focal point of the table.

Pick up the color from the flowers and use this for the napkins. Tiny real flowers decorating the trays also give you color where it is needed. When planning the over-all picture of the table be sure to group the food so that the person in line will not have to back-track. Plates, napkins and silverware should be first, although the latter may be picked up last, most often it is forgotten.

The main course should be next dessert, mints, nuts, coffee last. If you have an exceptionally large group eating at the same time, as for dinner, have duplicate food lay-out plans so that two lines may pass along or using both sides of the table four lines may be served quickly. There is nothing more frustrating than to stand in line while someone decides what to put on his plate so have the line move quickly as possible.

Be sure you have help serving the coffee: two persons, one at each end of the table is best. If punch is served have someone pouring cups ahead of eating time.

Serve a buffet reception and planning ahead means fun for you and lots less work the day of the celebration. (S

Here's HAUGH to Plan a Party

A Buffet Reception

by DOLORES HAUGH

INVITATIONS

Be sure invitations are sent at least two to three weeks in advance of the event and if announcements are sent include a separate card or invitation; do not write it on the reverse side of the announcement as it may be overlooked. Be sure you have the guests respond so that you may plan the food accordingly. For a large number of guests an open house schedule and buffet serving is best.

PREPARATIONS

After your guest list is compiled, start thinking about the location of your buffet; this is determined by the space you have in your home or patio. Be sure you have seating arrangements for the majority of the guests although this is not mandatory when serving out-of-doors. With the weather warming up, a garden buffet is lovely and simple but remember one thing, the weather may change so have an alternate plan in case of rain.

MENU

Plan the menu and above all keep it simple. A dinner served buffet should follow the same rule of thumb and, of course, keeping food hot is your main goal plus replenishing the platters. Serve hot foods in casseroles or keep them hot right at the table. For the buffet reception serve open-faced sandwiches, relishes, coffee, punch and cake and/or cookies, fancy type. Nuts and mints round out the menu.

If you serve outside, do not use paper napkins or dishes. The wind will make the party look like a retrieving game and the clean up detail will have bushels of problems.

DECORATION

For a formal buffet, as this will be, sterling silver, roses, lace and fine china are almost a must. The centerpiece may be pink as this is a delicate color adaptable to any event. Use tiny forget-me-nots and baby breath in the floral arrangement. Peonies or other garden flowers or a formally designed florist arrangement would be the focal point of the table.

Pick up the color from the flowers and use this for the napkins. Tiny real flowers decorating the trays also give you color where it is needed. When planning the over-all picture of the table be sure to group the food so that the person in line will not have to back-track. Plates, napkins and silverware should be first, although the latter may be picked up last, most often it is forgotten.

The main course should be next dessert, mints, nuts, coffee last. If you have an exceptionally large group eating at the same time, as for dinner, have duplicate food lay-out plans so that two lines may pass along or using both sides of the table four lines may be served quickly. There is nothing more frustrating than to stand in line while someone decides what to put on his plate so have the line move quickly as possible.

Be sure you have help serving the coffee: two persons, one at each end of the table is best. If punch is served have someone pouring cups ahead of eating time.

Serve a buffet reception and planning ahead means fun for you and lots less work the day of the celebration. (S

"A PLUMBER in the INSURANCE Business?"

No, not exactly. What we said was that the new Symmons washing machine valve was the cheapest insurance in the world against having very expensive repair bills on your automatic clothes washer. We know from experience that most women do not turn off the two valves that supply water to the washer. The water hammer from any faucet in the house being shut off can cause serious damage to the solenoid in the clothes washer, resulting in a $60.00 repair bill. In addition, when the valves are not turned off, the water pressure is on the hoses all the time, and they can split, causing a flood. This new Symmons valve, $5.85, is a fine quality brass on which you just flip a lever to "on" or "off" — it controls both hot and cold water at once. Installation is quite simple. Stop in our new showroom and see this and many other beautiful new plumbing products.

Southern Cook Perfects Baked Pheasant, Freezes Pecan Pies

If you enjoy wild game and are lucky enough to have a husband who hunts, you'll surely want to save today's recipe for use during the pheasant season or make it with the birds you may have stored in the freezer.

The recipe for a wonderful pheasant casserole has been shared with us this week by Mrs. Mirrel R. Kephart of Arlington Heights. This good cook has had considerable experience in preparing pheasants but this recipe, in the opinion of her family, outshines all others.

Both Mr. Kephart and their son, Mirrel Jr., enjoy hunting and spend each weekend from November through March bagging pheasants at a nearby hunt club. This activity keeps the family freezer well supplied with this aristocratic fowl and many friends benefit from their Saturday sport as well.

AS A RESULT Mrs. Kephart has not only had an opportunity to cook pheasant in many different ways, but has also exercised ingenuity in trying recipes to make pheasant, which is more common in her household than most, an especially interesting meal.

This recipe starts with one large or two small pheasants which are stewed and deboned. Mrs. Kephart uses a pressure cooker, which will produce a tender pheasant in just 20 minutes.

She combines the cut-up mild-flavored meat with cooked long grain brown rice and wild rice, onions, mushrooms and mushroom soup. The ingredients are assembled in layers in a casserole and baked for one hour. The result is a superlative taste treat!

"I LIKE to serve a frozen fruit salad or jello mold with the casserole," commented Mrs. Kephart. "A vegetable isn't necessary, but if desired string beans or broccoli are good accompaniments."

Her frozen fruit salad is a mellow combination of cream cheese, mayonnaise and whipped cream mixed together with crushed pineapple, maraschino and Queen Anne cherries. Green pepper may be stirred in for additional color, and is especially festive with the red cherries for the holiday season.

This attractive salad may be molded in a ring mold or spooned into frozen food containers and stored in the freezer until ready to use. It's handy to have a delicious salad such as this readily available for luncheons, dinners or unexpected guests.

TO COMPLETE this tempting meal Mrs. Kephart, who hails from Alabama, suggests a delectable Southern Pecan Pie. Made from an authentic recipe which belonged to her grandmother, this pie calls for dark Karo syrup as well as the usual pecan pie fixin's.

"This recipe is so simple to prepare that I usually make a half dozen at a time and pop them into the freezer after they are baked," explained Mrs. Kephart. "It isn't even necessary to re-heat them; they need only be defrosted before serving."

And there you have a delightful dessert to complement an exceptional company dinner!

In addition to her culinary interests this capable woman is active in campfire work and is in charge of camping activities for the Arlington Heights district of Campfire Girls. She is also a member of Miriam circle of the First Methodist church and the PTA. Her husband is secretary of the Little League in Arlington Heights.

THE KEPHARTS live at 801 S. Evergreen in Arlington Heights. They have three children: Mirrel Jr., a high school freshman; Carroll, 12, and Michael, 9.

Plan Carefree Basket Meal With Chicken, Corn on Cob

Lookiig for something simple for summer entertaining? Then plan an informal basket supper at which your friends can dine like the "kings of old" without the aid of plates, knives, forks and spoons.

Select food that lends itself to eating "out of hand." Fried chicken is ideal, either hot or cold. So is fresh corn-on-the-cob, stalks of crisp celery and tomato wedges.

USE INEXPENSIVE baskets in place of plates and line each with colorful paper napkins or foil before filling them with food. As a final garnish, add a few sprigs of parsley or watercress.

Mugs of cold beer or ale and plenty of paper napkins and dampened finger towels are in order for this carefree feast which allows guests to have a glorious time forgetting the usual formalities.

CORN ON THE COB

Remember that the sooner corn is cooked after picking, the better it is. Never buy corn already husked. Open the husks a bit to see if the kernels are firm and fresh; a tender young kernel will be milky inside if you pierce it with your fingernail.

Allow 2 to 3 ears per person. Keep the corn in the refrigerator until you are ready to cook it. Then peel off the outside husk and remove the silken threads.

Plunge ears of corn into boiling salted water, let it return to a boil and cook 3 to minutes or until just tender. Remove corn and wrap in a napkin to hold in heat. Serve with lots of butter, salt and pepper. (SH

Q. What have you to say about the wearing of costume jewelry?

A. It is completely respectable, but don't wear too much of it, and don't wear ill-assorted pieces at the same time. Also, be sure you're not wearing pieces that are too large or too tiny for your size. More elaborate jewelry is worn at night than in daytime. With sport clothes, nothing but a wedding ring or simple ring and wristwatch are worn.

Choose Glassware Wisely

Whether your choice is a practical water tumbler or a full set of tableware, the principles of careful buying are the same. Pictured above is a new set of deep sea design glasses by Bartlett-Collins, available in variety stores across the country.

Here are 10 tips to insure quality when you shop for glassware—but in all purchases it is always best to ask the advice of a salesperson who should be able to answer many specific question you might have.

1. Resist glass that will not go with the rest of your tableware.

2. Avoid the over-decorated glass or the extravagantly colored piece.

3. Buy an extra glass when you buy a set. You may not be able to replace pieces from your set and you may discover an extra use for the glass you buy and then need more than you think.

4. Judge the shape of a glass by holding it against a dark handbag or against the sleeve of your coat.

5. Judge the clarity of glass by holding the piece up to the light. The clear refraction of glass is what makes glassware sparkle.

6. Don't be afraid to mix glassware if it is of defferent but harmonious design or color.

7. Heft the glass in your hand. It should feel well balanced.

8. Choose decorated glass carefully to go with your tableware and linen. An elaborate glass will be set off best by a plain cloth and tableware.

9. Learn to see more than one use for a piece of glass. A glass pitcher can be used effectively for flowers. A champagne glass is perfect for serving puddings.

10. Watch when your purchase is wrapped and see that the sales person covers your glassware with enough paper to prevent breakage. (SH

Week's Best food buys

Build-up of competitive influences between poultry and red meats culminates this week with fryers, turkeys and stewing hens perched at the head of the bargain buy column.

Fryers reached sensational lows of 25 cents a pound as a consensus market quote, and can be found promotionally for less in many area stores.

With fryer supplies 20 per cent over year-ago levels, wholesale costs crumbled another 1¼ cents to peg the new low retail level. Turkey production also is well ahead to establish 35 cent quotes for many birds, and 39 cents is competitive top for stewing hens.

RETAILERS wiped out most current feature low quotes on red meats to compensate, giving poultry the technical edge as the consensus value on the University of Illinois consumer service market survey for the week ending June 10.

However, competitive market price tags on most beef, pork and lamb remain unchanged from week-ago. What reduced promotion pricing attenion focuses mostly on ground beef, some steaks, chuck roasts, and lamb chops.

Most activity occurred at live and wholesale market levels, with little if any of the receipts and cost fluctuations influenced greatly by the short-term work stoppage of drivers. Of greater impact was the usual post-holiday short work week, seasonal factors, ship-out demand and existing inventories.

CATTLE RECEPTS were off 15 per cent with the holiday, and costs climbed as much as 1½ cents for the first major increase since January. Finished beef at wholesale responded similarly for the first time in two months on below normal supplies.

Rounds and hinds posted one cent a pound increases, and carcass beef a full 1½ cents.

Hog receipts were down 25 per cent with the holiday, but total supplies at live markets are 20 per cent ahead of year-ago. Late-week arrivals erased earlier gains for a net loss of from ¼ cent to ½ cent despite a higher wholesale dressed pork trade.

These quotes were up as much as 3 cents a pound on pork loins that moved out well despite the increases.

LAMB RECEIPTS also were down, and consisted more of native spring supplies, but live market quotes held steady to off about ½ cent. Wholesale carcass lamb posted a ½ cent gain, while rib and loin cuts were in best demand.

In addition to the holiday effect, continued government purchases and normal seasonal factors are current influences.

Veal, which has claimed little attenion, is somewhat more active on smaller supplies. But it continues mostly steady at retail.

Eggs passed the seasonal supply peak. Influenced by good processor demand, stimulated institutional trade and continuing government purchases, wholesale quotes jumped 2 cents. Retails reflected the firming trend by re-posting a 45-49 cents range on mixed grade A large sizes.

CONSUMERS WILL find egg prices advancing slightly for a time before the expected fall downturn occurs.

Produce markets are in the throes of seasonal impact of new, closer supplies. Volume and variety increases, especially in fruits, to create better buys at new seasonally low prices for many selections, such as strawberries, watermelon, seedless grapes, bananas, cherries, new potatoes, lettuce, tomatoes and carrots.

Other contenders coming along include cantaloupe, peaches and plums in fruit lines, and beans, cabbage, cucumers and squash in vegetables.

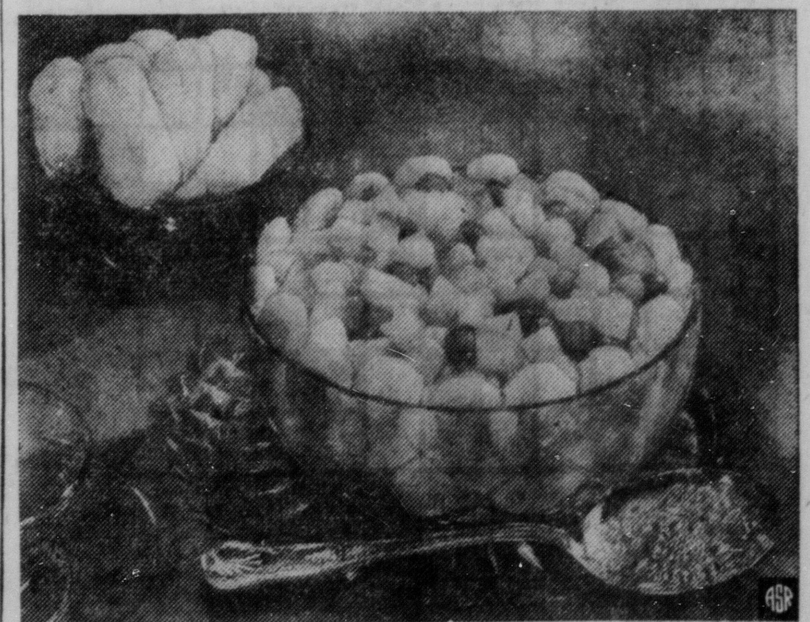
Lady Fingers Line Bowl For Fruit, Custard Dish



Bring out your prettiest glass bowl for "Fruit Cocktail Trifle." Layers of juicy canned fruit cocktail and velvety stirred custard are surrounded by lady fingers. Serve with additional lady fingers, if you like.

Drain one (1 lb. 1 oz.) can fruit cocktail, reserving syrup. Beat 2 eggs with ¼ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add 1½ teaspoon salt. Add 1½ cups milk, and cook and stir over hot water until thickened.

REMOVE from heat, blend in ½ teaspoon vanilla; cool. Split 10 to 12 lady fingers, spread with ¼ cup orange marmalade and sprinkle with 2 tablespoons dessert wine or syrup from fruit cocktail.

Line glass serving bowl with the lady fingers. Fill with alternate layers of cooled custard and fruit cocktail, ending with fruit cocktail. Chill thoroughly. Makes 6 servings. (SH

Plan Carefree Basket Meal With Chicken, Corn on Cob

Lookiig for something simple for summer entertaining? Then plan an informal basket supper at which your friends can dine like the "kings of old" without the aid of plates, knives, forks and spoons.

Select food that lends itself to eating "out of hand." Fried chicken is ideal, either hot or cold. So is fresh corn-on-the-cob, stalks of crisp celery and tomato wedges.

USE INEXPENSIVE baskets in place of plates and line each with colorful paper napkins or foil before filling them with food. As a final garnish, add a few sprigs of parsley or watercress.

Mugs of cold beer or ale and plenty of paper napkins and dampened finger towels are in order for this carefree feast which allows guests to have a glorious time forgetting the usual formalities.

CORN ON THE COB

Remember that the sooner corn is cooked after picking, the better it is. Never buy corn already husked. Open the husks a bit to see if the kernels are firm and fresh; a tender young kernel will be milky inside if you pierce it with your fingernail.

Allow 2 to 3 ears per person. Keep the corn in the refrigerator until you are ready to cook it. Then peel off the outside husk and remove the silken threads.

Plunge ears of corn into boiling salted water, let it return to a boil and cook 3 to minutes or until just tender. Remove corn and wrap in a napkin to hold in heat. Serve with lots of butter, salt and pepper. (SH

Q. What have you to say about the wearing of costume jewelry?

A. It is completely respectable, but don't wear too much of it, and don't wear ill-assorted pieces at the same time. Also, be sure you're not wearing pieces that are too large or too tiny for your size. More elaborate jewelry is worn at night than in daytime. With sport clothes, nothing but a wedding ring or simple ring and wristwatch are worn.

Choose Glassware Wisely

Whether your choice is a practical water tumbler or a full set of tableware, the principles of careful buying are the same. Pictured above is a new set of deep sea design glasses by Bartlett-Collins, available in variety stores across the country.

Here are 10 tips to insure quality when you shop for glassware—but in all purchases it is always best to ask the advice of a salesperson who should be able to answer many specific question you might have.

1. Resist glass that will not go with the rest of your tableware.
2. Avoid the over-decorated glass or the extravagantly colored piece.
3. Buy an extra glass when you buy a set. You may not be able to replace pieces from your set and you may discover an extra use for the glass you buy and then need more than you think.
4. Judge the shape of a glass by holding it against a dark handbag or against the sleeve of your coat.
5. Judge the clarity of glass by holding the piece up to the light. The clear refraction of glass is what makes glassware sparkle.
6. Don't be afraid to mix glassware if it is of defferent but harmonious design or color.
7. Heft the glass in your hand. It should feel well balanced.
8. Choose decorated glass carefully to go with your tableware and linen. An elaborate glass will be set off best by a plain cloth and tableware.
9. Learn to see more than one use for a piece of glass. A glass pitcher can be used effectively for flowers. A champagne glass is perfect for serving puddings.
10. Watch when your purchase is wrapped and see that the sales person covers your glassware with enough paper to prevent breakage. (SH

Week's Best food buys

Build-up of competitive influences between poultry and red meats culminates this week with fryers, turkeys and stewing hens perched at the head of the bargain buy column.

Fryers reached sensational lows of 25 cents a pound as a consensus market quote, and can be found promotionally for less in many area stores.

With fryer supplies 20 per cent over year-ago levels, wholesale costs crumbled another 1¼ cents to peg the new low retail level. Turkey production also is well ahead to establish 35 cent quotes for many birds, and 39 cents is competitive top for stewing hens.

RETAILERS wiped out most current feature low quotes on red meats to compensate, giving poultry the technical edge as the consensus value on the University of Illinois consumer service market survey for the week ending June 10.

However, competitive market price tags on most beef, pork and lamb remain unchanged from week-ago. What reduced promotion pricing attenion focuses mostly on ground beef, some steaks, chuck roasts, and lamb chops.

Most activity occurred at live and wholesale market levels, with little if any of the receipts and cost fluctuations influenced greatly by the short-term work stoppage of drivers. Of greater impact was the usual post-holiday short work week, seasonal factors, ship-out demand and existing inventories.

CATTLE RECEPTS were off 15 per cent with the holiday, and costs climbed as much as 1½ cents for the first major increase since January. Finished beef at wholesale responded similarly for the first time in two months on below normal supplies.

Rounds and hinds posted one cent a pound increases, and carcass beef a full 1½ cents.

Hog receipts were down 25 per cent with the holiday, but total supplies at live markets are 20 per cent ahead of year-ago. Late-week arrivals erased earlier gains for a net loss of from ¼ cent to ½ cent despite a higher wholesale dressed pork trade.

These quotes were up as much as 3 cents a pound on pork loins that moved out well despite the increases.

LAMB RECEIPTS also were down, and consisted more of native spring supplies, but live market quotes held steady to off about ½ cent. Wholesale carcass lamb posted a ½ cent gain, while rib and loin cuts were in best demand.

In addition to the holiday effect, continued government purchases and normal seasonal factors are current influences.

Veal, which has claimed little attenion, is somewhat more active on smaller supplies. But it continues mostly steady at retail.

Eggs passed the seasonal supply peak. Influenced by good processor demand, stimulated institutional trade and continuing government purchases, wholesale quotes jumped 2 cents. Retails reflected the firming trend by re-posting a 45-49 cents range on mixed grade A large sizes.

CONSUMERS WILL find egg prices advancing slightly for a time before the expected fall downturn occurs.

Produce markets are in the throes of seasonal impact of new, closer supplies. Volume and variety increases, especially in fruits, to create better buys at new seasonally low prices for many selections, such as strawberries, watermelon, seedless grapes, bananas, cherries, new potatoes, lettuce, tomatoes and carrots.

Other contenders coming along include cantaloupe, peaches and plums in fruit lines, and beans, cabbage, cucumbers and squash in vegetables.

At the moment in the transition from the ending Florida season to the closer harvesting areas, endive, escarole, radishes and onions are typical of lines showing firmer prices.

30 Years Ago—May 29, 1931

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS:

Two Civil War Veterans here: Mr. Robert Reed and Mr. Christ Meyer expect to be in the Memorial Day parade Saturday, the 30th. Mr. Reed, 92 years of age, was in Company K, 88th Illinois infantry, and was in the historic battles of Stone River, Chicakamauga, Perryville and Lookout Mountain. Mr. Niemeyer served for four years in Company H., Fourth Missouri cavalry. He enlisted in the fall of 1861 and reenlisted in 1863, being mustered out when the war was over. Both men are members of Gen. Willich post of the Grand Army of the Republic, of which there are now six members. Two of these, Milton Meyer and Adolph Steiner, live in Park Ridge, and two, Comrades Obert and Selden live in Des Plaines. Mr. Charles Sigwalt, formerly commander of the post, and prominently active for many years in the work of the GAR passed on July 21, 1930, at his home on West Wing Street.

Our Community Chorus wins big ovation at their concert Friday evening. Theodore Militzer, director, and Isabel Cuny Oefelein, accompanist, received outbursts of applause along with the chorus. If any in Arlington Heights had their doubts that a real civic choral society could be maintained in the village and give a successful concert, no one had any doubt of it after enjoying the splendid program presented at the high school auditorium Friday.

PALATINE:

The people in northern Cook County are being remembered to quite an extent with new and improved roads, one in particular being Route 53 which will be extended north from Lake street, thru Palatine over Hicks road, verging toward the northeast, after passing Rand road and will use Long Grove Road, thru the center of that village to McHenry road, which is now being paved.

Miss Lottie Hart is in charge of the Iris Exhibit to be staged by the Garden Club June 11, in the Municipal Hall.

ROSELLE:

Fifteen pupils graduate from the public school in Roselle this year. This is one of the largest classes ever to be graduated from the public school.

Roselle streets are at least 100 per cent in better shape. than they were two weeks ago. The work of grading and scarifying has been completed, and it is only a period of a few days now until the arrival of oil and its application to the thoroughfares of the village.

20 Years Ago—May 23, 1941

Visiting trailers are now permissible in Arlington Heights for the race season. The ordinance which prohibited them at all times was amended by the Arlington Heights village board Monday evening. A thirty-day limit area requirement and permission of property owner and adjacent resident are the new safeguards to prevent the establishment of a trailer park within the corporate limits, but which permit the use of 5,000 square feet for a single trailer.

Arlington Heights was well represented at the 22d annual Lions club convention in Aurora Monday and Tuesday. Attending from Arlington were N. M. Lattof, Walter Karstens, Gus Heidorn, George Schimming, Carl Ewert, Tony Scolaro. The convention went on record against the participation of diplomatic representatives in fifth column activities.

MOUNT PROSPECT:

PALATINE:

Graduation exercises of Palatine high school will be held June 3, at Cutting Hall. Four student speakers chosen by the senior class and the faculty will speak on topics related to the theme "Changing Patterns in American Life." The speakers are Ruth Blaschke, Anton Cipri, John Gage, and Robert Godbarsen. Diplomas will be presented to 54 graduates by Harrison Kincaid, the president of the board of education.

ITASCA:

Mr. H. Morton Webster, principal, announces the graduation of twelve pupils from the grade school.

Coal dealers in this community are issuing a warning to all users of coal. Due to strikes the mines are 13,000,000 tons of coal shy their normal supply. The operation of the Guffy act means increasing prices every month, and miners are asking for higher wages. Local dealers have no control over prices and it begins to appear that they will have very little to say about coal delivery next winter. A shortage of railroad cars and the demand of defense operations are certain to interrupt the normal coal supply.

BENSENVILLE:

Alexander Kouzmanoff, a graduate of Bensenville Community High school and the University of Illinois department of architecture, has been informed by the board of trustees of the university, that he is the winner of the 28th competition for the award of the Francis J. Plym Fellowship in Architecture. The value of the fellowship is $1,200 to be used toward defraying the expenses for one year in Europe for further study.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS:

More want ads were published in Paddock Publications the month of April than in any one month since the paper started 79 years ago. The number of ads during the month were as many as were published in an entire year ten years ago.

Arlington village board ordered strict enforcement of building code at last Monday night's board meeting.

Big Memorial Day Parade here, under the joint sponsorship of Merle Guild Post 208, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 981, honoring all who have served our country in time of war and have passed on Police double efforts to make jalopies "taboo" in Arlington Heights. Officers have been instructed to issue tickets on all cars that do not measure up to maximum safety standards. The strict enforcement policy going into effect is in support of Arlington Heights May safety program, which is being sponsored by the Lions Safety Committee in cooperation with the National Safety Council.

MOUNT PROSPECT:

Mr. M. B. Pendleton, Mayor, expresses gratitude of entire community to the Mt. Prospect Lions Club, for providing much larger all-day parking facilities for the village commuters. The East Parking Lot has space for 164 cars. There are now 488 places to park in Mt. Prospect.

Mt. Prospect will hold its first Memorial Day parade on Memorial Day. The Grand Marshal will be Edward Hodge, a Spanish American War veteran who lives with his granddaughter and her family, the H. P. Strombergs. The honor of riding in the lead car is also being accorded to Sgt. David Kritsch, who just returned from the Korean field.

PALATINE:

Father Becker, Episcopal pastor here, will deliver address at Hillside, following the usual parade. Palatine is one of the few communities with a permanent Memorial Day Association, the financial support of which comes from township funds. It came into being over 60 years ago when the day was in charge of the veterans of the Civil War.

Floyd Barloga will head the Palatine Lions Club for 1951-1952; Joe Burnham, retiring president, led the local club thru a highly successful year.

Rent control officially ended in Palatine Wednesday.

BLOOMINGDALE:

Northwest DuPage Post 184 the American Legion, will sponsor a Memorial Day Parade, and invites all organizations from the Northwest DuPage communities to participate.

ITASCA:

"Kill Mosquitoes" has become a war cry at Itasca as a community wide mosquito control program is announced this week. A letter to every home owner in the community asks support of the project, to be financed by voluntary contributions. (A-14

Pretty Party Pie

Naturally sweet, fresh California dates and candied cherries fleck the ice cream filling of "Nesselrode Ice Cream Pie." Turn it into a buttery cooky crust and pop it into the freezer for a special make-ahead party dessert.

CREAM ½ cup butter or margarine and 3 tablespoons sifted powdered sugar. Mix in 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Chill 30 minutes. Press into ungreased 9-inch spring form pan.

Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 10 minutes, until golden brown. Cool. Soften 3 pints vanilla ice cream; mix in wine and fruits. Spoon into crust. Freeze until firm.

At serving time, garnish with ½ cup heavy cream, whipped, and the reserved dates and cherries. Makes 8 or more servings. (SH

New Mushroom Gravy Sauces Meat Steaks

Mushroom Gravy
NEW!

Meat patties, made from favorite ground beef, become extra special when cooked in a new canned mushroom gravy. They're naturals together!

This new canned gravy (10½ ounces) tempting as a pour-on-right from the can or as a superb cooking ingredient, will become a handy standby for many of your fall meals.

WITH ITS rich savory base and loads of select mushroom slices, it makes any meat or poultry dish more exciting.

It boasts too, of being meatless and contains about 1/3 less calories than homemade gravy. This is most important especially in this calorie-conscious age.

For a recipe booklet, using this new canned gravy as well as its two sister products, beef and chicken gravy . . . . write to Carolyn Campbell, Home Economics Dept., Campbell Soup Company, Camden, N. J. for plain and fancy gravy dishes.

It's free on request. In the meantime, try this delicious Salisbury Steak recipe.

SALISBURY STEAK

1 pound ground beef
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 tablespoon minced parsley
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (10½ ounces) mushroom gravy

Lightly mix beef, onion, parsley, salt, and pepper. Shape into 4 oval patties. In skillet, brown patties in butter. Pour mushroom gravy over. Cover; cook over low heat for 20 minutes. Remove cover; cook until gravy is desired consistency, stirring now and then. Makes 4 servings. (SH

Former Decorator Is Pioneer In Development of New Teas

The emphasis everywhere is on "taking tea" and "seeing"—seeing that the big swing is to spiced tea! You take tea and discover oranges and sweet spices skillfully blended into it, too.

This entire trend goes back only ten short years, when Ruth Campbell Bigelow, then a top-flight New York decorator, started blending teas and breaking precedents. In a field predominated by men for centuries, she suddenly longed for the highly individual teas of China which she was denied because of the Bamboo curtain. Being a tea taster at heart, she decided to do something toward duplicating these specialty blends.

A TEA TASTER, like a poet or a musician, is born and not made. Such a gifted person knows in advance what a particular tea will contribute when combined with other different teas; recognizes varying characteristics and quality; has a delicate palate and an exquisite sense of aroma. When Mrs. Bigelow started blending teas she looked for shadings and nuances, for "light tones" and "heavy tones," like the composer does.

Mrs. Bigelow recalled that from Colonial days on, the special treat in the teacup was the added slice of orange, some carefully selected spices. George Washington was an ardent tea drinker, taking it for both breakfast and supper. How did Martha vary his tea? No doubt as others did in her day, by adding spices and orange to his cup.

But all this had to be done after the tea was fully brewed. Fortunately, servants were at hand to attend to such pleasant chores. But for the modern tea drinker, with no servant at beck and call, with not a minute to spare for extra preparation of tea, Mrs. Bigelow sought to duplicate this delightful blend, having it ready to serve without requiring extra time-consuming steps. It had to be a complete package, an up-to-date "convenience" blend, but of the leisurely past but ready for immediate easy serving in the busy homes of today. She must create a tea combination rich but not astringent, lively and yet having a delicacy of taste, with plenty of tang to appeal to both men and women. The result is her pioneering "Constant Comment" tea.

Caught or Bought, Fresh Fish Is Wholesome Treat.

Out of the 160 varieties of fish sold in the United States, both fresh and salt water, there are bound to be several that are your family favorites. Pictured are sea bass and porgie of the salt water varieties, and yellow pike and brook trout from fresh water.

If you boast a fisherman in the family, you're lucky because then you can enjoy really fresh fish and there's nothing better.

IF THE FISH for your table must be bought, not caught, then enlist the aid of your fish dealer. He'll be glad to advise you about the local species in season and their characteristics and can acquaint you with lesser known varieties for your enjoyment and economy.

Fish is a food high in protein and worthy of inclusion often on your menu. With modern freezing methods and rapid transportation, you can try fish from all parts of the country, as well as those available in your area.

THERE ARE TWO cardinal rules for successful fish cookery. The first is never to overcook it. Treat it gently to preserve the delicate flavor. The second is to season it properly, just enough to enhance the fish taste but not smother it.

A simple Tabasco butter sauce is usually the best choice and it can be used with any fresh water, salt water or shell fish. Tabasco is traditionally a fish's best friend. The liquid red pepper seasoning adds just the necessary spark.

COMMON MARKET term for fish is "dressed." These fish are whole, scaled and eviscerated, usually with the head and tail removed. You may ask to have the fins removed. This type of preparation is best if you want to bake a whole stuffed fish as in the following directions.

BAKED FISH, STUFFING

Purchase a 3 to 5-pound dressed whole fish (red snapper, sea bass, bluefish, cod, haddock, mackerel). Have backbone removed, if desired. Sprinkle cut surface with salt. Stuff fish with *Tabasco Stuffing (do not skewer or lace). Bake in a very hot oven (500 degrees) 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderately hot (400 degrees) and bake 20 to 40 minutes longer, allowing 10 minutes per pound, or until easily flaked with a fork, but still moist.

TABASCO STUFFING

¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
2 tablespoons chopped onion
¾ cup diced celery with leaves
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1/8 teaspoon thyme
3 cups lightly packed soft

BAKED WHOLE FISH

Purchase a 3 to 5-pound dressed whole fish. Have backbone removed, if desired. Sprinkle cut surface with salt. Stuff fish (do not skewer or lace). Bake in a very hot oven (500 degrees) 10 minutes.

Reduce heat to moderately hot (400 degrees) and bake 20 to 40 minutes longer, allowing 10 minutes per pound, or until easily flaked with a fork, but still moist. Serve with Tabasco Butter Sauce. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

TABASCO BUTTER SAUCE

4 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
4½ teaspoons lime or lemon juice
1 tablespoon minced parsley

Melt butter; stir in Tabasco and lime juice. Add parsley. Serve with baked whole fish or lobster. Yield: Approximately 1/3 cup.

TABASCO TARTAR SAUCE

¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped stuffed olives
2 tablespoons chopped pickle

Stir Tabasco and lemon juice into mayonnaise. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Serve with fish or seafood. Yield: 1¼ cups. (SH

Here's a luncheon beauty—a salad that's the very essence of spring. Prepared with lime-flavored gelatin and a happy union of evaporated milk, crisp nuts, celery and crushed pineapple, it will make pleasurable eating with finger sandwiches and steaming hot coffee or tea.

LIME - PINEAPPLE MOUSSE

1 can (1 pound 4-ounces) crushed pineapple
1 package (3 ounces) lime-flavored gelatin
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup cold evaporated milk
½ cup finely chopped walnuts
½ cup chopped celery

New Mushroom Gravy Sauces Meat Steaks

Meat patties, made from favorite ground beef, become extra special when cooked in a new canned mushroom gravy. They're naturals together!

This new canned gravy (10½ ounces) tempting as a pour-on-right from the can or as a superb cooking ingredient, will become a handy standby for many of your fall meals.

WITH ITS rich savory base and loads of select mushroom slices, it makes any meat or poultry dish more exciting.

It boasts too, of being meatless and contains about 1/3 less calories than homemade gravy. This is most important especially in this calorie-conscious age.

For a recipe booklet, using this new canned gravy as well as its two sister products, beef and chicken gravy . . . . write to Carolyn Campbell, Home Economics Dept., Campbell Soup Company, Camden, N. J. for plain and fancy gravy dishes.

It's free on request. In the meantime, try this delicious Salisbury Steak recipe.

Former Decorator Is Pioneer In Development of New Teas

The emphasis everywhere is on "taking tea" and "seeing"—seeing that the big swing is to spiced tea! You take tea and discover oranges and sweet spices skillfully blended into it, too.

This entire trend goes back only ten short years, when Ruth Campbell Bigelow, then a top-flight New York decorator, started blending teas and breaking precedents. In a field predominated by men for centuries, she suddenly longed for the highly individual teas of China which she was denied because of the Bamboo curtain. Being a tea taster at heart, she decided to do something toward duplicating these specialty blends.

A TEA TASTER, like a poet or a musician, is born and not made. Such a gifted person knows in advance what a particular tea will contribute when combined with other different teas; recognizes varying characteristics and quality; has a delicate palate and an exquisite sense of aroma. When Mrs. Bigelow started blending teas she looked for shadings and nuances, for "light tones" and "heavy tones," like the composer does.

Mrs. Bigelow recalled that from Colonial days on, the special treat in the teacup was the added slice of orange, some carefully selected spices. George Washington was an ardent tea drinker, taking it for both breakfast and supper. How did Martha vary his tea? No doubt as others did in her day, by adding spices and orange to his cup.

But all this had to be done after the tea was fully brewed. Fortunately, servants were at hand to attend to such pleasant chores. But for the modern tea drinker, with no servant at beck and call, with not a minute to spare for extra preparation of tea, Mrs. Bigelow sought to duplicate this delightful blend, having it ready to serve without requiring extra time-consuming steps. It had to be a complete package, an up-to-date "convenience" blend, but of the leisurely past but ready for immediate easy serving in the busy homes of today. She must create a tea combination rich but not astringent, lively and yet having a delicacy of taste, with plenty of tang to appeal to both men and women. The result is her pioneering "Constant Comment" tea.

Caught or Bought, Fresh Fish Is Wholesome Treat.

Out of the 160 varieties of fish sold in the United States, both fresh and salt water, there are bound to be several that are your family favorites. Pictured are sea bass and porgie of the salt water varieties, and yellow pike and brook trout from fresh water.

If you boast a fisherman in the family, you're lucky because then you can enjoy really fresh fish and there's nothing better.

IF THE FISH for your table must be bought, not caught, then enlist the aid of your fish dealer. He'll be glad to advise you about the local species in season and their characteristics and can acquaint you with lesser known varieties for your enjoyment and economy.

Fish is a food high in protein and worthy of inclusion often on your menu. With modern freezing methods and rapid transportation, you can try fish from all parts of the country, as well as those available in your area.

THERE ARE TWO cardinal rules for successful fish cookery. The first is never to overcook it. Treat it gently to preserve the delicate flavor. The second is to season it properly, just enough to enhance the fish taste but not smother it.

A simple Tabasco butter sauce is usually the best choice and it can be used with any fresh water, salt water or shell fish. Tabasco is traditionally a fish's best friend. The liquid red pepper seasoning adds just the necessary spark.

COMMON MARKET term for fish is "dressed." These fish are whole, scaled and eviscerated, usually with the head and tail removed. You may ask to have the fins removed. This type of preparation is best if you want to bake a whole stuffed fish as in the following directions.

BAKED FISH, STUFFING

Purchase a 3 to 5-pound dressed whole fish (red snapper, sea bass, bluefish, cod, haddock, mackerel). Have backbone removed, if desired. Sprinkle cut surface with salt. Stuff fish with *Tabasco Stuffing (do not skewer or lace).

Bake in a very hot oven (500 degrees) 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderately hot (400 degrees) and bake 20 to 40 minutes longer, allowing 10 minutes per pound, or until easily flaked with a fork, but still moist.

TABASCO STUFFING

¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
2 tablespoons chopped onion
¾ cup diced celery with leaves
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1/8 teaspoon thyme
3 cups lightly packed soft

BAKED WHOLE FISH

Purchase a 3 to 5-pound dressed whole fish. Have backbone removed, if desired. Sprinkle cut surface with salt. Stuff fish (do not skewer or lace). Bake in a very hot oven (500 degrees) 10 minutes.

Reduce heat to moderately hot (400 degrees) and bake 20 to 40 minutes longer, allowing 10 minutes per pound, or until easily flaked with a fork, but still moist. Serve with Tabasco Butter Sauce. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

TABASCO BUTTER SAUCE

4 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
4½ teaspoons lime or lemon juice
1 tablespoon minced parsley

Melt butter; stir in Tabasco and lime juice. Add parsley. Serve with baked whole fish or lobster. Yield: Approximately 1/3 cup.

TABASCO TARTAR SAUCE

¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped stuffed olives
2 tablespoons chopped pickle

1 can (1 pound 4-ounces) crushed pineapple
1 package (3 ounces) lime-flavored gelatin
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Cardinals' Highlights for 1960-61

Looking Back on Athletic Year at Arlington High

Tennis Unit Boasts Top Varsity Slot

(The athletic campaigns at both Arlington and Prospect high schools have terminated for the school year 1960-61. Paddock Publications will present a rundown of the highights of each school's athletic program, starting this week with Arlington high.)

by BOB FRISK

A battle down to the wire for the league crown in tennis with a big dual meet victory over Hinsdale.

Jim Clabaugh's record-setting 38 points in the first basketball game of the year.

A thrilling dual meet victory over previously unbeaten Downers Grove in wrestling and a third place in the West Suburban conference.

Third in the state gymnastics test

Those were some of the major athletic highlights on a varsity level at Arlington high during the 1960-61 school year!

Although Arlington has certainly experienced more successful years, the past campaign did have its memorable moments. And the future looks promising with the younger squads helping to give the school a winning record in overall competition.

Working with inexperienced alignments, both the varsity football and cross country squads suffered unimpressive campaigns. However, the rosters were stocked with boys who will be returning next fall.

THE FOOTBALL Cardinals were 0-8 in the fall with sophomore Jerry Totzke the squad's leading ground-gainer. Top passer was junior Ross Retterer and junior Don Kolstad blossomed into an outstanding receiver during the latter part of the campaign. Senior Tim O'Gorman was the workhorse of the backfield, doubling as both a quarterback and halfback.

Arlington was 1-6 in Cross country duals and finished eighth in the conference run. Junior Jim Hendricks was the locals' top finisher in the league run with a 13th and senior Tim Smith came in 32nd.

Wrestling and gymnastics took most of the headlines in the winter season although basketball added a big one when senior Jim Clabaugh fired in 38 points against Evanston for a new school scoring record. Clabaugh, who accomplished his mark in the first game of the season, finished with 330 points to pace the team in scoring for the 22-game campaign.

TIM O'GORMAN

GARY ERWIN

GREG BECKWAY

JIM CLABAUGH

BACKING CLABAUGH in the point production was sophomore Chuck Close with 210. The Cards finished 6-16 for the season and 2-12 in the league but only three seniors were among the top ten scorers.

Gymnastics, as usual, was a solid sport record-wise for Arlington although the Cards couldn't come up with their third straight state championship. Coach Gay Hughes' squad finished third in the state and boasted three individual champions in Dick Wetzel on the side horse, Bill Sayre with a tie in tumbling, and Gary Erwin on the Trampoline. Each boy had also won state crowns as juniors.

Although the seniors were the top finsihers in the state gym meet, junior Jerry Russell was the squad's top point-getter for the 1960-61 season.

COACH BOB Emmons' varsity wresters finished a strong third in the West Suburban conference and was the only team to beat Downers Grove. In one of the year's top athletic highlights the Cards edged Downers with Bob Burm's pin the clincher before an excited crowd.

All-League wrestlers at Arlington were Tim Smith at 112 pounds, Tim O'Gorman at 133, Mike Koenig, at 138, and Rich Edelblute at 180. O'Gorman and Edelblute, both seniors, boasted the top individual marks, and sophomore Hal Selleck was the only local representative in the state meet. Selleck qualified with a second in the sectional at 165 pounds but was ousted in state action.

HIGHLIGHTING the spring season was Coach Ken Schaller's varsity tennis squad which gave Hinsdale's Red Devils quite a scare in the battle for the West Suburban championship.

Arlington dropped the loop title by one point but did gain the satisfaction of stopping Hinsdale in a dual meet, 3-2. The victory was Arlington's first in history over the perennially powerful Red Devils.

Junior Tom Benson picked off the No. 2 singles championship in the West Suburban and senior Bill Thompson and junior Bob Bohac were runners-up in No. 1 and No. 3 action respectively. Thompson was the only senior in the Cards' varsity alignment, pointing up a promising 1962 season.

At one stretch Arlington's varsity squad racked up 14 straight dual meet victories.

COACH BOB Baker worked with an inexperienced squad in baseball and the varsity finished 5-9 in the West Suburban division. Although there were no all-conference selections, pitcher Greg Beckway still enjoyed quite a year with an 0.71 earned run average for 49 innings of work. Beckway fanned 51 and walked only 11 but didn't get consistent support in the field.

The Cardinals bumped defending league champion Maine and defending state champion York in two of the season highlights.

With only one letterman back in golf Arlington experienced a rather lean spring record-wise although several boys will be returning next year. Junior Doug Wiborg, a transfer from Quincy, and senior Jim Diehl both had 84s in the West Suburban conference meet in which Arlington finished sixth.

IN THE DISTRICT test at Golden Acres golf course Arlington placed seventh with junior Mike Heyl heading the local linksmen with a fine 79.

Junior John Latta was the individual standout for Arlington's varsity track squad this spring with six of the Cards' eight points in the West Suburban meet. Latta finished second in the 120 yard highs and fourth in the lows. Jim Clabaugh picked up the other two points with a fourth in the 220.

Latta was also the only Cardinal to qualify for the state meet with a strong second in the highs in the district meet at Evanston. He reached the semi's downstate before bowing out.

That's the Arlington high school story for 1960-61.

It had its high and low points, its cheers and tears.

The future is promising. Only time will tell.

Erickson, a sophomore, teamed with Jim Krohl to capture the Big Ten No. 2 doubles championship.

Gene Crandall, a soph at Knox College who worked in the 440 yard dash during the track campaign, has been awarded his varsity letter by the athletic department. He is a grad of Palatine high school and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Crandall, 2200 Rohlwing rd., Rolling Meadows.

Knox has also awarded frosh numerals in baseball to Don Shriver, of 8 W. Irving Pk., Bensenville; frosh numerals in golf to Bruce Peterson, of 5N125 Wood Dale; and frosh numerals in tennis to Dick LeMay, of 220 Hi-Lusi, Mt. Prospect . . . Former Arlington high school golfer Rick Lindstrom earned his second varsity links letter at Northern Illinois university this spring, averaging 81.4 and compiling a 5-6-1 dual meet record . . . Rick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Lindstrom, 916 N. Pine st., Arlington Heights . . . Notre Dame high school of Niles has signed Jim Swann as varsity basketball coach . . . Don Nie, the school's varsity head man for the past four years, has taken a job at Ridgewood high school in Norridge . . . Swann has been head basketball coach at DeSales high in Louisville, Ky., and during the 1960-61 season his team won the district championship and advanced within one game of the state tournament . . . Speaking of Notre Dame, Frank O'Connell of Arlington Heights recently had a tryout with the Cincinnati Redlegs and showed well with the major league outfit . . . O'Connell is the senior who twirled a no-hitter for the Dons this spring and who also saw extensive action on the school's varsity basketball squad.

The University of Wisconsin has landed Hinsdale's Hal Brandt, an all-league selection in three sports. Brandt was an All-Stater at quarterback in football, ranked seventh in conference scoring during the basketball campaign, and hit .351 in baseball. Hinsdale's loss will be Wisconsin's gain for this young man is a natural leader who has been a credit to his school and to the West Suburban conference.

OTHER ODDS and ends:

Ron Nikcevich, the new varsity basketball coach at Riverside-Brookfield, played his high school ball at Lane Tech in Chicago and in college at both Marquette and Western Illinois . . . The San Francisco Giants have a unique way of drying their infield after a night's rain . . . They hire a helicopter to hover over it and dry it out with its big windmill . . . In case you haven't read about it, Dick Haselton has been appointed head cage coach at Niles East . . . Haselton was at York for the past two years . . . The University of Illinois has done a remarkable job in landing the state's top prep basketball talent . . . Boys who have signed for Illinois include Clinton's 6-2 Bill McKeown, East Rockford's 6-9 Skip Thoren, Moline's 6-5 Jim Seeley, Centralia's 6-6 Dick Rapp, Springfield's 6-7 Larry Bauer, and Collinsville's 6-6 Bogie Redmon and 5-9 Bobby Meadows.

No wonder Spalding Co. is anxious to end its contract with the major leagues for furnishing baseballs. Each team receives 600 dozen balls free and pays $15 a dozen for others as needed, usually ordering about 200 dozen more. It costs Spalding $18 a dozen to make the balls.

Prospect Lands Two Berths on All-Stars

Southpaw Mark Thorne and junior Mike Francek, two standouts on Prospect high's varsity baseball squad during the 1961 campaign, were named to the Interim league All-Star team announced this week by the coaches.

Thorne, a senior, was one of five pitchers honored on the all-league team, and Francek, though playing third base throughout most of the campaign, gained an outfield slot. The hard-hitting junior has also seen extensive action in the outfield.

Fifteen seniors, three juniors, and two sophomores were selected on the 1961 All-Star squad, including nine repeaters.

League champion Maine West and Proviso West each gained four positions and East Leyden and Glenbrook picked up three berths. Prospect and Wheaton had two boys honored and Willowbrook and West Leyden rounded out the selections with one boy each.

MIKE FRANCEK

MARK THORNE

MAKING THE Interim All-Star team for the second straight year are Don McDowell and Ken Ridley of East Leyden; Dave Lass of Glenbrook; Johnny Pfund and Biran Grant of Wheaton; Bill Soo, Logan Dugaw, and Tony Nieketopoulos of Proviso West; and Bill Offill of Willowbrook.

Prospect's Thorne, a stylish left-hander, boasted one of the top pitching records in the Chicago area this spring. He had a 6-3 overall mark with an amazing 0.53 earned run average over 65 innings.

THORNE FANNED 98 and walked only 31 in those 65 innings and allowed 27 hits. In no game did he give up more than five hits and he boasted route-going shutouts over Glenbrook and Elmwood

Des Plaines Unit Defending Champ

Another ambitious ninth district Jr. Legion baseball schedule will get under way Saturday afternoon with the first of 56 encounters slated for the next month.

Eight teams, including Arlington and Mt. Prospect, will vie for the district championship currently held by Des Plaines Post No. 36.

The schedule is tentatively set to terminate on July 14 with the Cook County quarter-finals scheduled to open on July 22.

Each ninth district team will play 14 games, two against each squad on a home-and-home basis.

IN ADDITION to Arlington and Mt. Prospect, other outfits in the district this summer are Hoffman Estates, replacing Rolling Meadows; defending champion Des Plaines, Palatine, Northlake, Edison Park, and Park Ridge.

In the opener Saturday Hoffman Estates will journey to Palatine. Coach Lloyd Meyer's Arlington squad, Merle Guild Post 208 sponsored by Fernstrom Storage and Van, will kick off its 1961 campaign Monday evening at 6 o'clock when it travels to Park Ridge.

Arlington's opener had originally been scheduled for Recreation Park but was switched to Park Ridge. The second game between the two clubs will be played on Saturday afternoon, July 8, at Recreation Park.

MT. PROSPECT Post No. 525, sponsored by the Pro Sport Center and coached by Gus Holzrichter, is slated to open on Wednesday, June 14, with a home game against Palatine.

Neither local entry is planning an extensive non-league schedule this summer but will concentrate on the ninth district competition.

Des Plaines, Mt. Prospect, and Park Ridge tied for the loop crown last summer with identical 12-2 records. Coach Al Carstens' Des Plaines nine won the playoff and advanced into tournament competition before bowing out.

The Jr. Legion baseball program in this area is taking on added interest this summer with the state tournament set for Recreation Park August 4-7. Following a series of state-wide eliminations, the five finalists will convene at the Arlington Heights diamond and battle for the state crown and a berth in the regional finals.

Tennis Unit Boasts Top Varsity Slot

(The athletic campaigns at both Arlington and Prospect high schools have terminated for the school year 1960-61. Paddock Publications will present a rundown of the highights of each school's athletic program, starting this week with Arlington high.)

by BOB FRISK

A battle down to the wire for the league crown in tennis with a big dual meet victory over Hinsdale.

Jim Clabaugh's record-setting 38 points in the first basketball game of the year.

A thrilling dual meet victory over previously unbeaten Downers Grove in wrestling and a third place in the West Suburban conference.

Third in the state gymnastics test

Those were some of the major athletic highlights on a varsity level at Arlington high during the 1960-61 school year!

Although Arlington has certainly experienced more successful years, the past campaign did have its memorable moments. And the future looks promising with the younger squads helping to give the school a winning record in overall competition.

Working with inexperienced alignments, both the varsity football and cross country squads suffered unimpressive campaigns. However, the rosters were stocked with boys who will be returning next fall.

THE FOOTBALL Cardinals were 0-8 in the fall with sophomore Jerry Totzke the squad's leading ground-gainer. Top passer was junior Ross Retterer and junior Don Kolstad blossomed into an outstanding receiver during the latter part of the campaign. Senior Tim O'Gorman was the workhorse of the backfield, doubling as both a quarterback and halfback.

Arlington was 1-6 in Cross country duals and finished eighth in the conference run. Junior Jim Hendricks was the locals' top finisher in the league run with a 13th and senior Tim Smith came in 32nd.

Wrestling and gymnastics took most of the headlines in the winter season although basketball added a big one when senior Jim Clabaugh fired in 38 points against Evanston for a new school scoring record. Clabaugh, who accomplished his mark in the first game of the season, finished with 330 points to pace the team in scoring for the 22-game campaign.

GREG BECKWAY

BACKING CLABAUGH in the point production was sophomore Chuck Close with 210. The Cards finished 6-16 for the season and 2-12 in the league but only three seniors were among the top ten scorers.

Gymnastics, as usual, was a solid sport record-wise for Arlington although the Cards couldn't come up with their third straight state championship. Coach Gay Hughes' squad finished third in the state and boasted three individual champions in Dick Wetzel on the side horse, Bill Sayre with a tie in tumbling, and Gary Erwin on the Trampoline. Each boy had also won state crowns as juniors.

Although the seniors were the top finsihers in the state gym meet, junior Jerry Russell was the squad's top point-getter for the 1960-61 season.

COACH BOB Emmons' varsity wresters finished a strong third in the West Suburban conference and was the only team to beat Downers Grove. In one of the year's top athletic highlights the Cards edged Downers with Bob Burm's pin the clincher before an excited crowd.

All-League wrestlers at Arlington were Tim Smith at 112 pounds, Tim O'Gorman at 133, Mike Koenig, at 138, and Rich Edelblute at 180. O'Gorman and Edelblute, both seniors, boasted the top individual marks, and sophomore Hal Selleck was the only local representative in the state meet. Selleck qualified with a second in the sectional at 165 pounds but was ousted in state action.

HIGHLIGHTING the spring season was Coach Ken Schaller's varsity tennis squad which gave Hinsdale's Red Devils quite a scare in the battle for the West Suburban championship.

Arlington dropped the loop title by one point but did gain the satisfaction of stopping Hinsdale in a dual meet, 3-2. The victory was Arlington's first in history over the perennially powerful Red Devils.

Junior Tom Benson picked off the No. 2 singles championship in the West Suburban and senior Bill Thompson and junior Bob Bohac were runners-up in No. 1 and No. 3 action respectively. Thompson was the only senior in the Cards' varsity alignment, pointing up a promising 1962 season.

At one stretch Arlington's varsity squad racked up 14 straight dual meet victories.

COACH BOB Baker worked with an inexperienced squad in baseball and the varsity finished 5-9 in the West Suburban division. Although there were no all-conference selections, pitcher Greg Beckway still enjoyed quite a year with an 0.71 earned run average for 49 innings of work. Beckway fanned 51 and walked only 11 but didn't get consistent support in the field.

The Cardinals bumped defending league champion Maine and defending state champion York in two of the season highlights.

With only one letterman back in golf Arlington experienced a rather lean spring record-wise although several boys will be returning next year. Junior Doug Wiborg, a transfer from Quincy, and senior Jim Diehl both had 84s in the West Suburban conference meet in which Arlington finished sixth.

IN THE DISTRICT test at Golden Acres golf course Arlington placed seventh with junior Mike Heyl heading the local linksmen with a fine 79.

Junior John Latta was the individual standout for Arlington's varsity track squad this spring with six of the Cards' eight points in the West Suburban meet. Latta finished second in the 120 yard highs and fourth in the lows. Jim Clabaugh picked up the other two points with a fourth in the 220.

Latta was also the only Cardinal to qualify for the state meet with a strong second in the highs in the district meet at Evanston. He reached the semi's downstate before bowing out.

That's the Arlington high school story for 1960-61.

It had its high and low points, its cheers and tears.

The future is promising. Only time will tell.

TAKING AN OVERDUE look at the mailbag:

Two former Arlington high school athletes — Bob Lockwood and Jim Erickson — were among the letterwinners at the annual Northwestern University spring sports banquet . . . Bob, the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Lockwood, 312 So. Derbyshire, earned his award as a junior hurdler on the Wildcat track team which finished fifth in the Big Ten meet . . . Jim, of 911 N. Erickson, a sophomore, teamed with Jim Krohl to capture the Big Ten No. 2 doubles championship.

Gene Crandall, a soph at Knox College who worked in the 440 yard dash during the track campaign, has been awarded his varsity letter by the athletic department. He is a grad of Palatine high school and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Crandall, 2200 Rohlwing rd., Rolling Meadows.

Knox has also awarded frosh numerals in baseball to Don Shriver, of 8 W. Irving Pk., Bensenville; frosh numerals in golf to Bruce Peterson, of 5N125 Wood Dale; and frosh numerals in tennis to Dick LeMay, of 220 Hi-Lusi, Mt. Prospect . . . Former Arlington high school golfer Rick Lindstrom earned his second varsity links letter at Northern Illinois university this spring, averaging 81.4 and compiling a 5-6-1 dual meet record . . . Rick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Lindstrom, 916 N. Pine st., Arlington Heights . . . Notre Dame high school of Niles has signed Jim Swann as varsity basketball coach . . . Don Nie, the school's varsity head man for the past four years, has taken a job at Ridgewood high school in Norridge . . . Swann has been head basketball coach at DeSales high in Louisville, Ky., and during the 1960-61 season his team won the district championship and advanced within one game of the state tournament . . . Speaking of Notre Dame, Frank O'Connell of Arlington Heights recently had a tryout with the Cincinnati Redlegs and showed well with the major league outfit . . . O'Connell is the senior who twirled a no-hitter for the Dons this spring and who also saw extensive action on the school's varsity basketball squad.

The University of Wisconsin has landed Hinsdale's Hal Brandt, an all-league selection in three sports. Brandt was an All-Stater at quarterback in football, ranked seventh in conference scoring during the basketball campaign, and hit .351 in baseball. Hinsdale's loss will be Wisconsin's gain for this young man is a natural leader who has been a credit to his school and to the West Suburban conference.

OTHER ODDS and ends:

Ron Nikcevich, the new varsity basketball coach at Riverside-Brookfield, played his high school ball at Lane Tech in Chicago and in college at both Marquette and Western Illinois . . . The San Francisco Giants have a unique way of drying their infield after a night's rain . . . They hire a helicopter to hover over it and dry it out with its big windmill . . . In case you haven't read about it, Dick Haselton has been appointed head cage coach at Niles East . . . Haselton was at York for the past two years . . . The University of Illinois has done a remarkable job in landing the state's top prep basketball talent . . . Boys who have signed for Illinois include Clinton's 6-2 Bill McKeown, East Rockford's 6-9 Skip Thoren, Moline's 6-5 Jim Seeley, Centralia's 6-6 Dick Rapp, Springfield's 6-7 Larry Bauer, and Collinsville's 6-6 Bogie Redmon and 5-9 Bobby Meadows.

No wonder Spalding Co. is anxious to end its contract with the major leagues for furnishing baseballs. Each team receives 600 dozen balls free and pays $15 a dozen for others as needed, usually ordering about 200 dozen more. It costs Spalding $18 a dozen to make the balls.

Cards' Golf Squads Drop Final Matches

Hinsdale showed why it won both the state and West Suburban golf championships last Friday afternoon in the season finale against Arlington high school.

Coach Ralph Meyer's varsity Cardinals turned in their finest team score of the spring, but it wasn't enough against the powerful Red Devils.

Hinsdale's low foursome on a varsity level toured Golden Acres golf course in a brilliant 301 for a 22-stroke victory over host Arlington which posted a creditable 323. In fact, all five of Hinsdale's linksmen scored in the 70s in the remarkable show of golf talent.

In the frosh-soph division Hinsdale gained a 342-360 victory.

BILL SHEAN and Jay McGurren both posted even-par 72s for the varsity Red Devils, Jim Wayne came in with a 79, and George Trees and Dave Wise had 79s.

Grant Wallhoff and Doug Wiborg sparked the varsity Cards with fine rounds of 78. Backing this duo were Mike Heyl with an 81 and Rusty Blix and Jerry Peterson with 86s. Only Wallhoff will be missing next spring.

Hinsdale's 301 total was its season best as the previous low had been 303.

IN THE FROSH-soph test Jamey Wolf and George Brinke both carded 88s for Arlington and Rog O'Neil came home in 91. Ken Seeger and Fred Devin both registered 93s.

Anderson's 82 sparked the winning Imps with Hartney firing an 84, Lauerman an 86, and Johnson a 90.

FOR MANY YEARS the Illinois High School Association has prohibited boys from playing on an all-star football or basketball team. The rule also prohibits a high school team from playing against an all-star team and prohibits any one connected with a member school (principal, coach, athletic director, teacher) from assisting in any way with promotion, coaching, managing, and officiating any such games. This applies to boys who have graduated from high school as well as those still in school. Most of such games are promoted during the summer vacation period and generally in the case of boys who have graduated and cannot be ruled ineligible by the state association.

Here is where high school graduates should beware. The National Collegiate Athletic Association has passed a new rule which makes boys participating in non-sanctioned all star games ineligible for one year of college competition. Here is an excerpt from Article III of the NCAA Constitution which became effective last January: "He shall be denied his first year of varsity athletic competition if, following his graduation from high school and before his enrollment in college, he was a member of a squad which engaged in any all-star football or basketball contest which was not specifically approved by the appropriate state high school athletic association or, if interstate, by the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations or of all the state high school athletic associations involved." The Illinois High School Association asks all principals and athletic directors to call this NCAA restriction to the attention of their senior athletes. Should they participate they will not be eligible for collegiate athletics until the junior year if they enter an NCAA institution.

10 YEARS AGO

Fred Herbertz and Don Zoellick each got three hits but Palatine dropped the final conference game to Grant 8-5. Palatine finished with a 3-4 league record and a 3-10 mark for the season. Schrage batted .433, Abrahamson .429, Herberts .385, and Zoellick .355 for the Pirates. Barrington won the league crown with a 6-1 record, beating Bensenville 7-0 in the final as Dan Osinski pitched his 4th straight shut-out. Ela-Vernon took second with 5 wins and 2 losses . . . For the year Barrington took baseball, basketball, and football championships and Palatine the track and golf in The Northwest Conference . . . Arlington finished the baseball season losing to Hinsdale 5-4 for the latter's only league win. Arlington's 4-10 record was the first losing season for Coach Wally Grace in 25 years of directing baseball teams.

Why you should open a window before you close the door of a Volkswagen.

Don't laugh. Every now and then a new VW owner brings his car in to ask why the doors seem hard to close.

The reason is that the VW is practically airtight. With the windows up, the door meets a solid wall of trapped air. So it takes a little extra push to close it. Unless you open a window just a crack to let the air escape.

It happens because every last VW part fits just so. (When you've been making the same basic car as long as the VW people have, all the wrinkles get ironed out. For good.)

And still, there are 3,500 men who do nothing else but inspect every operation all down the Volkswagen line.

When you come in to drive a new VW, you might make this test: (It's the very same one that the Volkswagen inspector makes during the final inspection of every finished VW.)

Crank up all the windows and try to close a door. Gently. If it doesn't work, you know the VW's perfect.

Cards' Golf Squads Drop Final Matches

Hinsdale showed why it won both the state and West Suburban golf championships last Friday afternoon in the season finale against Arlington high school.

Coach Ralph Meyer's varsity Cardinals turned in their finest team score of the spring, but it wasn't enough against the powerful Red Devils.

Hinsdale's low foursome on a varsity level toured Golden Acres golf course in a brilliant 301 for a 22-stroke victory over host Arlington which posted a creditable 323. In fact, all five of Hinsdale's linksmen scored in the 70s in the remarkable show of golf talent.

In the frosh-soph division Hinsdale gained a 342-360 victory.

BILL SHEAN and Jay McGurren both posted even-par 72s for the varsity Red Devils, Jim Wayne came in with a 79, and George Trees and Dave Wise had 79s.

Grant Wallhoff and Doug Wiborg sparked the varsity Cards with fine rounds of 78. Backing this duo were Mike Heyl with an 81 and Rusty Blix and Jerry Peterson with 86s. Only Wallhoff will be missing next spring.

Hinsdale's 301 total was its season best as the previous low had been 303.

IN THE FROSH-soph test Jamey Wolf and George Brinke both carded 88s for Arlington and Rog O'Neil came home in 91. Ken Seeger and Fred Devin both registered 93s.

Anderson's 82 sparked the winning Imps with Hartney firing an 84, Lauerman an 86, and Johnson a 90.

Why you should open a window before you close the door of a Volkswagen.

Don't laugh. Every now and then a new VW owner brings his car in to ask why the doors seem hard to close.

The reason is that the VW is practically airtight. With the windows up, the door meets a solid wall of trapped air. So it takes a little extra push to close it. Unless you open a window just a crack to let the air escape.

It happens because every last VW part fits just so. (When you've been making the same basic car as long as the VW people have, all the wrinkles get ironed out. For good.)

And still, there are 3,500 men who do nothing else but inspect every operation all down the Volkswagen line.

When you come in to drive a new VW, you might make this test: (It's the very same one that the Volkswagen inspector makes during the final inspection of every finished VW.)

Crank up all the windows and try to close a door. Gently. If it doesn't work, you know the VW's perfect.

Strom Captures Waukegan's Main Event on Last Lap

Bill Strom of West Allis, Wis., a young lad with some five years of racing experience behind him, finally broke into the winner's circle as he captured the 25-lap main event for the modified stocks at the Waukegan speedway Sunday night.

Strom won the event in fine fashion as he powered his way from the rear of the 18-car field to take over the lead and eventual win, with but one lap remaining in the event. And the excitement of the battle had the fans on their feet, as Gordon Gorman, Libertyville; Gary Sheldon of Beloit; and Strom battled for the lead from the 12th lap on.

As the gap closed by lap 17, the three were running bumper to bumper in the above order. Tension mounted as the race drew into its final five laps and the fans were treated to some mighty fine driving as the three cars put on a wheel to wheel battle driving into the turns three abreast. Strom found the opening he had been seeking on the white flag lap and snuck by to take the win before 2,600 cheering fans.

His speed was 50.17 m.p.h., just 42/100ths m.p.h. slower than the record held by Miles Melius of Slinger. The measured time was only 3.70 seconds slower than the record. Strom drives a 1935 Chevy Coach powered by a 1958 Edsel engine.

JACK FROST broke the year old record of Homer Ansell of Milwaukee as he drove to victory in the 15-lap test at an average speed of 50.14 m.p.h. Frost's win was somewhat remarkable over Bay Darnell of Deerfield in that Frost was nearly stopped twice in the event by spinouts of other cars and lost considerable time on both occasions. The Zion ace passed Darnell on the 11th lap and then went on to an eighth of a lap victory over him. Tom Powers, another Zionite, had held off Darnell in fine fashion until he spun out on lap four.

The fourth heat was another breathtaker as Carl Jensen, South Milwaukee, beat out Junior Dodd and Homer Ansell on the ninth lap.

For the third time this season, Ted Rozinski, West Allis, had the fastest qualifying time. This time his speed was 51.02 m.p.h. Strom was second fastest man for the night.

Automobile mayhem was served in full course again as the fabulous amateur drivers tested their skills at the wheels of their stock machines. Two flips highlighted the action, one involving Virge Miller of Gurnee, and the other Dewey Moore of Round Lake. Moore suffered a cut hand in the flip and was hospitalized for treatment.

THE WAUKEGAN Speedway will open its gates for the fifth time this season on Sunday, June 11, as the powerful modifieds get set to roll once again. Bill Strom, West Allis; Bay Darnell, Deerfield; and Milt Curcio, Racine, will be seeking their second victories.

Waukegan's track champion of 1960, Greg Krieger of Milwaukee, is expected to make his season debut next Sunday. He will be driving the number 3 car, a model A Ford, powered by a fuel injected 1961 Chevrolet Corvette engine. The amateurs will also return for added thrills.

Time trials begin at 7:15; first race at 8:30. The speedway is located on Washington Street, between the Green Bay Road and U. S. 41. An entrance to the track from off Belvidere Road is also available for public use.

Month Ahead

Roy Sievers of the Chicago White Sox is a month ahead of his home run pace of 1960. He did not hit No. 11 until July 6th last year while his 11th home run of the current campaign gave the White Sox a 6-5 13-inning victory over the New York Yankees in Comiskey Park June 3rd.

THE TWO MEN in charge of the souvenir program booklet for the state Jr. Legion tournament carry out the baseball theme as they discuss the summer spectacle. Al Kluesing (left) and Bill Oas make up an important part of the group that is working on the state tourney slated for Aug. 4-7 at Arlington's Recreational Park. Merchants will be asked to help in the preparation of this booklet, and the proceeds will help defray expenses in connection with the playoffs. The programs will be distributed in communities throughout the state.

Spring Athletes Honored At Arlington's Barbecue

The Cardinals Booster Club of Arlington high school honored the spring sports squads last Thursday evening with an outdoor barbecue on the football field. Athletes and managers in the four spring sports were presented with their awards.

James F. Hendricks, Booster Club president, was the master of ceremonies with a musical prelude by the Arlington high school concert band under the direction of F. C. Schmoyer.

Following the presentation of awards and brief talks by the coaches, Athletic Director Wally Grace presented the Gary Elste Memorial Award to junior John Latta.

The Roselle Color Center team, led by captain Chuck Pugh vaulted into first place in the Hoffman Estates Men's golf league last week. Chuck, John Aquino, John Milke and Tony Montikas all swept their matches from the floundering Team Three and accounted for twelve of their team's twelve and a half point total for the day. John Aquino and John Milke are both challenging Captain Chuck for the number one spot on their team when the teams are rearranged in the next two weeks. May the best man win — and he probably will.

Plaza Liquors returned to the fourth spot after a week in a lower berth by virtue of their ten and one-half point victory over Higgins Shell. E. A. Cameron, Tom Glessner and Dick Krey contributed most of their team's points while Don Rivines and Bill Bailey salvaged five and one-half for the losers.

Harry Grover's Rainbow Inn team picked up nine and one-half points in a decisive victory over Tony's Sinclair although Harry's 42 didn't make much of a contribution. (Captains should shoot better). Frank Marek and Bill Hanson won their matches while John O'Connell split his down the middle. Bill's 46-16, net 30 was six under par and good for low net honors. Captain Ray Larson of the Sinclair team won his match as did Art Murphy, while Joe McGibbon was the other half of the split John O'Connel match.

HARVE'S FOOD Mart is doggedly hanging on to the second spot with a nine point victory over team seven. Harvey Goetsch, Bob Rivines and Bill Borkenhagen brought home match wins, Captain Bob turning in a two over par gross thirty-eight. George Robb and Herb Keesee contributed wins to keep their team just under the break-even point for the night.

For the first time this season, the Roselle State Bank team was on the win side of the totals, edging Schaumrose Inn in a hard fought contest. Captain Roy Palmer led his team to a 9-7 victory aided by Bill Tinkle and Veryl Hootman, resulting in a rise out of the cellar and into a tie for tenth. Jerry Emrick and Jim Gannon each won matches for the losers to keep them from slipping from the eighth spot.

Schaumburg Ace Hardware was also a winner over Snyder's Hoffman Drugs, led by Harold Gillespie, Jack Reedy and Jim Brewner. Bob Powell turned in a good performance for the losers as did Captain Jack Sheridan.

Strom Captures Waukegan's Main Event on Last Lap

Bill Strom of West Allis, Wis., a young lad with some five years of racing experience behind him, finally broke into the winner's circle as he captured the 25-lap main event for the modified stocks at the Waukegan speedway Sunday night.

Strom won the event in fine fashion as he powered his way from the rear of the 18-car field to take over the lead and eventual win, with but one lap remaining in the event. And the excitement of the battle had the fans on their feet, as Gordon Gorman, Libertyville; Gary Sheldon of Beloit; and Strom battled for the lead from the 12th lap on.

As the gap closed by lap 17, the three were running bumper to bumper in the above order. Tension mounted as the race drew into its final five laps and the fans were treated to some mighty fine driving as the three cars put on a wheel to wheel battle driving into the turns three abreast. Strom found the opening he had been seeking on the white flag lap and snuck by to take the win before 2,600 cheering fans.

His speed was 50.17 m.p.h., just 42/100ths m.p.h. slower than the record held by Miles Melius of Slinger. The measured time was only 3.70 seconds slower than the record. Strom drives a 1935 Chevy Coach powered by a 1958 Edsel engine.

JACK FROST broke the year old record of Homer Ansell of Milwaukee as he drove to victory in the 15-lap test at an average speed of 50.14 m.p.h. Frost's win was somewhat remarkable over Bay Darnell of Deerfield in that Frost was nearly stopped twice in the event by spinouts of other cars and lost considerable time on both occasions. The Zion ace passed Darnell on the 11th lap and then went on to an eighth of a lap victory over him. Tom Powers, another Zionite, had held off Darnell in fine fashion until he spun out on lap four.

The fourth heat was another breathtaker as Carl Jensen, South Milwaukee, beat out Junior Dodd and Homer Ansell on the ninth lap.

For the third time this season, Ted Rozinski, West Allis, had the fastest qualifying time. This time his speed was 51.02 m.p.h. Strom was second fastest man for the night.

Automobile mayhem was served in full course again as the fabulous amateur drivers tested their skills at the wheels of their stock machines. Two flips highlighted the action, one involving Virge Miller of Gurnee, and the other Dewey Moore of Round Lake. Moore suffered a cut hand in the flip and was hospitalized for treatment.

THE WAUKEGAN Speedway will open its gates for the fifth time this season on Sunday, June 11, as the powerful modifieds get set to roll once again. Bill Strom, West Allis; Bay Darnell, Deerfield; and Milt Curcio, Racine, will be seeking their second victories.

Waukegan's track champion of 1960, Greg Krieger of Milwaukee, is expected to make his season debut next Sunday. He will be driving the number 3 car, a model A Ford, powered by a fuel injected 1961 Chevrolet Corvette engine. The amateurs will also return for added thrills.

Time trials begin at 7:15; first race at 8:30. The speedway is located on Washington Street, between the Green Bay Road and U. S. 41. An entrance to the track from off Belvidere Road is also available for public use.

Month Ahead

Roy Sievers of the Chicago White Sox is a month ahead of his home run pace of 1960. He did not hit No. 11 until July 6th last year while his 11th home run of the current campaign gave the White Sox a 6-5 13-inning victory over the New York Yankees in Comiskey Park June 3rd.

Cantino Builders Rolls On; Bumps Jim's Service

Cantino Builders continued to dominate the Wayside-Colette golf league despite the fact that only four players were available. Wins by Bob Sabin and Phil Hoss coupled with Dick Ulbrich's tie and Bob Sabin's low individual net gave the Builders a 4½-1½ win over Jim's Service.

Quadriga Mfg. Company garnered a 4-2 win from Continental Can. Don Dack scored a win and individual low net together with a Bob Ulbrich Sr. win for the four points.

Beverly Lanes dropped Lauterburg & Oehler to third place by trouncing them 4-2 on wins by Jack Garrity and Orville Kron and a tie by Merle Kingsley.

DETROIT STEEL pounced on a shorthanded Chicago Agency-Pacific Mutual team and whipped them 5-1 on wins by Tom Stinson, Jordon Italia and Bob Ulbrich Jr. Ulbrich also added another point to the Detroit total with a 33 low individual net.

City Welding Unit In Two Point Lead

City Welding Sales pulled away from New Emerald Cleaners as they took over first place in the Arlington Heights Twilight golf league after last Friday's action at Golden Acres country club. It was a night that saw quite a shuffle in the team standings, Harris Pharmacy, led by Len Haines, Jr., took team point honors by scoring 9-½ points. This moved them from last place to ninth in the standings.

In individual play, it was a night of birdies, most of which were made on the first nine. C. Kleinhofen and Jack Makinson had birds on No. 7, Ted Linstrom and Ken Seegger on No. 6, C. Jamison on No. 3 and G. Blaar on No. 9. On the back nine L. Duntemann and S. Luczak posted birds on the 14th and Gail Webber a bird on No. 10.

It looks like the golfers are finding their range as there were a lot of low scores. However, C. Jamison and J. Andrup tied for low gross with 38's and Bill Schoepke took low net with a 31.

Arnold Sparks Webber Paint to Five-Point Lead

Webber Paint with another great team effort in the Rob Roy Tuesday league increased their lead to five points as they snatched six points from a bewildered Golf Rand Golf Center team. Len Arnold, with a snappy 37 gross, was once again the big gun for the Webber team by garnering two of the six points.

Prospect Heights Service Station continued their climb to the top of the league by jumping from sixth place to second as they shutout Ray Statz and Associates and added seven points to their own total. Joe DeMichele with a 42-6, low net 36, was the star performer for the service station team, but had fine support with two well played rounds by Bob Noble and Chuck Van Boxtaele.

Kelter Insurance hung on to third place by the slim margin of a point as they gained a split for the evening from a stubborn C-P Floor Tile team. In this match Bill Grandstaff of Kelter and Clare Peterson of C-P had identical low net scores of 36 to share the honors in this category. The outstanding match of the season so far found Dick Craig, number one man for L'Nor Cleaners, locked in a do or die duel with one of the finest all around shotmakers in the league and number one man for Prospect Heights Variety, Bert Casteel.

DICK SHOT a spectacular low gross 35 with a two handicap for a low net of 33 and Bert was the victim with 37-3, low net 34 to lose a heartbreaker on the last hole when a putt decided to stop one inch from the hole. All this happened on the tough back nine and according to Bert he was up against a man who played a perfect round of golf.

Tony Donushi of C-P Floor Tile holed out a 30 yard approach shot on the fourth hole for a birdie two and Bill Lloyd of the alternate group wound up an eventful golf evening by shooting a 37-4 low net 33.

Cantino Builders Rolls On; Bumps Jim's Service

Cantino Builders continued to dominate the Wayside-Colette golf league despite the fact that only four players were available. Wins by Bob Sabin and Phil Hoss coupled with Dick Ulbrich's tie and Bob Sabin's low individual net gave the Builders a 4½-1½ win over Jim's Service.

City Welding Unit In Two Point Lead

City Welding Sales pulled away from New Emerald Cleaners as they took over first place in the Arlington Heights Twilight golf league after last Friday's action at Golden Acres country club. It was a night that saw quite a shuffle in the team standings, Harris Pharmacy, led by Len Haines, Jr., took team point honors by scoring 9-½ points. This moved them from last place to ninth in the standings.

In individual play, it was a night of birdies, most of which were made on the first nine. C. Kleinhofen and Jack Makinson had birds on No. 7, Ted Linstrom and Ken Seeger on No. 6, C. Jamison on No. 3 and G. Blaar on No. 9. On the back nine L. Duntemann and S. Luczak posted birds on the 14th and Gail Webber a bird on No. 10.

It looks like the golfers are finding their range as there were a lot of low scores. However, C. Jamison and J. Andrup tied for low gross with 38's and Bill Schoepke took low net with a 31.

Arnold Sparks Webber Paint to Five-Point Lead

Webber Paint with another great team effort in the Rob Roy Tuesday league increased their lead to five points as they snatched six points from a bewildered Golf Rand Golf Center team. Len Arnold, with a snappy 37 gross, was once again the big gun for the Webber team by garnering two of the six points.

Prospect Heights Service Station continued their climb to the top of the league by jumping from sixth place to second as they shutout Ray Statz and Associates and added seven points to their own total. Joe DeMichele with a 42-6, low net 36, was the star performer for the service station team, but had fine support with two well played rounds by Bob Noble and Chuck Van Boxtaele.

Kelter Insurance hung on to third place by the slim margin of a point as they gained a split for the evening from a stubborn C-P Floor Tile team. In this match Bill Grandstaff of Kelter and Clare Peterson of C-P had identical low net scores of 36 to share the honors in this category. The outstanding match of the season so far found Dick Craig, number one man for L'Nor Cleaners, locked in a do or die duel with one of the finest all around shotmakers in the league and number one man for Prospect Heights Variety, Bert Casteel.

DICK SHOT a spectacular low gross 35 with a two handicap for a low net of 33 and Bert was the victim with 37-3, low net 34 to lose a heartbreaker on the last hole when a putt decided to stop one inch from the hole. All this happened on the tough back nine and according to Bert he was up against a man who played a perfect round of golf.

Tony Donushi of C-P Floor Tile holed out a 30 yard approach shot on the fourth hole for a birdie two and Bill Lloyd of the alternate group wound up an eventful golf evening by shooting a 37-4 low net 33.

Dog Hero Award—

From now until the end of June, the Ken-L-Ration division of the Quaker Oats company will be a busy place, what with the staff going through all the newspaper clippings, letters and memoranda from throughout the United States, searching for the country's Dog Hero of Heros award for 1961.

The competition, which officially closes June 30, will be judged by well-known personages of the dog world after each entry is carefully screened by the Ken-L-Ration staff. As of the end of May, more than 50 dogs representing 26 states qualified for the competition. These dogs have earned the right to compete for the nation's top canine citation by first having received local awards.

Once a dog has been proclaimed a hero on the local scene, he is eligible for the national competition. In passing, it is of interest to note that this is the eighth consecutive year the award will be made. When you hear of the stories, it makes your hair stand on end when you think of what some dogs go through just to help their owner, or, for that matter, many times a complete stranger.

Not long ago your editor was driving past a home for the aged and children in one of our local towns. It was a warm spring afternoon, the trees were just starting to get full leaves, the grass was green and here and there flowers were adding new color to the scene.

Seated on a bench near one of the buildings were two elderly gentlemen watching the passing cars. Nearbye, stretched out full lenght was a large, beautiful collie. What makes it worth writing about was that the dog just seemed to form a part of a picture. He, or she, had a very grey muzzle and with head held high taking in everything passing the grounds just seemed to belong in the perfect picture.

Ravinia Park Open June 27

New sound equipment will be installed in Ravinia's pavilion for the 1961 summer concerts, Julien H. Collins, chairman of the Ravinia Festival association, announced last week. The 26th festival season opens Tuesday, June 27.

Ravinia's artistic director Walter Hendl will conduct the first concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and pianist Leon Fleisher will be soloist.

Ravinia park, which seats 3,000 in its pavilion and accommodates many thousands more on its spacious lawns, has contracted for the latest sound equipment to improve fidelity and tonal balance. This will improve better listening, particularly for the audience outside the pavilion.

AN INCREASE in microphone facilities will contribute to better pickup technique at the stage and a more natural reproduction of sound, Collins said.

Sound reinforcement inside the pavilion may be used, whenever necessary, for solo performances, quartets and combos. Special care will be taken to provide competent operating personnel for the new equipment.

In addition to announcing plans for modernizing the acoustical system, Collins reported the pricing schedule for reserve seats for various performances and the selection of Ravinia for two benefit evenings.

MARIA SCHELL (center) suspects something more than a casual acquaintance between her husband, Glenn Ford, and Anne Baxter, when the latter visits him on a business errand. The scene is from "Cimarron," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular film version of Edna Ferber's novel of the great land rush of 1889 and the opening of the Oklahoma Territory. The picture was filmed in CinemaScope and color, partly on vast locations in Arizona, with a cast of 368 speaking roles.

Director Chosen For B.O.B. Show

B.O.B. Players, Inc., this week hired Kermit Allen to direct "Annie Get Your Gun," first presentation for this season.

Allen's theatre background includes 12 years experience as a director, summer stock, and co-founder, actor, and director of the Elmwood Park Adult Little Theatre group.

Among his acting credits are the roles of Sakini in "Teahouse of the August Moon," Oliver Erwenter in the "Silver Whistle," and Koko in "The Mikado." As a director he has staged numerous musical variety shows, as well as three shows a year for the last four years with the Elmwood Park Adult Little Theatre.

He also teaches speech, drama, and English at the Elmwood Park Community high school, and does professional modeling for TV, newspapers and magazines.

The next meeting of B.O.B. Players, Inc., is June 12 at 8 p.m. at the Palatine Community Park Field House, a half block west of Northwest highway on the north side of Palatine road. All meetings are open to the public. (Bill

Summer Art Classes Slated for Children

By LUCILE ERNST

If you feel your child or someone else's child has a talent in art, you may want to remember that summer classes at the Countryside Art center will begin July 10.

Instruction will be given in all media. The fee is $20 for a three week period. Registrations will be taken at Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights.

Morning classes will be taught by Barbara Houskeeper and afternoon classes by Ruth Oster. This year's classes have produced some extraordinary work.

THERE are so many people who know they have no talent and have never had a deep drive to express themselves in any way, yet they enjoy seeing paintings and believe that art is an important part of any civilazation.

These people are more important to art and artists than they realize and always have been. In a very real sense, they have contributed as much to the arts as the producting artists. Often they are almost diffident and don't know what to do with their interest, since they know they are not artists themselves.

If you feel you are one of these appreciative people, by all means join an art group. The Countryside Art Center even has a special membership for you, an associative membership. Get in touch with Mrs. John Shillington, 235 Warren ave., Palatine.

I BELIEVE it was Tolstoi who said that all unhappy families are very much alike. A happy family is, in a sense, unique for all happy families are happy in a different way. A similiar statement could be made about art.

All bad art is rather alike. Good art is, in the same way, unique. Each painting is good for a different reason. This quality of good art being different has never passed unnoticed. As a matter of fact, it reached a point of no return during the thirties from which it has never recovered. Artists were more intent in attempting to be original than they were attempting to paint with any degree of good craftmanship or any sense of communication.

Artists of this period went to some pretty funny extremes. Some included actual garbage in their paintings. The effect was not as overpowering as the aroma.

THIS CONSTANT search for shock appeal has resulted not in originality but rather in a sense of sameness. Whether one walks across the canvas with paint smeared feet or smears paint on with his hand, the net result is very much the same. The originality should be in the mind of the artist, not in the technique he chooses to use.

A truly creative artist is concerned with what he has to say and will find a medium to express this properly. He will not be like a child who is enraptured with each new technique.

I have rather a strong hunch that the sensationalism of recent years is about over. In its place will come inevitably, a return to the importance of ideas and feelings.

THE DAY was marked, at least for me, when I watched a demonstration of a machine which produced some charming abstract designs. They were really quite good. If all that artists are expected to do is create nice designs, they are obsolete. A machine can do the job just as well.

What no machine can do and most people can't do is reach down into the powerhouse of the subconscious and find a new and different aspect to this ordinary world. This is the province of the arts. (Bill

Summer Art Classes Slated for Children

By LUCILE ERNST

If you feel your child or someone else's child has a talent in art, you may want to remember that summer classes at the Countryside Art center will begin July 10.

Instruction will be given in all media. The fee is $20 for a three week period. Registrations will be taken at Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights.

Morning classes will be taught by Barbara Houskeeper and afternoon classes by Ruth Oster. This year's classes have produced some extraordinary work.

THERE are so many people who know they have no talent and have never had a deep drive to express themselves in any way, yet they enjoy seeing paintings and believe that art is an important part of any civilazation.

These people are more important to art and artists than they realize and always have been. In a very real sense, they have contributed as much to the arts as the producting artists. Often they are almost diffident and don't know what to do with their interest, since they know they are not artists themselves.

If you feel you are one of these appreciative people, by all means join an art group. The Countryside Art Center even has a special membership for you, an associative membership. Get in touch with Mrs. John Shillington, 235 Warren ave., Palatine.

I BELIEVE it was Tolstoi who said that all unhappy families are very much alike. A happy family is, in a sense, unique for all happy families are happy in a different way. A similiar statement could be made about art.

All bad art is rather alike. Good art is, in the same way, unique. Each painting is good for a different reason. This quality of good art being different has never passed unnoticed. As a matter of fact, it reached a point of no return during the thirties from which it has never recovered. Artists were more intent in attempting to be original than they were attempting to paint with any degree of good craftmanship or any sense of communication.

Artists of this period went to some pretty funny extremes. Some included actual garbage in their paintings. The effect was not as overpowering as the aroma.

THIS CONSTANT search for shock appeal has resulted not in originality but rather in a sense of sameness. Whether one walks across the canvas with paint smeared feet or smears paint on with his hand, the net result is very much the same. The originality should be in the mind of the artist, not in the technique he chooses to use.

A truly creative artist is concerned with what he has to say and will find a medium to express this properly. He will not be like a child who is enraptured with each new technique.

I have rather a strong hunch that the sensationalism of recent years is about over. In its place will come inevitably, a return to the importance of ideas and feelings.

THE DAY was marked, at least for me, when I watched a demonstration of a machine which produced some charming abstract designs. They were really quite good. If all that artists are expected to do is create nice designs, they are obsolete. A machine can do the job just as well.

What no machine can do and most people can't do is reach down into the powerhouse of the subconscious and find a new and different aspect to this ordinary world. This is the province of the arts. (Bill

Beware of Dangers In Home Purchase

(This is the second in a series of articles provided as a public service by the Illinois State Bar association for Paddock Publications.)

The purchase of a home is probably the largest single investment that the average person makes during his lifetime. There are many dangers involved in this apparently simple transaction.

The few rules of thumb outlined below are suggested so that you, as a home-buyer, will be able to enjoy your new home without annoyance and unexpected expenditure, and resell without difficulty.

After the prospective purchaser decides to buy, and the price is agreed upon, the question of a contract arises. The buyer is often urged to sign a paper immediately, and at the same time to make a cash deposit. He may be told by the owner or agent that the paper is merely a form of "binder" which everyone uses.

It usually consists of an offer to purchase, and if it is accepted by the seller, a binding contract will be created even though the buyer has been told that a "contract" will be signed later. That first paper establishes many of the buyer's most important rights and duties in the transaction, and if it does not adequately protect his interests, he may find that what appeared to be an attractive purchase is in fact a serious financial liability.

THE FOLLOWING are some of the more important things a buyer should look for in the contract of purchase.

The contract should contain the technical legal description of the property and not merely a street number. The purchaser should make certain that all structures on the land are inside the lot lines, and that there are no structures encroaching from adjoining lots.

The contract should set out the purchase price and the amount of any money deposited in connection with the contract. The agreed method of payment should be stated clearly. Should the buyer intend to borrow part of the purchase price, the contract should provide for cancellation and return of the cash deposit if he is unable to obtain a loan on satisfactory terms.

Also, if the buyer intends to take over an existing mortgage, he should carefully examine the terms of the mortgage in advance.

The contract should require the seller to provide an abstract of title within a specified time. But the buyer cannot rely on the abstract alone. It must be examined by an attorney who will render an opinion on the present quality of title.

THE CONTRACT should specify the type of deed the buyer is to receive. If the seller conveys by "warranty deed," he promises to protect the buyer if the buyer does not receive the entire possession and title which the deed is supposed to convey. Much less protection is afforded by a quit-claim deed. As a general rule, a buyer should not agree to accept anything but a warranty deed, without the advice of an attorney.

It is important that the contract specify the date the buyer is to take possession of the house. If he is delayed in acquiring possession, he may be subjected to heavy additional expenses. A provision allowing the purchaser to withhold a part of the purchase price or cash payment until he is in possession will help to protect him on this point.

A frequent source of difficulty is the question of personal property to be sold with the house such as carpeting, storm windows, stone, etc. The contract should list the property to go to the buyer and that to go to the seller. The buyer should also check for recent improvements on the land, or the delivery of material to the premises, which might be the basis for a contractor's lien he would have to pay to prevent foreclosure.

FINALLY, the contract should set up a reasonable time schedule for the completion of the sale. Dates for furnishing evidence of title by the seller, the time allowed to the seller to settle any objections to title, and the date for the closing, should be specified. The contract, as well as the deed, should be signed by the seller and, if he is married, by his wife also.

(This column is written to inform and not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without consulting his attorney. Even a slight difference in the facts may change the result under the law.)

Fellowship to Observe Children's Day Sunday

Children's day will be celebrated this Sunday by Countryside Unitarian Universalist Fellowship when teachers and children of the church school will show the adult congregation how the school is conducted.

"Philosophy of the Unitarian Universalist church is to introduce religion to the smallest children through experiences that are immediately related to their o‥n lives," said Pat King, a ‥nber of the congregation. seeing things grow and hearing stories about people like themselves and their families they learn to appreciate the beauty and wonder of nature and to begin to understand such concepts as love and justice.

"Older children study the ideas and the historical backgrounds of their own religion and other religions in an attempt to see, understand and appreciate the role of religion in their own lives and in the life of mankind." (A13

New Shop Hours

The Next-To-New-Shop located in the parish hall of St. Simon's Episcopal church, 717 W. Kirchoff rd., will be opening under a new summer schedule next week, according to Mrs. Russell Colvin, Arlington Heights, chairman of the project.

The shop will operate on Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., instead of on Mondays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Many summer items including a beautiful bridal gown, sleeveless cottons, shorts, and a few bathing suits are now available, Mrs. Colvin said. (B8

Community Chest Fund Totals Up

Total receipts for 1960 raised by the Suburban Community Chest Council exceed 1959 totals by more than 21 per cent, according to the council's annual report released this week.

With more than 200 companies cooperating, $363,238.90 was turned over for distribution among some 350 communities and agencies.

In the northwest suburban area, members participating in the Community Chest included Mount Prospect, Addison and Des Plaines. Non-members also taking part in the effort were Barrington and Prospect Heights.

DES PLAINES led this area with $3,701.30, followed by Addison with $2,006.09, Mt. Prospect with $1,776.83, Barrington with $1,673.37, and Prospect Heights with $510.24.

This was the 12th year the suburban council has been in operation. (A14

Negro Suburbs Are Predicted

The not-too-distant future will see the burgeoning of Negro suburbs, Prof. Raymond Mack, professor of sociology at Northwestern University, said in an interview.

Prof. Mack, who teaches courses in race relations, said, "The economic and social level of the Chicago Negro is rising all the time."

Of necessity, Prof. Mack said, to relieve the population pressures in Chicago because of urban slum clearance and the influx of southern Negroes and whites, the Negro who can afford it will move to the suburbs.

TODAY THE city of Chicago is 24 per cent Negro. Sociologists, Prof. Mack among them, believe that by 1975 the Negroes in Chicago will total more than half the city's population. Approximately 3,000 Negro migrants enter the city each month from the South.

Legislation like fair employment practices laws, anti-housing-discrimination codes, and an expanding economy will aid the Negro, said Prof. Mack.

The suburbs where Negroes move will be all or almost all Negro, Prof. Mack said. The reason for this is that so many Negroes will be "fleeing" to the suburbs that housing patterns similar to those in Chicago will develop. Whites will shy away from early Negro settlements. Then the settlements will be all Negro.

"The status of the Negro has been improving in Chicago ever since the turn of the century," Prof. Mack said.

"IN THE 1920's Negroes held only menial jobs. They could not enter most restaurants.

"Today there are Negro doctors, lawyers, dentists, business executives, journalists, and they can enter most restaurants and other public places in Chicago." (A14

City, Suburbs Vie For Industry Land

The industrial honeymoon is over.

Mayor Richard J. Daley last week announced that Chicago will make a determined effort to halt the movement of industry from the city to suburbs.

He released a study analyzing the movement and expansion of manufacturing establishments in Chicago and suburbs for a 12-year period. The report documented the increased number of firms which have abandoned Chicago for new suburban sites.

In releasing the report recommending that Chicago provide land for industry at prices competitive with suburbs, Mayor Daley said a chief cause of industrial movements to outlying communities was the high cost of land in relation to areas needed for modern production techniques. Another reason was the exploding suburban population growth; some industries moved to relocate nearer consumer markets or new sources of labor.

Suburban officials and civic leaders must awaken to the fact that Chicago is going to vie with suburbia for new industry.

There is widespread recognition today in northwest suburbs of the importance and value of suitable industry.

In addition to wanting industry, and the creation of a community atmosphere favorable to industry, our suburbs must develop a bold and ambitious selling program on the advantages of a suburban location. These advantages include: easy access to rail, air and highway networks; availability of land and lower land costs; improved working conditions for employees, and for many workers the end of long-distance commuting; and a ready-made labor force of skilled workers and technicians who prefer working in a suburban environment.

Suburbia must become increasingly aware of its merits in attracting industry. It must communicate these merits through a vigorous program which will assure:

—orderly growth of suitable industry;

—establish area-wide, inter-community cooperation in industrial development; and —make available information, counseling, and assistance in the location of industrial operations.

Voters Need the Facts

The problem of informing the public of community needs is a continuing one for school boards, park commissions, and municipalities.

Recognizing this communications problem is the first step these taxing bodies can make toward solving it.

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove School District 21 last week did show recognition of the need. Its means of solving the problem, however, are somewhat questionable.

It was proposed that the board hire a public relations expert to carry the school district's needs to the taxpayers. This seems to indicate that the board would want to serve up to the voters only that portion of information favorable to the school board's point of view.

It appears, however, that this method, when considered from a practical standpoint alone, is far from efficient in the passage of school bond issues or the raising of an educational tax levy.

In a democratic society, there is something uncommonly irritating about applying Madison ave. techniques toward the solving of educational problems.

It has been demonstrated that the people will readily approve tax increases for schools if a real need is shown. Of course, they have to be convinced of that need. This is best done by acquainting them with all the facts.

The public will be able to make its most sensible judgments on the basis of being fully familiar with its subject. Anything less leads to confusion, dissention, rumors, even the feeling of being duped.

A statistical analysis shows that four years ago a Cook county suburban school bond issue carried a 50-1 chance of approval. This automatic margin of success has been whittled down to a 4-1 differential.

With such odds, it is no longer possible for school districts to reach for the rubber stamp when a new school is required. From now on they will have to demonstrate a real need in order to gain any assurances of success.

In this regard, it would appear that rather than increase expenditures with the hiring of a publicity merchant, school boards would do well to enlist the assistance of citizens' committees to investigate their needs.

How Can We Avert Death?

Modern times have created many phenomena. It is phenomenal that so many persons kill themselves and their fellows while operating automobiles. This killing is especially great in periods when man seeks pleasure and good fellowship, such as the celebration of national holidays. A record-breaking number of 462 persons died in automobile accidents during the Memorial day weekend this year.

This heavy kill, called "the holiday death toll," was accomplished despite a continuous stream of warnings, exhortations, and sound advice directed to motorists via press, radio and television.

People habitually seek solutions to difficult situations by learning how someone else solved a similar problem and then adopting his methods. In the case of the traffic slaughter, these doesn't seem to be a parallel.

A slumping ballplayer is directed by his manager to sit on the bench. The motorist who makes mistakes, however, goes to the grave.

A year and a half ago the public was told of possible dangers from a spray which had been used on cranberries, and everyone took extraordinary precautions to avoid contamination. The American public, in the role of cranberry eaters, is much more cautious than as motorists.

Perhaps American drivers have become fatalistic, and regard the highways as a vast laboratory in which the sociological views of Herbert Spencer on the survival of the fittest are being proved in an experiment which is both scientific and inevitable.

Perhaps, in this fatalistic mood, the public mind links the words "death" and "automobiles" as naturally as it links the words "death" and "war," and even accords to dead motorists a measure of the respect won by soldiers on the battlefield.

In World War I an infantry sergeant gained fame by shouting to the men under his command: "Come on, you . . .! Do you want to live forever?" Should we place traffic cops at the busiest intersections, and have them shout to motorists: "Come on, you . . .! Do you want to live forever?"

This might have shock value for a weekend or so. But in the face of the Memorial day death totals, one is tempted to ask if any kind of advice does any good.

Symbol of Our Creed

Memory sometimes embellishes "the good old days." Still it seems to us that the American flag was displayed more often on national holidays a generation ago than it is today.

Not that we want to preach about displaying the flag on Flag day June 14 or on July 4. Preaching at people often accomplishes the opposite result from that intended.

We know, too, how easy it is to mistake the symbol of something for the thing itself. This can be true in matters of patriotism, as it is in education, religion and other areas.

However, symbols are necessary things. How else but by a symbol could a nation give a tangible expression of devotion to the creed of individual freedoms and democratic self-government? The American flag is the symbol of that creed.

The principles it represents have cast blessings upon all Americans (which each one might define in his own way) and every citizen has good reason to display the flag on Flag day and Independence day.

New Religious Survey Is Variety of Data

by MARTIN E. MARTY

"The New Time Religion" by Claire Cox (Prentice-Hall, $3.95) is the most interesting and most superficial of the many recent studies of American religious interest.

Written in the style of a Sunday supplement, it gathers an amazing variety of bits of information concerning Americans' well-known preoccupation with the spiritual and its incarnation in religious institutions.

Dozens of short paragraphs pile on point after point without much in the line of summary or helpful information.

THE NET effect: one is fascinated along the way, but doesn't remember much. Her book is not likely to change peoples' lives as much as it might.

For one thing, it comes a little late along the way. Most experienced historians, journalists, and churchmen date the end of the recent religious revival in 1957, four years ago. By that time all of the peaks and crests had been reached, all the decisive personalities had presented themselves to the American scene.

She writes as if we are still on the Everest we reached in 1957. This does not mean that Americans are turning away in droves. We still spend a billion a year for new religious edifices. We still see growing denominations and congregations.

BUT THE danger signs are there, too. The revival failed to 'go deep' and prove itself by any appreciable effect on national morality and custom. It failed to produce enough interest in the question "Is it true?" as it had in the question "Is it useful?" It failed to make its way in the great new concentrations of rootless people in America's inner cities. It began to meet with apathy and rejection on many campuses.

Still, Miss Cox is correct: an amazing phenomenon is here at hand: out of a variety of sources, authentic or hokum at base, a nation was preoccupied with religion in new ways, both to soothe its anxieties and to justify its prosperities. The nation gave the churches its ear. Where churches were alert they consolidated real gains in the 1950s; where they were exploitative they merely 'used' the revival for their own institutional ends and will soon be paying for this exploitation.

EVERY READER of this paper will find something of interest in Miss Cox' chapters: why the Bible is the least read best-seller; what is going on in the Sunday Schools; why motion picture stars "get religion" and why politicians did, too.

The thoughtful reader may begin to draw his own conclusions too as to what went wrong and how to correct it. The usefulness of the book centers here.

Summary: she calls it 'new time' but it is already getting to be 'old time.'

Legislature's Final Days Are Most Vital

by REP. PAUL SIMON

How can the average citizen keep informed on what is happening in the state legislature during the final weeks, when action comes so quickly?

That question is not easy to answer, because these last weeks of the General Assembly are filled with activity. We must adjourn by July 1. During these next weeks action will be taken on more than 2000 bills.

HERE ARE some practical ways you can find out what is happening:

1. Follow your newspapers. The headlines on what is happening in Springfield may not be as big as some others; the story may not be as interesting as a story about some murder or rape. But more citizens must discipline their newspaper reading habits to follow more closely what government is doing.

2. Ask for an information bulletin from organizations to which you belong. Many groups have periodic reports about action in Springfield, usually with a particular slant. These include the Council of Churches, the P.T.A., unions, business groups, farm groups, and others. Limitations on this kind of information are that their interests tend to be very specialized, and sometimes they give a one sided approach to legislation.

3. You can write to the Legislative Reference Bureau, Capitol Building, Springfield, Illinois, and receive a bulletin put out by the state for $5 giving in summary form what is happening in all legislation. If there are bills you want to see in full, the offices of the Senate and House will be happy to supply them to you.

4. Write to your legislator asking for information on bills in which you have a particular interest. Here you should remember that the mail the legislator receives is heavy these days. I am several weeks behind in answering my mail, and I am sure many other legislators find themselves in a similar situation.

WHY ARE the final days in Springfield so chaotic?

There is no simple answer.

Part of it is the human tendency to postpone. The student "crams" the night before his exams, and the last days of the legislative session are the "finals" for legislators. Like students, too often we postpone our studying to the last minute.

Part of it is that committees have to work on legislation, and frequently when it appears to the public that nothing is happening, a committee or sub-committee may be working on a measure.

The other part of it is that there are some who purposely want things to be confused and hectic so that they can kill or pass legislation that might receive the opposite treatment were there more time for consideration.

WHATEVER the cause for these busy last days of the legislature, these are the days when the public should pay particular interest to what is happening.

These days you can be helped—or sold down the river—in a matter of minutes.

CZAR: Hello, New York Times. Give me the boss. Hello, T. C., David Bluepencil here. Say, this story about Caroline cutting down a Cherry tree on the White House lawn and then blaming it on Salinger isn't exactly true. She said it was Udall. Yeah, and until the President really finds out, it would look like you know what, having the Secretary of the Interior chopping down trees. You know these conservation groups. They'd want his neck. You don't want to cost a man his job without all the facts being known.

When will the investigation be complete? Hmm. Let me see. The President starts his good will tour of Latin America, Asia and the Middle East this week, so he won't be back for a month or so. No, Udall is out in Oregon on a camping trip. Where exactly. Look, baby, that guy's some kind of outdoor nut. I couldn't say. He took his tent with him, though. Well, yeah, he'll be back in a while—a month or so. He's not available for comment now, unless you got some Explorer Scout working for you. Ho, Ho, Ha, Hew. Listen kid, here's another angle. It was a JAPANESE Cherry tree. You don't want to start those Jap students rioting again. Something like this could start them snake-dancing through the streets again. You don't want the President to have to cancel his trip to Tokyo, do you? You don't think they would? Hey, I have a CTA report right in front of me that says the Japanese Reds have infiltrated the 4-H clubs of Tokyo and Hiroshima. What these Red farmers could do with this, whew.

NOW LOOK, T. C., the ramifications of this thing are enormous. What do you mean, 'that's a PR term?' Its gospel, boy. Look, here's what I mean. They call George Washington the father of our country, right? What will they call Jack? The father of the kid who wouldn't tell the truth about the Cherry tree. It would ruin his image, positively. No, I don't think Caroline was just pulling everyone's leg. She's a pretty serious kid.

Here's something else to consider. What about the Carpenter's Union. Very sensitive bunch. What do you mean, I'm lint picking? The carpenters don't like anyone who's not a member picking up hatchets and hammers and that sort of stuff. In fact, we'd probably get squawks from the lumberjacks.

You were going to write this up in 'tongue in cheek' fashion? Boy, am I glad I called you. Look, this is serious business. It could have a lot of repercussions overseas. I know Caroline's only a three-year-old. But think of this. People will be saying the President fell down on the job raising her. I'm not kidding. First thing you know, the PTAs in the country will be asking for his impeachment so he can spend more time with his family.

WHAT DO you mean I'm admitting Caroline did it? I am not. Actually, I have a private idea about this. I think the whole thing was Red-inspired to embarrass the President and his family. I will tell you this. The FBI and CIA are looking into it. Now why print anything that will give aid and comfort to the enemy.

Look, why don't we do this. After the FBI and CIA turn in their reports, I'll see to it that you're the first one to see them. Could be a real scoop. When will they make the reports? That's a fair question. I wish I could answer it. They're working on it day and night, so it shouldn't be too long. Yeah, in about a month I guess.

WHAT! You have a picture of Caroline chopping down the tree. I don't believe it. Now look, T.C., what possible reason could you have for printing it? It's cute. Oh, come on, your readers wouldn't be interested in something like that. Look, I can give you an exclusive shot. The President chops his own wood for the White House fireplace. Didn't know that, huh? Salinger was thinking of inviting all the papers in on it with the angle of, you know, relating it to the railsplitter from Illinois sort of image. I think I could intervene for you for an exclusive.

YOU LIKE the Caroline picture better? Okay, you're the editor. But I can't vouch for your man here in Washington getting any cooperation anymore. All right, go ahead and run it. But here's a final thought. It's not your job to create news, and that's what you'll be doing what with those nutty Japs rioting again. You don't think they will. I hope you're right. I'd hate to be in your shoes now, though. What a terrific responsibility on your shoulders.

You'll think about it? That's my boy. If it hadn't involved a matter of national security, I wouldn't have called you, you know that. Give it some thought, T.C. See you around. Goodby.

You were going to write this up in 'tongue in cheek' fashion? Boy, am I glad I called you. Look, this is serious business. It could have a lot of repercussions overseas. I know Caroline's only a three-year-old. But think of this. People will be saying the President fell down on the job raising her. I'm not kidding. First thing you know, the PTAs in the country will be asking for his impeachment so he can spend more time with his family.

WHAT DO you mean I'm admitting Caroline did it? I am not. Actually, I have a private idea about this. I think the whole thing was Red-inspired to embarrass the President and his family. I will tell you this. The FBI and CIA are looking into it. Now why print anything that will give aid and comfort to the enemy.

Look, why don't we do this. After the FBI and CIA turn in their reports, I'll see to it that you're the first one to see them. Could be a real scoop. When will they make the reports? That's a fair question. I wish I could answer it. They're working on it day and night, so it shouldn't be too long. Yeah, in about a month I guess.

WHAT! You have a picture of Caroline chopping down the tree. I don't believe it. Now look, T.C., what possible reason could you have for printing it? It's cute. Oh, come on, your readers wouldn't be interested in something like that. Look, I can give you an exclusive shot. The President chops his own wood for the White House fireplace. Didn't know that, huh? Salinger was thinking of inviting all the papers in on it with the angle of, you know, relating it to the railsplitter from Illinois sort of image. I think I could intervene for you for an exclusive.

YOU LIKE the Caroline picture better? Okay, you're the editor. But I can't vouch for your man here in Washington getting any cooperation anymore. All right, go ahead and run it. But here's a final thought. It's not your job to create news, and that's what you'll be doing what with those nutty Japs rioting again. You don't think they will. I hope you're right. I'd hate to be in your shoes now, though. What a terrific responsibility on your shoulders.

You'll think about it? That's my boy. If it hadn't involved a matter of national security, I wouldn't have called you, you know that. Give it some thought, T.C. See you around. Goodby.

20-Inch Corn Rows Show No Advantage

Corn planted in rows 20 inches wide with a high plant food application yielded about the same as conventional 40-inch rows in 1960 tests at the University of Illinois agronomy research farm.

Agronomist L. B. Miller reports that the corn in 20-inch rows grew taller and was more spindly. Since the weather late in the season was quite favorable, the narrow-row corn stood quite well. But if storms or heav winds had hit this corn, Miller suspects that they would have broken over more quickly than the corn in the 40-inch rows.

CORN IN THE 40-inch rows seemed to survive better. With two stalks per hill, the seedlings broke through the soil crust better, Miller observed. The ideal width for corn rows probably lies somewhere between 20 and 40 inches, he points out. Future research will explore this question.

In this experiment the agronomists also planted at rates of 16,000, 24,000, and 32,000 plants per acre. The 16,000 and 24,000 rates produced the highest yields. Miller believes that, with standard hybrids now available, the ideal plant population for most farmers will run about 16,000 surviving plants per acre.

All plots had received limestone. One plot received no additional treatment. Other plots received (1) a plow-down application of 500 pounds phosphate and 250 pounds potash per acre, and (2) the No. 1 treatment plus 40 tons of manure per acre. Yields were about the same for the fertilized plots and the fertilized plots plus manure.

THIS RESULT is not surprising, Miller points out. When fertility is adequate according to soil tests, adding more plant food doesn't hurt yields, but it doesn't help much either.

Agronomists plan to continue this study for several more years to watch the effects of heavy fertilization, plant populations and row widths. The heavy application of organic matter supplied by the manure might provide a clue to the effects of continuous corn on soils given this type of treatment. (FM

Bred Sow Upkeep Costs Lowered

A University of Illinois livestock specialist reports that running bred sows on pasture and feeding them limited grain lowers their feed costs.

G. R. Carlisle says that growing pigs do not utilize pastures too well. But research has proved the contrary with bred gilts and sows.

U of I work shows that bred gilts perform the best in drylot when they receive about five pounds of a complete ration. When similar gilts were pastured on good legumes, however, they performed just as well on only 2½ pounds of feed. More important, the legume pasture cut out the need for the expensive protein supplements.

AT PRESENT hog and feed prices, pasturing bred sows on good legumes saves about seven cents per day for each sow. This adds up to about $8 per sow for the gestation period. If farmers stock pastures with only six sows per acre, this means a feed saving of $50 per acre.

For bred gilts in drylot, Carlisle recommends 4 pounds of grain and 1 to 1½ pounds of supplement daily. On pasture, bred gilts need 2½ to 3 pounds of grain, no supplement and minerals free choice. (FM

Soil Scientist to Study Plant-Opals

A University of Illinois soil scientist is starting a study of a special kind of opal—called a plant-opal.

While a plant-opal isn't exactly like the usual semi-precious stone found at jewelry counters, it too contains large amounts of the mineral, silica.

With information from this basic research, A. H. Beavers, associate professor of soil mineralogy, hopes to unlock secrets about the kinds of vegetation on prehistoric landscapes.

ALSO, THE results of the investigation may be valuable in discovering silica's role in plant nutrition.

The type and number of plant-opals found should be a big help in telling scientists the amount of weathering that has taken place, in pin-pointing a soil's age and the vegetative history of a specific soil.

The study is to be supported by a two-year $21,400 grant to the University from the National Science Foundation.

PLANT-OPALS are microscopic grains composed mostly of silica and small amounts of other elements absorbed by the growing plant. Once formed in plants, these particles become part of the soil when the plant dies.

Plant-opals are found in all prairie grasses, such as big bluestem and Indian grass, as well as in corn and oats.

Working with Beavers is R. L. Jones, a doctorate candidate in soil mineralogy.

Issue Insurance Data for Farmers

A concise handbook on property, liability and medical insurance for farmers has just been published by the University of Illinois Agricultural Extension Service.

The new publication presents recommendations on buying fire insurance, explains liability insurance and lists the costs, describes workman's compensation insurance and medical coverage plans. The author is N. G. P. Krausz, professor of agricultural law.

AS ONE example, the new publication lists these recommendations for buying fire insurance:

1. If considerable personal property is included, use the farm blanket policy.

2. If there is a mortgage on the property, the mortgage holder can protect both his interest and the owner's with a mortgagee clause.

3. A farmer should be careful about making ownership changes that may void his insurance.

4. BUYING a policy for three or five years reduces the cost per year.

5. To protect against windstorm losses, carry extended coverage, since it costs no more than windstorm coverage.

Cook county farm adviser Carl F. Mees reports that copies of this new insurance publication, Circular 832, are available at his office without charge. (FM

U.S. Hog Prices Are Near Other Countries

By L. H. SIMERL

One of the fictions going the rounds of farm circles recently is that prices of farm products are much higher in other countries than in the United States. Therefore, it is argued, it should be easy to raise prices in our country without pricing ourselves out of foreign markets.

A specific example recently reported to us concerned the prices of hogs. According to this story, hog prices in 1958 were only $14 a hundred pounds in the United States, but $24 a hundred in Canada and $40 a hundred in Germany. We were asked to check these quoted figures.

We spent half a day checking official market reports of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Department of Agriculture of Canada and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. Here is what we found:

1. IN THE year 1958 the average price of hogs in the United States was not $14, but $20.25 a hundred pounds. This was for barrows and gilts at the eight leading midwest markets.

2. We found an average price of $29 a hundred pounds for dressed hogs at Toronto, Canada. This 100 pounds of dressed hogs represented at least 133 pounds of live hogs, so the quoted price was equal to $21.75 for live hogs at Toronto.

But there is more to be considered. Toronto is an eastern market, not far from Buffalo, New York. Prices for hogs at Buffalo are usually at least $1 a hundred pounds higher than prices at our midwest markets. So, to get a price that is comparable with our midwestern markets, we need to take a dollar off the Toronto price. This reduces the Canadian figure to $20.75, or only 40 cents a hundred pounds higher than our midwest market price. Even this small difference may have been due to the superior quality of the hogs at Toronto.

We checked further to find whether this close relationship still holds. We found that it does. During the week ended April 22, prices of Grade B hogs at Toronto (there are four grades, A to D) averaged $24.50, dressed. This is equivalent to a price of $18.40 for live weight. During the same week prices for Nos. 1and 2 200 to 220-pound barrows and gilts averaged $18.69 at Baltimore (an eastern U. S. market) and $17.42 at Chicago.

3. PRICES OF hogs and many other agricultural products are somewhat higher in Germany than in the United States. This is larely because Germany is a feed-and-food deficit and importing country, while the United States is an exporting country. We found that the average price for 220 to 264-pound hogs at 64 markets in Germany in 1958 was $26.20 a hundred pounds. This is only about $5 higher than the price in the United States, not $26 higher as claimed in the fictional story. Much of the price spread between U. S. and German markets reflects transportation costs from our corn belt to the German farm areas. Germany buys large amounts of both corn and soybeans from us, using both in animal feeds.

The point is that prices of hogs in the United States are reasonably close to prices in other countries, after allowing for costs of transportation. Thus it would not be so easy as the stories imply to greatly raise the price of hogs in the United States. The same principle holds for our other major farm products. (FM

with Your Farm Adviser

CARL F. MEES

According to the preliminary figures of the 1959 census of agriculture, Illinois ranks 6th in the nation, in the number of farms with a total of 155,000. Nearly 80% of these farms were classified as commercial, 13% as part-time and 7% as part-retired.

Fewer than 6,000 of the Illinois commercial farms had a total value of products sold amounting to $40,000.00 or more. Only California, Texas and Iowa had a larger number of farms in this classification, and the four other states together accounted for only 40% of the country's largest farms as measured by sales value. The largest group of Illinois farms (25%) had sales between $10 - 19,000.00 a year, and over 60% fell in the upper four classes having products valued at $5,000.00 or more a year.

Effective for 1961 price support programs only, a farmer without prior approval of the state ASC office will be permitted to obtain a loan on less than the entire quantity stored in a bin or crib, provided (1) he is participating in the feed grain program and (2) the county committee has determined that he does not have sufficient storage to permit separate storage of corn or grain sorghums eligible for loan.

Previously the state committee did not permit loans or repayments on less than the entire amount stored in a bin or crib unless they gave special permission.

Since the amount on which a farmer can obtain support is limited, and some producers may not have separate storage facilities, the policy has been changed to benefit feed grain program participants.

To those of you who use electric mowers, Mr. O. L. Hogsett, University of Illinois safety specialist has these precautions for you to take. (1) Always work away from the electrical outlet, with an electric lawn mower, when the cord lies on the cutting area there is less danger of cutting the cord or getting an electric shock from the frayed wires; (2) It is best to mow only when the grass is dry. Moisture of any kind is a good conductor of electricity. Rain or dew may short out the mower or give you a shock; (3) Check your cord frequently to see that it does not have any breaks in the installation.

J. G. Cash, extension dairy specialist at the University of Illinois announced that 91 cows owned by members of the Cook County Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 1 qualified for the 1960 Illinois 600-Pound Butterfat Cow Club. The cows were owned by 18 dairymen who are members of the Association. Dairymen with five or more cows to qualify for the 600-Pound Butterfat Cow Club included Rosewood Farms with 24; Rolling Acres Farm with 21; Holy Ghost Convent with 12; and Bender Bros. with 5. The highest producing cow in the association was owned by Holy Ghost Convent. This registered Holstein produced 930 pounds of butterfat.

University of Illinois agronomists will roll out the red carpet for visitors to Agronomy Day at the University's South Farm in Urbana, on Wednesday, June 28th. It would be a good time for many of you to visit the University of Illinois' Experimental Farms.

Annual Meeting

Farm Adviser 'School' Set

About 170 Illinois farm advisers and their assistants will return to school next week.

This back-to-the-classroom venture is all part of the annual summer conference for agricultural extension workers. University of Illinois staff members are presenting 19 different courses to the conference participants.

Each adviser will enroll in two 10-hour courses. Subjects include all phases of crop and livestock production, insect and disease control, lawn care and landscaping, farm policy analysis and improved methods of carrying out extension programs.

As local representatives of the University in every county of the state, farm advisers and their assistants are constantly questioned about latest farming problems. The home owner also seeks advice about garden and lawn care.

Besides the class sessions, extension workers will hear about the latest administrative developments from Dean Louis B. Howard, state director of the Cooperative Extension Service, and J. B. Claar, associate director.

THE ANNUAL conference brings advisers up to date on latst developments to better serve all citizens in their counties.

Down On The Farm

CARL F. MEES

with Your Farm Adviser

According to the preliminary figures of the 1959 census of agriculture, Illinois ranks 6th in the nation, in the number of farms with a total of 155,000. Nearly 80% of these farms were classified as commercial, 13% as part-time and 7% as part-retired.

Fewer than 6,000 of the Illinois commercial farms had a total value of products sold amounting to $40,000.00 or more. Only California, Texas and Iowa had a larger number of farms in this classification, and the four other states together accounted for only 40% of the country's largest farms as measured by sales value. The largest group of Illinois farms (25%) had sales between $10 - 19,000.00 a year, and over 60% fell in the upper four classes having products valued at $5,000.00 or more a year.

Effective for 1961 price support programs only, a farmer without prior approval of the state ASC office will be permitted to obtain a loan on less than the entire quantity stored in a bin or crib, provided (1) he is participating in the feed grain program and (2) the county committee has determined that he does not have sufficient storage to permit separate storage of corn or grain sorghums eligible for loan.

Previously the state committee did not permit loans or repayments on less than the entire amount stored in a bin or crib unless they gave special permission.

Since the amount on which a farmer can obtain support is limited, and some producers may not have separate storage facilities, the policy has been changed to benefit feed grain program participants.

To those of you who use electric mowers, Mr. O. L. Hogsett, University of Illinois safety specialist has these precautions for you to take. (1) Always work away from the electrical outlet, with an electric lawn mower, when the cord lies on the cutting area there is less danger of cutting the cord or getting an electric shock from the frayed wires; (2) It is best to mow only when the grass is dry. Moisture of any kind is a good conductor of electricity. Rain or dew may short out the mower or give you a shock; (3) Check your cord frequently to see that it does not have any breaks in the installation.

J. G. Cash, extension dairy specialist at the University of Illinois announced that 91 cows owned by members of the Cook County Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 1 qualified for the 1960 Illinois 600-Pound Butterfat Cow Club. The cows were owned by 18 dairymen who are members of the Association. Dairymen with five or more cows to qualify for the 600-Pound Butterfat Cow Club included Rosewood Farms with 24; Rolling Acres Farm with 21; Holy Ghost Convent with 12; and Bender Bros. with 5. The highest producing cow in the association was owned by Holy Ghost Convent. This registered Holstein produced 930 pounds of butterfat.

University of Illinois agronomists will roll out the red carpet for visitors to Agronomy Day at the University's South Farm in Urbana, on Wednesday, June 28th. It would be a good time for many of you to visit the University of Illinois' Experimental Farms.

Annual Meeting

Farm Adviser 'School' Set

About 170 Illinois farm advisers and their assistants will return to school next week.

This back-to-the-classroom venture is all part of the annual summer conference for agricultural extension workers. University of Illinois staff members are presenting 19 different courses to the conference participants.

Each adviser will enroll in two 10-hour courses. Subjects include all phases of crop and livestock production, insect and disease control, lawn care and landscaping, farm policy analysis and improved methods of carrying out extension programs.

As local representatives of the University in every county of the state, farm advisers and their assistants are constantly questioned about latest farming problems. The home owner also seeks advice about garden and lawn care.

Besides the class sessions, extension workers will hear about the latest administrative developments from Dean Louis B. Howard, state director of the Cooperative Extension Service, and J. B. Claar, associate director.

THE ANNUAL conference brings advisers up to date on latst developments to better serve all citizens in their counties.

Scout Council Commends Press

The DuPage Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, at its regular annual meeting passed a resolution commending your organization for your very fine support in the past year. Without this support, a great deal of the work that went into Scouting would not have been possible.

I am sure that you are proud that because of your efforts some 500 more boys received Scouting this year than the year before, that all boys had an opportunity to attend summer camp, our training was the best we have ever had, and to repeat the phrase in the paragraph above, you and your organization are one of the reasons why Scouting is prospering in DuPage Area Council

Teens Praised By Committee

On behalf of the "After-the-Prom Committee," I wish to submit to you our opinion of the ladies and gentlemen that attended the After-the-Prom party at O'Hare Inn on May 30, 1961. I am forwarding a copy of this letter to the local newspaper with the purpose of informing them and, we hope, the general public that the derogatory news associated with teenage activities does not apply to those attending this party.

The party, attended by more than 700 Prospect high school young ladies and gentlemen, covered the period from approximately 12:30 a.m. to 5 a.m. and consisted of dancing, entertainment and a breakfast. During the course of this period, there was not one incident that caused any member of the committee or any chaperon concern. I have been advised by the state and county police that the highways were properly used and that no car was stopped for speeding or for reckless driving.

After the things that have been publicized in the newspapers regarding proms and after the prom programs in other locations, I think that the faculty of Prospect high school, the parents of the students, and the students themselves should be highly complimented.

Letter Was 'Last Straw'

I have been reading with some disgust the recent articles in the Fence Post relating to high school district 214. In my opinion, Mrs. E.A. Gaylord's article was about the "last straw." Just because a teacher as a parent chose to sign a letter as such, Mrs. Gaylord took it upon herself to write that he or she is "against education."

I DO NOT believe that any parent in our community is "against education." I do believe, however, that there are conscientious ones, and also school board members, who like to see the school funds spent wisely.

It is so typical of our modern society to measure things on a monetary basis. Unwise and luxurious spending on schools will not necessarily make an improvement in School District 214.

I have the feeling that many of the letters extolling the virtues of Mr. Slichenmyer are "plants."

Letters to the Editor

Reader Urges Good Schools

Mrs. Gaylord, in reply to your letter in the Fence Post, may I say I am at a loss to know where you found a single sentence in my letter that could lead you to the conclusion that I am against education, our local schools or better conditions for our teachers and students. You have read into my letter something that was not there.

I can hardly remember a time when I was not associated with schools and education. I have been a resident of Arlington Heights for over 30 years. During that time, I have taught 16 years, substituted for eight years and worked in PTA and TPC groups for about 20 years. My three children started and finished their 13 years (kindergarten, too) of public school education in Arlington Heights schools.

NO, MRS. Gaylord, I am certainly not against education of the best quality. On the contrary, I resent anything that harms our schools. The consensus of opinion of the people to whom I talk, no matter which side they may favor, is that this publicity has done our schools irreparable harm.

I believe the differences within the board were honorable ones, but they were not so reported. One side was painted all black and the other all white. Such a condition is not possible. Has it ever occurred to you that possibly each member of the board is trying to do a good job as he sees it, even though the members may disagree?

I do agree with you that I should have permitted my name to have been published. I have two very good reasons for not doing so, but anonymity does not serve a good purpose.

HOWEVER, I cannot agree that all meetings should be open. If you serve, for example, on a nominating committee, would you care to have all discussion of the personalities considered reported back to the parent organization? Few would be willing to serve on such a committee under such conditions. The executive board meeting mentioned in my previous letter is a case in hand. I sill feel the individuals responsible for reporting of that meeting at the time and in the manner it was done have done our schools a disservice.

May I say further, that I cannot agree with those who jump to the conclusion that all who disagree with them in one area are necessarily all vicious, evil, not able and not intelligent. That kind of attitude and publicity are not helping our schools. If I were a teacher looking for a job, such publicity would surely drive me away.

Mrs. E. J. Harris

Reader Renews Under Protest

I am sending in my $5 subscription with a protest concerning the very inadequate news coverage you give Mt. Prospect.

As far as we could determine, there was no notice concerning the Memorial Day parade, and this is very important to our village.

SOME affairs which make sensational reading are given far too much coverage — I wonder how many honest, conscientious men you will be able to find next year who will consider an office on the high school board— because your paper has made them a target for sensational news coverage? Any such biased reporting does not belong in a paper which is supposed to be fair and give both sides of a situation.

We would surely appreciate a paper devoted to Mount Prospect news—not just the front page—but a better proportion of the paper than the present issues.

Calendar Urged For All Clubs

Within the past few months several big events of organizations I have belonged to have been held on the same nights due to lack of information or the lack of a community calendar, such as we used to have here. With our town growing by leaps and bounds and more organizations coming into being such a calendar is a very great necessity. One just can't contact every group to check on the over-lapping of important events and naturally, many people do belong to several groups and can't attend two things at once.

Since all these organizations are part of our samll city, I would like to suggest that a calendar be set up in the village hall where qualified officers or organizations could go to write in the events of their group in the proper place on the calendar.

When clubs or groups want to set up a date for an event, they could check on that calendar to see whether conflictions would arise. This would eliminate two plays being held on the same night, or two or three organizations having dinners the same night such as has happened in the past, thinning out the ranks of each affair and causing the needless waste of a great deal of food.

Puffer Backs Treasurers

(The position of the office of Nobel J. Puffer, county superintendent, regarding the need of a continuation of the office of township school treasurer is made plain in the following extracts from a recent letter by Mr. Puffer.)

I think that articles recently published in Paddock Publications tend to put the fine services given by township treasurer of schools in the wrong light. They tend to make the readers believe that the office is a useless one and very expensive. I should like to give to your readers the benefit of my 22 years as county superintendent of schools about the service of township treasurer of schools.

AS THE OFICE is constituted in Cook, Madison and St. Clair counties, the township treasurer of schools handles large sums of money, is properly bonded and is the watch dog of the proper expenditure of school funds. A person who keeps the records of and handles funds of many millions certainly must be well trained in financial matters and has a grave responsibility.

If my firm were doing $11 million worth of business, I certainly would not object to the man handling the financial end of the business and receiving a salary of six thousand dollars for his services (as in Wheeling township).

Transfers of funds not properly budgeted are refused by the township treasurers. On occasions when requests for transfers of funds from one account to another or an outright transfer is made, the township treasurers of schools have refused to honor such requests.

IF EACH DISTRICT was to have it's own separate treasurer, the experience in DuPage, Lake and Will counties has shown that the costs of handling township funds has more than doubled since the elimination of the office of township treasurer of schools. This is due to two items—salaries of individual school treasurers and the much higher proportionate costs of fidelity bonds for each separate treasurer.

When a treasurer serves for an entire township, his fidelity bond is one bond for all the districts and rate is on a sliding scale. The result is a much more favorable cost of total bonds than where each treasurer is required to be bonded separately. There is a built in system with which the school treasurers work in Cook county.

School treasurers in surrounding counties are appointed by school boards and are directly under their orders. In Cook county the township school treasurer is appointed by the township trustees of schools and is therefore independent of orders by individual school boards.

I AM NOT intimating that there is anything wrong with the operation of local school boards of education, for they are doing an excellent job, but I am distressed by attacks on the system of township school treasurers. Therefore, it seems desirable to put down in writing the fact that I believe the present system is an excellent one and should not be condemned on the basis of the material contained in the articles that have been published.

Your newspaper has always been fair in reporting both sides of a question. In this situation I thought you would like to hear the other side.

No matter whether you're in Bangkok or Algiers, San Francisco — or North Prospect in Park Ridge, if you can mail a letter you can keep your Citizens' savings account growing. We have a word for Citizens Save by Mail Plan. It's spelled c-o-n-v-e-n-i-e-n-c-e. It means that even if you live in Park Ridge one block from the bank, sometimes you just don't feel like going out. It's so easy to seal an envelope (that requires no stamp) and there's never a line at the mailbox.

But the ones who tell us they really appreciate the Save by Mail Plan are those who are saving for a purpose. They know that every deposit dropped into their saving account is one step closer to something they want — a boat, a new vacuum cleaner, a power tool, or an education for the children. They know, too, that every deposit missed is a step away from their goal — and they safeguard their regular saving routine by keeping a Save by Mail envelope handy.

Marie Love will be glad to explain the easy Bank by Mail Plan if you'll stop by her desk next time you're out shopping. She'll set up your Guaranteed Savings System* account for you (as little as $1.00 can start it); she'll supply you with Save by Mail envelopes and from then on it's automatic. You mail a deposit to us, we mail your book back to you with another Save by Mail envelope. Why don't you try it?

P. S. We hope your Save by Mail account won't prevent you from coming into the bank at all. We'll still enjoy seeing you — and we see the mailman every day anyway.

I should like to give to your readers the benefit of my 22 years as county superintendent of schools about the service of township treasurer of schools.

AS THE OFICE is constituted in Cook, Madison and St. Clair counties, the township treasurer of schools handles large sums of money, is properly bonded and is the watch dog of the proper expenditure of school funds. A person who keeps the records of and handles funds of many millions certainly must be well trained in financial matters and has a grave responsibility.

If my firm were doing $11 million worth of business, I certainly would not object to the man handling the financial end of the business and receiving a salary of six thousand dollars for his services (as in Wheeling township).

Transfers of funds not properly budgeted are refused by the township treasurers. On occasions when requests for transfers of funds from one account to another or an outright transfer is made, the township treasurers of schools have refused to honor such requests.

IF EACH DISTRICT was to have it's own separate treasurer, the experience in DuPage, Lake and Will counties has shown that the costs of handling township funds has more than doubled since the elimination of the office of township treasurer of schools. This is due to two items—salaries of individual school treasurers and the much higher proportionate costs of fidelity bonds for each separate treasurer.

When a treasurer serves for an entire township, his fidelity bond is one bond for all the districts and rate is on a sliding scale. The result is a much more favorable cost of total bonds than where each treasurer is required to be bonded separately. There is a built in system with which the school treasurers work in Cook county.

School treasurers in surrounding counties are appointed by school boards and are directly under their orders. In Cook county the township school treasurer is appointed by the township trustees of schools and is therefore independent of orders by individual school boards.

I AM NOT intimating that there is anything wrong with the operation of local school boards of education, for they are doing an excellent job, but I am distressed by attacks on the system of township school treasurers. Therefore, it seems desirable to put down in writing the fact that I believe the present system is an excellent one and should not be condemned on the basis of the material contained in the articles that have been published.

Your newspaper has always been fair in reporting both sides of a question. In this situation I thought you would like to hear the other side.

Noble J. Puffer,
Superintendent
Cook County
Public Schools

LETTERS

FROM ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD…

and WE pay the postage

No matter whether you're in Bangkok or Algiers, San Francisco — or North Prospect in Park Ridge, if you can mail a letter you can keep your Citizens' savings account growing. We have a word for Citizens Save by Mail Plan. It's spelled c-o-n-v-e-n-i-e-n-c-e. It means that even if you live in Park Ridge one block from the bank, sometimes you just don't feel like going out. It's so easy to seal an envelope (that requires no stamp) and there's never a line at the mailbox.

But the ones who tell us they really appreciate the Save by Mail Plan are those who are saving for a purpose. They know that every deposit dropped into their saving account is one step closer to something they want — a boat, a new vacuum cleaner, a power tool, or an education for the children. They know, too, that every deposit missed is a step away from their goal — and they safeguard their regular saving routine by keeping a Save by Mail envelope handy.

Marie Love will be glad to explain the easy Bank by Mail Plan if you'll stop by her desk next time you're out shopping. She'll set up your Guaranteed Savings System* account for you (as little as $1.00 can start it); she'll supply you with Save by Mail envelopes and from then on it's automatic. You mail a deposit to us, we mail your book back to you with another Save by Mail envelope. Why don't you try it?

P. S. We hope your Save by Mail account won't prevent you from coming into the bank at all. We'll still enjoy seeing you — and we see the mailman every day anyway.

OFTEN MISUSED

An ALIEN is a foreign-born resident, who is not a citizen. A FOREIGNER is one who belongs to another nation. A STRANGER is merely one who is unknown or without acquaintances in a given place.

Do not say, "The number has five aughts." Say, "has five NOUGHTS."

Do not say, "After lifting up the package, he returned back home." Omit "up" and "back."

When AYE is pronounced to rhyme with "hay," it means always or ever. When pronounced to rhyme with "my," it means yes.

Navy Offers High School Grads Choice in Variety of Programs

High school graduates have unlimited opportunities in today's modern Navy, reports chief electrician's mate, John Butterfield, local Navy recruiter whose office is located in the Post Office building, Des Plaines.

The Navy's high school graduate training program offers guaranteed schooling for high school graduates. Men enlisting into this program are guaranteed a school in the field of their choice upon completion of recruit training. The fields in question are nuclear, electronics, aviation, medical and

TO QUALIFY for the nuclear field, an applicant must be a high school graduate, have completed at least 1 year of high school math and obtained at least a B average in his high school math courses. He must pass the Navy screening test, be over 17 years old and have no police record. Eligibility for this program as well as any Navy program will be determined before enlistment without obligation. When found eligible for the nuclear field the applicant can choose one of four programs—nuclear electronics, nuclear mechanical — electrical, polaris electronics or polaris launcher. Successful completion of any one of these programs leads to a nuclear operators license from the atomic energy commission.

After the applicant has completed the schooling in this program which is over a year, he will serve aboard nuclear submarines or nuclear surface craft.

Men enlisting into the electronics field must also have completed one year of high school math, as well as the general qualifications for enlistment. Under this program the applicant will be assured of a school in the electronics field and continue in this field throughout his Navy Career.

THE AVIATION field offers guaranteed schooling in the aviation branch of the Navy. After completing the school in one of the Naval aviation specialities applicants will serve in this job aboard aircraft carriers or Naval air stations. Many of the ratings in the aviation group allow actual flight duty in naval aircraft, although in each case the person must volunteer for duty in the air.

The medical field offers training in one of two Navy specialities, dental technician and hospital corpsman. Upon completion of one of the above schools personnel in this program will serve in the medical department aboard ship or at one of the many Navy hospitals.

Any Naval occupation not included in the above programs comes under the general field. Under this program applicants are assured a school upon completion of recruit training and it can be any one the Navy has to be determined while in recruit training. This program is recommended for applicants that are not sure what they would like to go into. In recruit training they will be given various apptitude tests as well as instruction as to what the various occupations in the Navy consist of. Then the recruit is given a classification interview and the school he will attend will be determined at that time.

TODAY'S MODERN Navy needs high caliber men to train for jobs aboard our modern complex ships and equipment, states Butterfield. The purpose of this program is to obtain these men.

Additional information about the Navy's high school graduate program as well as all Navy programs can be obtained at the Navy recruiting station, Post Office building, Des Plaines, hours 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday thru Friday, phone VA 7-4311. The Navy recruiter will also be at the American Legion hall in Palatine every Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m. (WUS

At Camp LeJeune

Among them was Marine 1st Lt. James E. Thomas, son of Mrs. Bernice Thomas, 315 N. State rd., Arlington Heights.

While in the Mediterranean area, the 900 man force-in-readiness participated in amphibious landings on the islands of Sardinia and Crete.

Operating from ships of the sixth fleet, the Marines visited ports in Spain, Italy, Greece, Rhodes, and Sicily.

In California

Lt. Wilkerson has been assigned to Mather AFB, Cal., for advanced training.

In Newport

Navy Ens. Bruce A. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aayron A. Anderson of 111 S. Benton, Palatine, was graduated, May 12, from the Naval Officer Candidate school at the Naval base, Newport, R. I.

The officer candidates, college graduates and outstanding personnel from the fleet, become proficient in the naval sciences in 18 weeks of intensive training.

In addition to shipboard duty, many of the graduate officers will receive specialized training in aviation, underwater demolition, salvage, naval intelligence and explosive ordnance disposal. Others will go to engineering and staff corps duties. (WUS

During the 15-week course Luethy was trained to operate radio-teletypewriter equipment and to transmit and receive messages in Morse code and by the teletypewriter. He entered the Army last October and completed basic training at Fort Riley, Kan. Luethy is a 1955 graduate of Bensenville Community High school.

In Beeville

Fred W. Stierle, aviation machinist's mate third class, USN, son of Mrs. Erna Broer of 1022 N. Illinois, Arlington Heights, was promoted, May 16, while serving at the Chase field naval auxiliary air station, Beeville, Tex.

Chase field is one of the navy's training centers for naval aviators, providing scores of pilots yearly to man America's carrier-based squadrons around the world.

In Charleston

The submarine USS Chivo departed Charleston, S. C., May 9, for a 3-month cruise with the sixth fleet in the Mediterranean. Serving aboard the diesel-powered submarine is Richard V. Speleers, commissaryman third class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Speleers, 17W34 Grand ave., Bensenville.

In Norfolk

The attack cargo ship USS Arneb returned to Norfolk, Va., May 12, following a four and one-half month cruise in the Antartic during Operation Deep Freeze '61.

Aboard the ship upon its return was Howard O. Elliott, fireman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard O. Elliott of 2507 Wilke rd., Arlington Heights.

The Arneb's primary mission was to resupply the McMurdo Sound Naval air facility and the research station at Cape Hallett, both in Antarctica.

While in McMurdo unloading portions of a nuclear power plant, the cargo ship was lashed by 80 m.p.h. winds and 40-foot seas in which she was twice blown from her mooring site.

At Cape Hallett, drifting ice hampered unloading of vitally needed fuel for the wintering-over party. Upon returning to its Antarctic port in Christchurch, New Zealand, the Arneb's officers and crew were commended by Rear Adm. David M. Tyree, USN, commander of task force 43, who said that had it not been for their persistence, the Hallett station would probably be inoperative this winter.

Prior to returning to the states, the ship visited Auckland and Wellington, New Zealand; Sydney, Australia; and Papeete, Tahiti. (WUS

OFTEN MISUSED

An ALIEN is a foreign-born resident, who is not a citizen. A FOREIGNER is one who belongs to another nation. A STRANGER is merely one who is unknown or without acquaintances in a given place.

Do not say, "The number has five aughts." Say, "has five NOUGHTS."

Avoid the use of OCCUR loosely in the sense of "appear, present itself, etc." Say, "Many fresh springs are to be found (not 'occur') near the town." "Several species of trees grow (not 'occur') here."

Do not say, "After lifting up the package, he returned back home." Omit "up" and "back."

When AYE is pronounced to rhyme with "hay," it means always or ever. When pronounced to rhyme with "my," it means yes.

Navy Offers High School Grads Choice in Variety of Programs

High school graduates have unlimited opportunities in today's modern Navy, reports chief electrician's mate, John Butterfield, local Navy recruiter whose office is located in the Post Office building, Des Plaines.

The Navy's high school graduate training program offers guaranteed schooling for high school graduates. Men enlisting into this program are guaranteed a school in the field of their choice upon completion of recruit training. The fields in question are nuclear, electronics, aviation, medical and

TO QUALIFY for the nuclear field, an applicant must be a high school graduate, have completed at least 1 year of high school math and obtained at least a B average in his high school math courses. He must pass the Navy screening test, be over 17 years old and have no police record. Eligibility for this program as well as any Navy program will be determined before enlistment without obligation. When found eligible for the nuclear field the applicant can choose one of four programs—nuclear electronics, nuclear mechanical — electrical, polaris electronics or polaris launcher. Successful completion of any one of these programs leads to a nuclear operators license from the atomic energy commission.

After the applicant has completed the schooling in this program which is over a year, he will serve aboard nuclear submarines or nuclear surface craft.

Men enlisting into the electronics field must also have completed one year of high school math, as well as the general qualifications for enlistment. Under this program the applicant will be assured of a school in the electronics field and continue in this field throughout his Navy Career.

THE AVIATION field offers guaranteed schooling in the aviation branch of the Navy. After completing the school in one of the Naval aviation specialities applicants will serve in this job aboard aircraft carriers or Naval air stations. Many of the ratings in the aviation group allow actual flight duty in naval aircraft, although in each case the person must volunteer for duty in the air.

The medical field offers training in one of two Navy specialities, dental technician and hospital corpsman. Upon completion of one of the above schools personnel in this program will serve in the medical department aboard ship or at one of the many Navy hospitals.

Any Naval occupation not included in the above programs comes under the general field. Under this program applicants are assured a school upon completion of recruit training and it can be any one the Navy has to be determined while in recruit training. This program is recommended for applicants that are not sure what they would like to go into. In recruit training they will be given various apptitude tests as well as instruction as to what the various occupations in the Navy consist of. Then the recruit is given a classification interview and the school he will attend will be determined at that time.

TODAY'S MODERN Navy needs high caliber men to train for jobs aboard our modern complex ships and equipment, states Butterfield. The purpose of this program is to obtain these men.

Additional information about the Navy's high school graduate program as well as all Navy programs can be obtained at the Navy recruiting station, Post Office building, Des Plaines, hours 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday thru Friday, phone VA 4-7311. The Navy recruiter will also be at the American Legion hall in Palatine every Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m. (WUS

Receiving the wings of an air force navigator on May 22, was second Lieutenant Bruce W. Wilkerson. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Wilkerson, Owen place, Prospect Heights.

While in training at Harlingen Texas Air Force base, for 38 weeks he was taught the fundamentals of electronics dead reckoning and radar navigation as pertains to today's rapidly advancing Aerospace force.

Lt. Wilkerson has been assigned to Mather AFB, Cal., for advanced training.

In Newport

Navy Ens. Bruce A. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aayron A. Anderson of 111 S. Benton, Palatine, was graduated, May 12, from the Naval Officer Candidate school at the Naval base, Newport, R. I.

The officer candidates, college graduates and outstanding personnel from the fleet, become proficient in the naval sciences in 18 weeks of intensive training.

In Georgia

RONALD LUETHY

Army recruit, Ronald C. Luethy, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Luethy, 214 S. Addison st., Bensenville, recently completed the radio-teletype operation course at the Southeastern Signal school, Fort Gordon, Ga. During the 15-week course Luethy was trained to operate radio-teletypewriter equipment and to transmit and receive messages in Morse code and by the teletypewriter. He entered the Army last October and completed basic training at Fort Riley, Kan. Luethy is a 1955 graduate of Bensenville Community High school.

In Beeville

Fred W. Stierle, aviation machinist's mate third class, USN, son of Mrs. Erna Broer of 1022 N. Illinois, Arlington Heights, was promoted, May 16, while serving at the Chase field naval auxiliary air station, Beeville, Tex.

Chase field is one of the navy's training centers for naval aviators, providing scores of pilots yearly to man America's carrier-based squadrons around the world.

Before entering the navy in December 1959, Stierle attended Arlington high school.

In Charleston

The submarine USS Chivo departed Charleston, S. C., May 9, for a 3-month cruise with the sixth fleet in the Mediterranean. Serving aboard the diesel-powered submarine is Richard V. Speleers, commissaryman third class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Speleers, 17W34 Grand ave., Bensenville.

The Chivo, manned by nine officers and 74 crewmen, is scheduled to visit ports in Spain, France, Italy and Greece during the cruise.

In Norfolk

The attack cargo ship USS Arneb returned to Norfolk, Va., May 12, following a four and one-half month cruise in the Antarctic during Operation Deep Freeze '61.

Aboard the ship upon its return was Howard O. Elliott, fireman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard O. Elliott of 2507 Wilke rd., Arlington Heights.

The Arneb's primary mission was to resupply the McMurdo Sound Naval air facility and the research station at Cape Hallett, both in Antarctica.

While in McMurdo unloading portions of a nuclear power plant, the cargo ship was lashed by 80 m.p.h. winds and 40-foot seas in which she was twice blown from her mooring site.

At Cape Hallett, drifting ice hampered unloading of vitally needed fuel for the wintering-over party. Upon returning to its Antarctic port in Christchurch, New Zealand, the Arneb's officers and crew were commended by Rear Adm. David M. Tyree, USN, commander of task force 43, who said that had it not been for their persistence, the Hallett station would probably be inoperative this winter.

Prior to returning to the states, the ship visited Auckland and Wellington, New Zealand; Sydney, Australia; and Papeete, Tahiti. (WUS

In San Diego

Among the new marines completing recruit training at the Marine corps recruit depot, San Diego, Calif., May 17, was Marine Pvt. George A. Schutter Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Schutter Sr., 215 N. Franzen st., Bensenville.

During the 11 weeks of "boot camp" the men underwent intensive training on the M-1 rifle, the Browning automatic rifle and the .45 caliber pistol.

The First Family Commutes . . . page 6

How is Middleburg, Virginia, making out, now that that young couple with their two children have been spending their spare time there for six months? Fitzhugh Turner, publisher of the local paper, finds, this month, that it hasn't made much difference at all—which is exactly what both the Kennedys and the townspeople were hoping would happen.

The Pleasures Of Wodehouse . . . page 12

Pelham Grenville Wodehouse, eighty years of age, grand old man of humorous letters, creator of Jeeves, and author of almost a hundred books that have delighted and enlightened three generations of people all over the world, has, in his own words, slowed down a little. "What do you do for fun in the suburb of Remsenburg, New York?" we asked him. His reply will both charm and amuse you.

Not By Bread Alone . . . page 14

We honor big biceps and small starlets and best-dressed women, but there are very few honors for our teachers, the people who make literate human beings out of our children, says noted attorney Morris Ernst. It's because, he adds, most attempts to tell a teacher that he's appreciated are called "apple-polishing." Mr. Ernst proposed that annual awards be set up in colleges through which a grateful student body can say "Thank you" to outstanding members of the faculty.

Anchors In The Way . . . page 24

With pleasure-boating the gigantic participation sport that it has become in the past few years, our waterways are becoming almost as jammed and hazardous as our highways are during peak commuting hours. Many areas are waking up to the fact that some regulations are necessary governing licensing, hot-rodding-on-the-waves, and proper policing of the waters. Here is what is being done to see that boating remains both safe and pleasurable.

THANKS FOR THE TIP, Mrs. Victor Lehner, of Glenview, Illinois, who says that sometimes you're very lucky if you have ants in your plants. One warm day, when Mrs. Lehner was showing off her lush garden to a friend, she noticed that her peonies were overrun with ants. She dashed into the house for the spray gun but was stopped just in time by her friend, who warned that the plants would never bloom if the ants were destroyed. Ants, she explained, eat the waxy covering on the peony buds. This turned out to be the best advice Mrs. Lehner ever took because now, she tells us, her peonies are the pride of the whole neighborhood. So, if you have peonies and you see the buds covered with ants, leave the hard-working creatures alone. They're doing you a big favor.

An eight-year-old friend named Billy, reports Mrs. Max Kloeris, of Fenton, Missouri, wrote the following essay on geese: "Geese is a low, heavy-set bird which is mostly meat and feathers. His head sits on one end and he sits on the other. Some geese, when they get big, has curls on their tails and is called ganders. Ganders don't have to sit and hatch but just eat and loaf and go in swimming. If I was a geese, I'd rather be a gander."

When Judge George T. Martin patiently inquired of the Romulus Township, Michigan, resident why he was weaving back and forth in front of the local beauty shop at 2:45 in the A.M., the militant citizen replied that he and his wife had had an argument about her going to the salon too often. "So," he told the judge, "I went for a few drinks to cool off. Next thing I knew, I was picketing the shop while waiting for her to come out." Fine: $15.00. Sentence: Go home and arbitrate the matter with your wife.

The Motor Corps Service of Long Island Jewish Hospital, in New Hyde Park, New York, is a pretty fancy title for a pretty wonderful group of women who contribute their cars and a lot of their time getting disabled people back and forth for treatment. These chauffeurs travel as much as 30 miles to pick up their charges, take them to the clinic, wait for them, and then bring them home again. The ladies collectively make an average of 60 calls a month, and their helping hand-at-the-wheel is the pride of the hospital's out-patient department.

A little Indian boy at the Cerebral Palsy Institute in Norman, Oklahoma, was overheard protesting to his playmates that he was sick and tired of being the Indian, and couldn't he be the cowboy for a change?

The ladies of the St. Matthews, Kentucky, Episcopal Church believe that charity begins where it is needed. One of their projects is collecting clothing for needy children in Louisville, a few miles from their parish. Since many of the needy live in the center of the city, they have set up a shop (the "clothes closet") in the basement of centrally located St. Luke's Evangelical and Reformed Church, open each Thursday from 10 A.M. till 1:30 P.M., from which clothing, bedding, and blankets are made easily available to nearby families who need them.

Jesse Cornish, a man who believes in following his dream, has left Garden City, Minnesota, and is now in the heart of darkest Africa . . . looking for the place where old elephants go to die. Although most people think this elephants' graveyard is a myth or legend or part of the plot of an old Tarzan movie, Mr. Cornish thinks it's really there, and he has gone to find it. The venture has a practical side, too, since, as Mr. Cornish says, "whoever finds that graveyard can lay claim to perhaps a million tons of ivory —a million tons at $8,000 a ton."

We hope the next time the auxiliary of the Abington, Pennsylvania, Fire Company holds a dinner, they put enough food aside for the volunteers. At the last spread, after a record 1293 roast-beef suppers were served, it was discovered that there wasn't anything left over to feed the hard-working —and hungry—workers.

They now have machines, out in San Diego County, California, that do all the work involved in getting report cards ready and out to the students. The machines do everything but take the exams—they sort the cards, type the student's name and address on four separate cards, record the grade on the report card, put it in an envelope, address it to his parents, and stamp it. Out of 70,000 cards that went out last term, only one mistake was made. A straight-A student got a card that had a string of F's on it. He reported the error immediately—but nobody's heard a word from the failing fellow who got a straight-A report card.

"It looks like my husband isn't going to come home from Irving (Texas)," said the lady to the judge. "How long has he been gone?" asked Judge Hoyet Armstrong. "Forty years," came the plaintive reply. Divorce granted.

GETTING AROUND

When Judge George T. Martin patiently inquired of the Romulus Township, Michigan, resident why he was weaving back and forth in front of the local beauty shop at 2:45 in the A.M., the militant citizen replied that he and his wife had had an argument about her going to the salon too often. "So," he told the judge, "I went for a few drinks to cool off. Next thing I knew, I was picketing the shop while waiting for her to come out." Fine: $15.00. Sentence: Go home and arbitrate the matter with your wife.

The Motor Corps Service of Long Island Jewish Hospital, in New Hyde Park, New York, is a pretty fancy title for a pretty wonderful group of women who contribute their cars and a lot of their time getting disabled people back and forth for treatment. These chauffeurs travel as much as 30 miles to pick up their charges, take them to the clinic, wait for them, and then bring them home again. The ladies collectively make an average of 60 calls a month, and their helping hand-at-the-wheel is the pride of the hospital's out-patient department.

A little Indian boy at the Cerebral Palsy Institute in Norman, Oklahoma, was overheard protesting to his playmates that he was sick and tired of being the Indian, and couldn't he be the cowboy for a change?

The ladies of the St. Matthews, Kentucky, Episcopal Church believe that charity begins where it is needed. One of their projects is collecting clothing for needy children in Louisville, a few miles from their parish. Since many of the needy live in the center of the city, they have set up a shop (the "clothes closet") in the basement of centrally located St. Luke's Evangelical and Reformed Church, open each Thursday from 10 A.M. till 1:30 P.M., from which clothing, bedding, and blankets are made easily available to nearby families who need them.

A sign at a railroad grade crossing near Wheat Ridge, Colorado, reads: "It takes a train only 14 seconds to pass this crossing —whether your car is on it or not."

Jesse Cornish, a man who believes in following his dream, has left Garden City, Minnesota, and is now in the heart of darkest Africa . . . looking for the place where old elephants go to die. Although most people think this elephants' graveyard is a myth or legend or part of the plot of an old Tarzan movie, Mr. Cornish thinks it's really there, and he has gone to find it. The venture has a practical side, too, since, as Mr. Cornish says, "whoever finds that graveyard can lay claim to perhaps a million tons of ivory —a million tons at $8,000 a ton."

We hope the next time the auxiliary of the Abington, Pennsylvania, Fire Company holds a dinner, they put enough food aside for the volunteers. At the last spread, after a record 1293 roast-beef suppers were served, it was discovered that there wasn't anything left over to feed the hard-working —and hungry—workers.

They now have machines, out in San Diego County, California, that do all the work involved in getting report cards ready and out to the students. The machines do everything but take the exams—they sort the cards, type the student's name and address on four separate cards, record the grade on the report card, put it in an envelope, address it to his parents, and stamp it. Out of 70,000 cards that went out last term, only one mistake was made. A straight-A student got a card that had a string of F's on it. He reported the error immediately— but nobody's heard a word from the failing fellow who got a straight-A report card.

"It looks like my husband isn't going to come home from Irving (Texas)," said the lady to the judge. "How long has he been gone?" asked Judge Hoyet Armstrong. "Forty years," came the plaintive reply. Divorce granted.

WHY DO SOME FAMILIES SEEM TO GET MORE OUT OF LIFE?

Some families glow with the pure enjoyment of life. Everyone who knows them is warmed by their vitality and friendliness. For such a family, life is good and fun and exciting.

And every day, their lives grow more interesting . . . more productive . . . more meaningful.

Typically, both parents and children take a deep interest in each other and the ever-changing world around them. They work together as a team, sharing interests and opinions to strengthen the bonds of understanding and respect that help build a happy home.

This kind of family usually owns Encyclopaedia Britannica. And their set is continually in use. As in so many lively families, "looking it up in Britannica" has become a familiar habit at homework time, during family discussions, and whenever complete, authoritative information is needed on almost every conceivable topic. They have learned to rely on Britannica for background data on current events, politics, religion and history, for help with hobbies, and for educational, enjoyable reading at any time.

modations might give Middleburg a bad name, and they cocked horrified eyes at reports from Gettysburg, where, it was said, hamburger joints, souvenir stands, and honky-tonk growth mushroomed in the wake of President Eisenhower's arrival.

There was, in sum, quite a flurry. Then helicopters brought the Kennedys from the White House for that first weekend, the press descended in droves, telephone and communications men arrived in squads, and the whole town jumped.

WOULD THIS CONTINUE? Not so, said President Kennedy. And through his press secretary, Pierre Salinger, he laid down the rules. Except for that first weekend, no press conferences at Middleburg, no news breaks from there, no Presidential opinions or decisions announced there. Glen Ora was to be strictly for seclusion and rest.

So far, at least, the rules have been observed. And nothing much has happened to Middleburg. The button Mr. Kennedy may someday have to push is with him at Glen Ora as it is wherever he goes; his Army communications men can put him on the phone to anyone he wants to call, anywhere in the world. Beyond this, the Secret Service men and a few standby reporters and photographers, the arrival of the President of the United States has made little difference thus far to a town long famous for its brilliant hospitality and its horses, and long ago accustomed to visiting celebrities.

President Kennedy's attitude pleases Middleburg people for the most part, and Middleburg's attitude presumably pleases the Kennedys, who want to be just another local family when they're at Glen Ora.

Wooster will be 80 "any moment now"—but it's just as good

I DON'T KNOW HOW it is with others, but as regards myself I find that in the matter of recreation one tends to slow up a little when one reaches the age of eighty, as I shall be doing any moment now. We octogenarians, when we get a bit of leisure, don't go in much for climbing trees or motor racing; we tend to light our pipes and relax over a book. Our pleasures, in other words, are mainly mental. To take an instance at random—me—my idea of a good time is to settle down with a couple of Perry Mason paperbacks or to watch "Love of Life" (a daytime serial which nobody ought to miss) on the television set.

Having been born an Englishman, though now an American and a red-blooded one at that, I used, when I was younger, to play cricket and, until a stiff index finger made me give it up, golf, and in my very early days, when I was a clerk in the London office of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, I did a lot of running. It was impressed on me by the authorities that if I got to the office late three mornings in a month I would forfeit my Christmas bonus, and one of the great sights in the City of London in the years 1901-1902 was me rounding into the straight with my coattails flying and my feet going pitter-pitter pat and just making it across the threshold while thousands cheered. It kept me in fine condition and gave me a rare appetite for the roll and butter and cup of coffee, which were all I could afford for lunch in those days.

I have never had anything in the nature of a hobby. When my day's work is done, I do not breathe a sigh of relief and say "And now for an invigorating bit of fret-sawing," nor do I model things in plasticine. No particular reason. It is just that these hobbies do not appeal to me. If you were to come to me and say, "Hello, there, Wodehouse, sawn any good fret lately?" I would shake my head. And if you brought me a blob of plasticine and wanted me to finger out a model of the Pentagon, you would be met with a firm nolle prosequi. "Not in the mood," I would say.

"Our pleasures, in other words, are mainly mental."

Probably because they are always writing or thinking of what they are going to write next, few authors have hobbies. Henry James hadn't. Kipling hadn't. And, as far as I know, the literary artists who write "George Loves Mabel" or "Castro Ought To Have His Head Examined" in pencil on the posters in the subway haven't. Somerset Maugham plays bridge, and so do I when I can get a four, but as a rule what an author does in his spare time is sit and think . . . or, at any rate, sit. This is what I do myself, except when I lie at full length.

But even an octogenarian must have exercise, and here I am fortunately situated. In Remsenburg, Long Island, where I have been living since I became officially senile, we enjoy a number of amenities such as fresh air, fresh eggs, and an attractive waterfront on Moriches Bay, but we have not kept up with the march of progress so far as to have letter carriers. Mail has to be fetched from the post office, and I walk there every day to get it, accompanied by Poona, my cat, and Bill, my foxhound, who generally packs up after the first furlong or so. Someone tells me that this is always the way with foxhounds. They have to do so much bustling about in their younger days that when they come to riper years their inclination is just to lie around in the sun. Bill's age, when he came to us as a stray, must have been at least seven, so his days of activity are long behind him, and it is rare for him to stay the course. But Poona and I are made of sterner stuff, and we trudge the two miles there and the two miles back singing a gypsy song.

Also I still do my setting-up exercises before breakfast, as I have done since 1919 without missing a day, though it is an open secret that I now find a difficulty in touching my toes, and I catch—or try to catch—Poona each night. We let her out at about ten p.m. for a breath of air, and once out she hears the call of the wild and decides that being at large is a good thing and ought to be pushed along.

And I have the job of catching her.

When you are eighty you have passed your peak as a cat catcher. There was a time—say between 1904 and 1910—when it would have been child's play for me to outstrip the fleetest cat, but now the joints have stiffened a trifle, and I am less of a force. The spirit is willing, but the flesh doesn't seem to move as it did. The thing usually ends in a bitter "All right, stay out, you cad" from me and a quiet smile from Poona.

And then the reproachful mew outside my bedroom window as the clocks are striking five. And if I leave the fly-screen open so that she can come through the window, she jumps on the bed and bites my toes. There seems no way of beating the game.

Still, things have brightened a good deal lately owing to Poona having been bitten in the foot by another cat, no doubt in some night-club brawl, and being able to operate only on three legs. One more such episode, and the thing, as I see it, will be in the bag. I may not be the sprinter I once was, but I feel confident of being able to overtake a cat walking on two hind legs.

Meanwhile, the exercise is doing me all the good in the world, for apart from the running there is the falling. Owing to the activities of the hurricanes which enliven life on Long Island many of the trees chez Wodehouse are shored up with wire ropes, and any doctor will tell you there is nothing better for the liver than to trip over a wire rope when going all out after a receding cat and come down like a sack of coals.

It amuses the cat, too.

"The exercise is doing all the good in the world."

And then the reproachful mew outside my bedroom window as the clocks are striking five. And if I leave the fly-screen open so that she can come through the window, she jumps on the bed and bites my toes. There seems no way of beating the game.

Still, things have brightened a good deal lately owing to Poona having been bitten in the foot by another cat, no doubt in some night-club brawl, and being able to operate only on three legs. One more such episode, and the thing, as I see it, will be in the bag. I may not be the sprinter I once was, but I feel confident of being able to overtake a cat walking on two hind legs.

Meanwhile, the exercise is doing me all the good in the world, for apart from the running there is the falling. Owing to the activities of the hurricanes which enliven life on Long Island many of the trees chez Wodehouse are shored up with wire ropes, and any doctor will tell you there is nothing better for the liver than to trip over a wire rope when going all out after a receding cat and come down like a sack of coals.

It amuses the cat, too.

"The exercise is doing all the good in the world."

For example, I ran across a survey this spring in which almost three quarters of the 3,000 students —age 8-18—who were polled say they prefer tough teachers. Once again our youngsters demonstrate far more good sense than we give them credit for.

Yet I wonder how many of these boys and girls, who talked so freely to a magazine interviewer, ever managed to make their views known to their teachers.

This is roughly the train of thought that led me to go into competition with the Ford Foundation—on a somewhat smaller scale —as an educational pioneer.

RECENTLY I turned over to the student body at Williams three hundred dollars. Each year for three years (subject to extension) they were to select a teacher outstanding for his influence and his inspiration. To him they would give a hundred dollars worth of books of his choice—the only restriction being that the books be outside his own field. I slipped in that proviso simply in the hope of breaking down some of education's compartmentalization.

I'd like to see professors of engineering reading "Dr. Zhivago" and instructors in Elizabethan literature meeting John Maynard Keynes. The conscientious law professor will keep up with the Harvard Law Review whether or not anybody gives him a drawing account on a bookstore; I hoped to inflict Carl Sandburg and Thomas Mann on him.

It hasn't worked quite that way at Williams; the students decided on a modification. They donate the hundred dollars worth of books, in the name of the honored professor, to their college library. No doubt this is an equally worthy plan, although in giving the books directly to the teacher, I had no idea of insulting him with charity —I just wanted him to read the books.

But however it's handled, it seems to me that a teacher-award plan, at a nominal cost, gives students a chance to tell a good professor he's good, to honor him in the coin of his calling, books—and, incidentally, to let the whole academic community in on the important secret that our boys and girls don't want snap courses, that if a teacher hopes to earn respect and admiration in his life's chosen work, he's going to have to teach.

THAT'S WHY I thought other parents and alumni of other colleges and even high schools might be interested in my Educational Experiment. So I wrote to Matthew Nimetz, the young honor student at Williams who helped me set up the award program. How, I asked, are we doing? Here are some of the things he told me:

Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue. Some mothers apply this charming wedding custom to baby's layette. Nice sentiment for a new baby.

Many a new mother is overwhelmed by the magnitude of being a mother, and often worries unduly about her ability to handle baby. Best advice I know is to read authoritative articles on baby care . . . heed your doctor and trust your mother instinct. Be surprised how much it will teach and tell you. It's most reliable.

Watching baby's diet is one of your doctor's (and your) primary concerns. When he gives you the go-ahead on cereal, you'll want to try Gerber Cereal Quads—the variety package containing small-size boxes of Rice Cereal, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal and High Protein Cereal. Each one has a bland but distinctive flavor—all four have a smooth-to-the-tongue, easy-to-swallow texture. Most important, they're enriched with blood-building iron, important B-vitamins and bone-building calcium.

Night-feedings simplified. You can take the grope and fumble out of night feedings if you lay out robe, slippers, diaper etc., in advance. Luminous paint on hall and kitchen light switches will save many a stumble in the dark.

Vitamin viewpoint. Baby's vitamin drops are best put in baby's mouth by dropper. If you put them in his formula and he doesn't finish it, precious drops will be wasted.

Another vitamin viewpoint. Vitamin C, so important for sound gums and body tissues, is usually recommended early in the new baby's diet. Gerber Strained Orange Juice is an excellent source of vitamin C. Made of tree-ripened fruit, specially selected for mildness, it's ever so delicate —the way it should be for a new baby. Other good starting juices: Gerber Apple Juice and Orange-Apple.

Here at Gerber we carefully prepare over 100 cereals, strained and junior foods to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

LAST SPRING at my alma mater, Williams College, I started an Educational Experiment (since I started it, I get to put it in capital letters). It's on a modest scale, certainly, but an Educational Experiment all the same. But before I tell you what I did, let me tell you why I did it.

It's beginning to seem that you don't really have to be a clotpoll to win honor in America these days, but it doesn't hurt any. We salute athletes of remarkable agility and starlets of improbable dimensions. Dress well, swing a 40-ounce bat effectively, have more than two children at any one time, marry frequently, drive an automobile very fast—do any of these things in the America of 1961, and riches and acclaim are yours. In New York we have a Miss Subway; all you have to do to be that is ride underground and smile. (We even have a lady tenement owner whom the press has dubbed affectionately, "Queen of the Slumlords.") In short, for a nation that did away with patents of nobility right in its Constitution, we manage to have quite a mixed bag of royalty running around.

SUBURBIA TODAY

But, not to put too fine a point on it, our present nobility is hardly an aristocracy of the intellect. We fix our avid attention on the 42-inch chest and give short shrift to those classroom magicians who can bring a whole five-foot shelf to life. And one day I began to wonder why, if we'll take a young college sophomore with good synapses and call him an all-American, we won't pay any attention to the professor of American literature who might just make a human being of him.

Now beyond any question, the first place we've got to start honoring our teachers is right in their honoraria. We pay our high-school teachers $5,110 on the national average; our college teachers $6,810, and tell them, "Turn my boy into an educated man so he can earn $25,000 a year selling insurance" (or practicing law). Surely a lot of our teacher troubles in this country will disappear when we stop demanding that our best men and women sacrifice earning potentials of thousands of dollars for the privilege of trying to educate our offspring.

Yet teachers, even more than most people, can't live by bread alone. And oddly enough, in our system, it's remarkably difficult to tell a good teacher he's good. We fix his salary on the basis of training and tenure; certainly there's no dollar differential between the competent and the incompetent teacher unless the latter is so abysmally bad as to manage, against all likelihood, to get himself fired.

The student should be the main source of a good teacher's satisfaction. Yet student respect and acclaim, which the good teacher values beyond emeralds, is immensely difficult to express. Should a youngster put a bold face on it and actually tell a prof he likes and admires him, he's liable to the accusation of what we once called "apple-polishing." (Some of my younger friends tell me they've

. . . fresh recipes made with this GOOD SEASONS MIX

Good Seasons Italian Dressing. So unusually savory, robust with garlic—flecked with onion and sweet red peppers! Takes just seconds to mix. Easy directions are on the Good Seasons envelope. You combine your favorite oil, vinegar and a little water with the Mix. The water, or a substitute liquid, makes the blend smoother. You can use many substitutes—see the recipes below for suggestions.

Italian Tomato Dressing. When making your Good Seasons dressing, substitute one tablespoon of tomato paste for one tablespoon of the water. Adds a spicy, fragrant taste, typically Italian. Try it in a salad of lettuce and spinach with tomato wedges dipped in grated Parmesan cheese. This is a guest-dazzler.

Italian Wine-Mushroom Dressing. Really great with green salads. Use white or red wine instead of water in the dressing. Empty a drained 3½ oz. can of mushroom stems and pieces into a small bowl and cover with dressing. At salad time, toss the marinated mushrooms, mixed greens, and some more dressing, all together.

SOUFFLÉ MONT BLANC

TO PREPARE: 15 MIN. TO CHILL: ABOUT 3 HRS.

- ½ cup cold milk
- 1 tablespoon (1 env.) unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup water
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated onion
- Few drops Tabasco
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard
- 2 cups finely shredded Parmesan cheese
- 2 cups chilled whipping cream, whipped

1. Lightly oil a 1½-qt. mold with salad or cooking oil (not olive oil); set aside to drain.

2. Sprinkle gelatin evenly over milk; let stand 5 min. to soften. Set gelatin over hot water until it is completely dissolved.

3. Blend water, lemon juice, onion, Tabasco, and a mixture of salt and mustard into dissolved gelatin. Stir in cheese and fold in whipped cream.

4. Turn mixture into mold and chill in refrigerator until firm, about 3 hrs.

SHRIMP APPETIZER IN CHAFING DISH

2. Remove from heat. Blend in the sour cream and heat; do not boil. Sprinkle with an additional 2 teaspoons wine, if desired. Place blazer over hot water. Serve on toast rounds. About 12 servings

Note: For a luncheon or buffet entree, this delicious shrimp mixture may be served in croustades. Make them by cutting bread into 2-in. thick slices, then hollowing out the centers to form a box or case; brush with melted butter and toast them until lightly browned.

FRANKS LASAGNE

Herbs

BY JOHN BRIMER

from seed, although mints and tarragon are best bought as plants from a grower and set out in early spring to allow roots to mature in the first season. Give tarragon a leaf mulch in winter in the far north to insure its survival. Sow seeds out of doors as soon as the soil is warm enough for other seeds. Soaking parsley seeds in warm water for a day before sowing will hasten germination.

Harvesting herbs is best done while the leaves and tips are young and succulent. For freezing, cut and wash, then follow the usual procedure (blanching, dipping in ice water, draining) and then place in plastic freezer bags and seal. Many cooks make up combinations to use in stews or salad dressings, putting enough for one use in each bag. Then it is a simple matter to open the bag after defrosting and there you are, with just the right amount for your dish. Others prefer to store the herbs in larger quantities, using a few as needed.

The 7 Magic

Planted in a big-as-a-minute bed, they will

IT TAKES hardly any space at all beside the kitchen door to grow sufficient herbs to supply your table all summer and to provide enough for winter use, too. One herb garden which we saw last summer in Ann Arbor, Michigan, was only three feet by five feet; yet the grower reported that she not only had plenty for fresh use but that by periodic harvesting, drying and/or freezing, she obtained enough for winter seasonings, as well. Many people start herb growing on too large a scale, she feels, but a minimum-sized bed like hers will almost take care of itself. There was even room to tuck in a couple of pots of colorful begonias and gloxinias, not to mention a short row or two of salad lettuces, reseeded as often as harvested.

The seven herbs we suggest here are by no means all you may want to grow—they are offered as a good starter for a basic herb garden, in case you have no favorites of your own.

Few herbs are fussy about soils or location, but as with most plants, they'll do best in full sun in rich, well-drained soils. Mint and tarragon will tolerate a fair amount of shade, and some others will do well in partly shaded spots if they have sun for several hours a day. All may be grown

Basil Parsley Tarragon Mint

BASIL is a spreading annual 2 feet or more tall. Leaves add a beautiful flavor to tomatoes.

PARSLEY, the "witches' herb," is an important source of vitamins and an addition to all main courses.

TARRAGON is a bushy perennial 1½ to 2 feet in height. Buy plants to start it easily. It's a delight in eggs, fish, meats, poultry, salads, sauces, and soups.

MINT, best known as a julep ingredient, has many other uses. It is superb with lamb, and used fresh, or in mint syrup, it adds piquancy to desserts or ice cream. Grow it in a separate bed or sink a large flue tile in the bed to contain its invasive roots. You may want to collect mints—peppermint, curly mint, spearmint, applemint, orangemint, or American applemint (often called pineapple mint) which has a white-striped leaf.

DILL, cut up fine, is delicious in mayonnaise, and fish and fresh dill were made for each other.

CHIVES pep up appetizers, salads, dressings, eggs, soups, sauces, and cheeses. They may be chopped and frozen successfully.

BORAGE has an interesting cucumber-like flavor, but its heavenly blue star-flowers alone would make it worth growing.

Once you have found how useful and downright wonderful herbs are, you'll never be without a little back-door bed. Early this fall you can pot up your parsley and chives and tarragon and grow them on a sunny window sill for fresh herbs all winter, and you can dry and freeze a plentiful supply of the others—all from the 3 X 5 bed!

FOR GOOD LIVING

the owners' interests in music, art, and nature

On musical evenings the hall and dining area, which look down on the living room, turn into comfortable galleries.

The Griesingers like the feeling of a "country kitchen," so dining room and kitchen are separated only by the center fireplace, which lends warmth for pre-dinner conversation as well as pleasant charcoal-cooking aromas. The dining area looks out through an expanse of large sliding windows to the pond, and from their glass-walled living room they have a wide view of the lovely Chagrin Valley.

In this house, where so much attention is given to individual interests and activities, each child has a room of his own, Mr. Griesinger has an informal study, Mrs. Griesinger has her own sewing area, and all have a screened geodesic-domed gazebo beside the pond for reading and thinking.

"The key to the success of a house," says Robert Little, "is what happens to the people inside."

Mr. Griesinger acknowledges the architect's success. "In the summer," he says, "we stay at home, sit on the patio, look out over our green valley, watch the bass jump in our pond, and thank our stars."

Two-way fireplace opens on both dining area and "country kitchen," has an invaluable third flue for incinerating waste paper.

WOOD FINISHING

Floors never need rescraping

When you put the finish in the wood—not just on it—your floors will last a lifetime. Minwax goes deep into the wood . . . leaves no brittle surface to scratch or mar. You have a choice of Natural Minwax or a wide range of color tones. Maintain with liquid wax and you never have to refinish your floors.

Today's trend is to paneling

Easy-to-use Minwax brings out wood's natural beauty. Simply apply Minwax Wood Finish to the panel after sanding it thoroughly. Then add a light touch of Minwax Finishing Wax. The result is a rich, hand-rubbed look. For authentic Colonial effects, try Cherry, Ipswich or Puritan Pine. Modern effects include Driftwood, Straw or Spruce Gray.

Unfinished furniture

Minwax imparts a rich, warm glow to unfinished furniture . . . cabinets . . . new shelves and wood trim. Choose wood with uniform grain and sand silk-smooth. Finish as above in your choice of Minwax quick-drying colors.

For over 50 years Minwax Wood Finishes have been the standard of quality with architects, custom builders and antique dealers. Also economical and easy to use are Minwax Finishing Wax, liquid or paste, and that wonderful new repair stick for surface scratches — Blend-Fil.

comers, curbing "hot-rudders" (first with warnings, then arrests), and assisting boatmen, swimmers, or skiers in distress. That was in 1955. Since then only six persons have drowned on the lake—one less than in the single year before the patrol.

Oakland County, Mich., with 427 lakes inside its borders and the entire Detroit metropolitan area within easy driving distance, felt the water-recreation explosion early. Cars were lined up for six blocks near boat-launching sites. In one season the county had 27 drownings.

Cottage-owner associations decided in 1958 that action was overdue and approached Sheriff Frank Irons. "I can't get funds," he said. "But if we can get volunteers, I'll screen out the half-interested, and we'll train the others."

Now Oakland County has one of the nation's finest water patrols. As in similar groups, from Maricopa County, Ariz., to Hamilton, Mass., the men donate time, money, and the use of their boats. They meet weekly for training in law, boatmanship, safety, and public relations. Oakland businessmen have provided bonding fees, an ambulance, a mobile disaster-unit trailer, two-way radios, even 22 new-model boats and outboard engines at factory cost. And thanks to a recently adopted Michigan law, the state matches funds that counties earmark for boating law enforcement, enriching Irons' waterways budget by $5000 a year.

THE RESULT? In spite of lake traffic so heavy, as one resident says, "you can walk across without getting a foot wet," Oakland, last summer, had no boating fatalities and three-fourths fewer complaints of recklessness or unsafe operation than before. Patrolmen rescued more than a dozen persons in danger of drowning. They issued 1000 warning tickets (one-fourth the number required the first year). Sixty arrests were made—for cases so flagrant that every one was upheld in court.

Wisconsin, with its huge small-boat and tourist population, now takes to the air with planes to enforce safety. When Conservation Department warden-pilots spot an accident or violation, they radio a boat- and trailer-equipped warden on the ground, take photos for evidence, and circle until their colleague arrives. Using loudspeakers, the pilots also warn of dangerous conditions or emphasize safety procedures for boaters below. "Once you've heard that voice from the sky," says Chief Warden George Hadland, "you never forget it."

Such local efforts to control the waterways were given support by a 1958 Federal boating law, the Bonner Act. It called for state or Federal numbering of most craft (so reckless operators for the first time can be identified), nationwide reporting of all accidents, and personal liability for reckless or negligent operation. Four-fifths of our states have implemented this with their own laws. In six you can now be sentenced specifically for waterway homicide and manslaughter. In 24 states, if you're reckless, you're liable even for damages resulting from your craft's wake.

BUT SAFE BOATING requires more than legal protection against recklessness. Half of all boating deaths, statistics show, are due to incompetence. In one state on one holiday, for example, deaths resulted from standing in a fishing boat, towing a water skier without a companion as observer, starting an outboard with the gears engaged, cramming ten persons into an 11-foot boat, and a collision while cruising at night with no one at the wheel. All occurred in good weather and calm water.

Nowhere in the country is a driver's license or even a nautical knowledge test required of pleasure boaters. As of this spring only two states, Nebraska and New York, specifically ruled child boaters off the waters, New York including the requirement of a training course before youngsters ten to 14 can go boating alone. Only one-tenth of all boaters, one authority estimated, ever have taken any approved training.

The U.S. Power Squadrons and U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, however, are increasing their coverage —175,000 boaters took this voluntary training last year. Coast Guard stations in Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Miami, and elsewhere have telecast a series on good boatmanship. And boating clubs in hundreds of localities have sponsored free schools and dockside question-answer sessions.

Boating Must Be SAFE to Be Fun

BY ALFRED BALK

From the Golden Gate to Long Island Sound, boatmen are working to protect the 40,000,000 people who will be on the water this summer

I NEVER REALIZED what was happening on our waterways until I went out on a sunlit lake last summer to introduce my six-year-old daughter Cindy to the gentle art of fishing. We had just anchored our rowboat in a glass-smooth cove a few hundred yards offshore and dropped our lines, when we heard the snort and snarl of speedboats. Twin-engine outboards as powerful as autos roared full throttle among the small fishing boats. Water "hot-rudders," some towing water skiers, whipped the lake's surface so that our little craft rocked wildly. I rowed to shore in frustrated rage, and took Cindy home in tears.

"Does it have to be that way?" she asked later.

Millions have asked the same question. With boating's boom to the top of family participation sports in the last decade—40 million Americans, or nearly one of every five, now belong to families with boats—our lakes and shores as idyllic settings for peaceful fun and relaxation seem lost with the past. Worse, accidents have shot upward: boating now stands ninth nationally as a cause of fatal mishaps. In 1960, on some holidays in some areas the water claimed more victims than highways—Memorial Day weekend in Connecticut, for example, and July Fourth in New York. And the number of boats is expected to double in the next decade.

Yet despite the chaos and congestion on many waterways, this year there seems real hope, not only for safety and sanity but for peaceful, even pleasant, coexistence of all who would enjoy the water. Where laws lack teeth or where official action has lagged, many communities themselves have taken a stand to crack down on waterway killing and maiming.

Take Hennepin County, Minn., where 72 lakes attract hordes of boaters every holiday or weekend. Six years ago, when the boat population was only half what it is today, seven persons were drowned in boating accidents on Lake Minnetonka alone. Long-time resident Dr. A. E. Allen, a boating enthusiast, was appalled. "If something isn't done, and done soon," he said, "nobody will be safe on our lake, residents or visitors." That winter he got in touch with property owners, mayors of 15 lake villages, and Sheriff Ed Ryan. Together they knit a village association and voluntary water patrol.

One official, a village attorney, drafted new water-safety and antinuisance ordinances. Another, a police chief, screened and trained volunteer patrolmen. Each town appropriated $100 for expenses. By summer 30 men, deputized as sheriff's patrolmen and using their own boats, fanned out across the lake in shifts, explaining the laws to new-

LIFE PRESERVERS BY WILBUR CROSS

Both the American Red Cross and the U.S. Coast Guard emphasize the point that most accidents on waterways are set up before the boat has left the dock. The three most common reasons for tragedy:

1) OVERCROWDING. No boat at any time should have the gunwales less than six inches above the surface of the water. Last summer, five teen-age boys and two girls crowded into a small outboard, with waves lapping at the gunwales, to cross a narrow section of the Ohio River. The boat swamped. Even though it floated, two boys and a girl were swept to their deaths.

2) IGNORING LIFE PRESERVERS. No nonswimmer should ever embark in a small boat without wearing a life jacket of an approved type. And no one, good swimmer or not, should venture far from shore without one. Two years ago, when three 14-year-old boys were tossed into Lake Huron after their speedboat hit a log and sank, they survived until rescued by tying kapok cushions together, and hanging on.

3) CHANGING POSITIONS NEEDLESSLY. Determine where everyone will sit before casting off from the dock. "One of the chief causes of drowning accidents from rowboats and canoes," warns the Red Cross, "involves exchanging positions by the occupants."

But an emergency can strike even the most careful boatman. Anyone who uses small boats should memorize the simple techniques of self-rescue.

When a boat swamps or capsizes, even though no more than 200 or 300 feet from shore, stick with it. The Coast Guard reports that 90 percent of the people lost trying to swim to shore after an accident could have been saved had they clung to the boat. Last August a 16-foot skiff was swamped with three men and a 14-year-old boy aboard, when struck by a squall off Cape Cod. The three men, all good swimmers, struck out for shore 500 feet away. A short time later, a fishing boat rescued the boy from the water-filled, but still floating, hull. The men, unaware of a dangerous rip tide between the boat and the land, became exhausted and drowned.

A swamped boat (or a capsized one that can be righted) will float indefinitely, buoyant enough to support the heads and shoulders of all occupants above the water. Hold one gunwale a few inches under water, enough so everyone can swim cautiously into the boat. Once inside, all can sit in a river towboat co-sponsored by the Cincinnati Outboard Runabout Assn., helped reduce boating deaths from 14 to none on a stretch of the Ohio River. At Mamaroneck, N.Y., on Long Island Sound, teen-agers under yacht club sponsorship formed a better-boatmanship group. Now Harbor Patrolman Jack Colety, who once considered the youths "trouble with a big 'T,' " says they're among the area's best boaters.

BOATING

The American Red Cross, Boy and Girl Scouts and similar organizations have begun teaching motorboating in water-safety classes. The National Education Assn. now has a nationwide Outdoor Education Project to assist in introducing such courses. "We've made only a start," says Dr. Julian W. Smith, the project's director. "But many communities are coming to realize a safe-boating course soon will be as vital as driver training."

Even if boating can be made safe, the problem of sheer congestion remains. Millions want to swim, others to fish, still others to sail, cruise or skin-dive. Water skiers alone numbered two million at last count. Meanwhile, millions more prefer to feel the peaceful spell of a river or lake from shore. How can such varying interests be accommodated?

The Chain of Lakes, an area of 11 lakes and the scenic Fox River, 45 miles northwest of Chicago, offers one answer. It long has been a favorite fishing and water playground for millions, but recently as many as 30,000 boats have crowded in on a single weekend. Congestion has been so heavy that water skiers became entangled in fishing lines. Seven years ago a voluntary water patrol, financed by money from an annual benefit dance, was formed. This cut boating fatalities to zero in 1960 but made no dent in the conflict-laden traffic problem.

Last year residents took their dilemma to Fred Parker, State Supervisor of Boat Registration and Safety. "Let's hold an open meeting so everyone can talk it over," Parker suggested. There already were swimming zones on the lakes. At the meeting, Parker suggested that fishermen, also, be moved out of high-speed traffic.

Parker toured the area, exploring every channel, interviewing sportsmen, fish biologists, resort and cottage owners. By Memorial Day he had 16 zones buoyed off for fishing, still on-limits to all boats but only at "no-wake" speeds. Less than five percent of the lakes' total surface, these zones eliminated a long-standing conflict of interests and at the same time, by keeping high-speed craft from churning up underwater growth, they preserve fish feeding grounds for the future.

For similar reasons, Yellowstone National Park this year has banned powerboats from portions of Yellowstone and Shoshone Lakes. States such as Iowa, Indiana, and Pennsylvania now prohibit motorboating on small lakes or impose such stringent speed and horsepower restrictions that noise and waves from high-speed boating are eliminated. In many localities powerboating is illegal during certain nighttime hours. Others confine activities such as water-skiing and high-horsepower boating to specific periods of the day.

"With 300,000 new boats arriving on the waterways each year," says Parker, "some kind of activity regulation probably must come to every locality."

Water recreation is among the finest the outdoors offers. But, as Joseph Prendergast, executive director of the National Recreation Assn., says: "To be fun it must be safe. It will be—if we all join together to make it so."

the entire faculty"—a bit of phrasing which has my full professional admiration.

"What it did, and I hope will continue to do to a larger degree," Matthew writes, "is make the student leaders, both academic and otherwise, think about the elements of greatness in teaching. Then it has an effect upon the faculty by letting them know what we think the standard of excellence is . . . it binds the student body closer to the faculty in a responsible sense."

Worth accomplishing, wouldn't you agree? And all for a few dollars which might be subscribed by well-wishers or even drawn from an existing miscellaneous fund—with no adjustment of the county tax base. It sounds as if my experiment may just be working.

Too, beyond all this, a system of teacher awards might even give rise to a few more salty insights on teaching techniques like this one delivered by Professor Emeritus Richard Newhall when he received the first annual Faculty Book Award at Williams College in May:

"I let the students talk, but I kept the initiative. I didn't leave them completely free to give voice to anything they wanted to say; in my opinion students shouldn't run the class. You know, students don't usually know what they're talking about; one opinion is not as good as another."

To one aging lawyer, in these halcyon times of life-adjustment-and-damn-the-spelling, that paragraph is worth a hundred dollars any day.

TEACHERS

the entire faculty"—a bit of phrasing which has my full professional admiration.

"What it did, and I hope will continue to do to a larger degree," Matthew writes, "is make the student leaders, both academic and otherwise, think about the elements of greatness in teaching. Then it has an effect upon the faculty by letting them know what we think the standard of excellence is . . . it binds the student body closer to the faculty in a responsible sense."

Worth accomplishing, wouldn't you agree? And all for a few dollars which might be subscribed by well-wishers or even drawn from an existing miscellaneous fund—with no adjustment of the county tax base. It sounds as if my experiment may just be working.

Too, beyond all this, a system of teacher awards might even give rise to a few more salty insights on teaching techniques like this one delivered by Professor Emeritus Richard Newhall when he received the first annual Faculty Book Award at Williams College in May:

"I let the students talk, but I kept the initiative. I didn't leave them completely free to give voice to anything they wanted to say; in my opinion students shouldn't run the class. You know, students don't usually know what they're talking about; one opinion is not as good as another."

To one aging lawyer, in these halcyon times of life-adjustment-and-damn-the-spelling, that paragraph is worth a hundred dollars any day.

LIFE PRESERVERS

semifloating position, legs widespread. And once balanced, you can move the boat towards shore by paddling with the hands. A strong swimmer can help by holding the stern and kicking rhythmically.

If your craft cannot be righted, stick with it anyway. If you are in a spot where help seems unlikely, "swim" the boat towards safety, pausing frequently to hold onto the hull and rest. Fatigue is the greatest enemy in these situations, like the case of the father who lost his eight-year-old son when their rowboat tipped over in Chesapeake Bay. ("Finally my boy just slipped out of my arms and was gone. I couldn't hold him any longer.")

As soon as possible after a capsizing, with all occupants clinging to both sides, collect everything that will serve as makeshift "rope": neckties, belts, handkerchiefs, strips of cloth. When strung over the upturned bottom of the boat, these will be handgrips (each line running from a person on the starboard side to one on the port side). Loops tied around the wrist may save a person even after he has lapsed into unconsciousness.

SUPPOSE the worst happens — you lose the boat and have no life jacket. "Conserve your strength," says the Red Cross, pointing out that you may have a makeshift life preserver handy. When a 56-year-old man was thrown from his sailboat on a Vermont lake, he put his white shirt on backward, buttoned the collar, billowed the wet fabric with air, tucked the tail firmly into his shorts, and floated on his back until he was rescued

A woman's slip, tied or knotted at the waist, or a silk scarf with the four corners drawn together, will hold enough air to support an adult. Even an oar helps, or a section of floor board. Containers with corks or screw caps (like a one-gallon bottle) can be emptied and wedged into your upper clothing to provide buoyancy. Even a blown-up paper bag will help for ten minutes or so, if held gently.

Above all, don't panic. Remember the Maine farm boy who fell from a freighter in mid-Atlantic some years ago. He had never swum a stroke in his life. But by keeping his head and imitating the paddling motions he had seen his dogs perform, he stayed afloat for two and one half hours—until his ship returned.
